At Keystone Congress

Pork Producers honor Nolt

BY LAURA ENGLAND
HARRISBURG — Lancaster County swine producer Dale M. Nolt, Manheim, was among Pa. Pork Producers Council members honored at the Keystone Pork Congress Thursday night.

Nolt, who's been involved in the swine business for most of his 30 years, was named the 1984 Pa. Pork All-American winner. In partnership with his father since 1971, Nolt raises York-Landrace sows and Duroc-Hampshire boars in his farrow to feeder pig operation.

Since the partnership was formed, Green Valley Farm has expanded into an extensive swine and livestock operation. The original partnership included the family's 60-sow herd, but was expanded in 1973 to include the entire farming operation of 200 acres, feeder steers, layer hens and the farrow to finish operation. Improvements in the swine operation included the construction of the Nolt's first finishing barn for 300 head in 1973, a second finishing barn and a gestation barn in 1975, and a complete new farrowing barn, nursery and gestation facility in 1977.

Pleased with their current facilities, the Nolt's wean about 9.5 pigs per litter and finish hogs at a feed efficiency of 2.8 to 3.2. Hogs are marketed weekly and sold on a grade-yield basis.

Nolt, a member of the Lancaster County Swine Producers, will be recognized for his Pork All-American honor during the National Pork Producers meeting in Kansas City, Mo., in March.

Three youth members were also honored and received plaques. Chris Hopple of Mechanicsburg was honored as the FFA winner while Dave Houtz of Bellefonte received 4-H honors.

Serving as secretary-treasurer of her FFA chapter, Chris has shown pigs since she was 10 and currently owns 12 gilts of Duroc, York and Spot origin. She has been successful in the show ring and has won championship awards at the Shippensburg Fair, Farm Show and county round-up.

A 4-H member for nine years, Dave raises beef and dairy animals as well as swine. He currently owns a herd of Chester White hogs.

A 9-year-old Council member from Eighty-Four was also recognized. Lucas Koffler, who said he has five years experience in the hog industry, was awarded the junior speaking contest title during the Farm Show. Using hand gestures and props, Lucas presented his award-winning speech on pork marketing to the Council members, stressing "we have a good product to sell."

PRV depopulation — Is it fair?

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

LANCASTER — Swine breeding operators are continuing to lose hundreds of thousands of dollars in Pennsylvania's pseudorabies eradication program that requires mandatory depopulation of entire herds without any form of indemnification.

In the light of the millions of dollars being spent on the poultry depopulation, hog producers are questioning both the legality and the fairness of the pseudorabies program, which was instituted by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture about seven months ago.

New PRV cases are continuing to turn up in the state — primarily in Lancaster County — and it is believed that the new federal-state pilot project of blood sampling at slaughter houses will uncover new PRV herds and affect even more producers.

Particularly hard hit when pseudorabies is found in a herd is the farrow-to-finish breeding operation.

One such operation recently hit by PRV estimates that it will require more than half of the equity in the entire farm to depopulate and resume operations.

Losses — based on what other operators have experienced in depopulation — are estimated at $500 to $1,000 per sow unit. For a 270-sow unit, this brings the overall figure to a quarter of a million dollars or more.

Approximately one-fifth to one-fourth of the losses are due to the difference in the breeding value of the animals and their market value when they are sent to slaughter under depopulation.

Pseudorabies poses no threat to humans and infected animals may be slaughtered.

For example, the operation lost some $275 a head on boars — many of which had already been promised as breeding stock — which had to be sent to slaughter.

Other losses include downtime and loss of profits, which are further amplified by cessation of Dairy Mgt. Conference stresses herd health

BY TRISH WILLIAMS

UNIVERSITY PARK — Herd health was the emphasis of this year's Dairy Herd Management Conference conducted by Penn State on Thursday and Friday.

Nearly 200 dairymen filled the conference hall at the Penn State Sheraton to hear members of the Department of Dairy and Animal Science present results of their research on a variety of herd health topics.

Jerry Jones of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University was also on the panel of speakers. He addressed the need for improved dry cow care and management.

Featured speaker was Dr. Graem Mein of Australia. Dr. Mein is world renowned for his work in the area of the milking machine and mastitis. Graem made a special presentation at Thursday evening's banquet on the dairy industry in Australia.

Paul J. Wangness, head of the dairy science department, welcomed participants and stressed the need for good herd health, especially in today's economic setting.

"We remain in an uncertain situation, at best in the dairy industry," Wangness said. "Therefore we must strive for greater efficiency and reduced costs through better herd health."

It's FFA Week

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN
NEW HOLLAND — FFA has been a succession of firsts for Carolyn Witmer, of R2 East Earl, Lancaster County.

She was the first female FFA'er to serve as president of the Grassland Chapter in the Eastern Lancaster School District.

Last June, she moved on to the presidency of the Pennsylvania Association and thus expanded a female first to the state FFA level.

But the pioneering achievements she is helping to bring to the Pennsylvania FFA go well beyond just personal accomplishments.

For during her term as state president — which is just over its half-way point — she is playing a role in some "firsts" which will have long-range importance throughout the state and to every youth who puts on a blue and gold jacket now and in years to come. Most important of these statewide firsts is the coming naming of an Executive Secretary for the Pennsylvania Association — the first statewide position that will be devoted solely to FFA and vo-ag activities.

Witmer and other state FFA officers, Pa. Department of Education officials and Penn State ag education representatives have been quite busy recently reviewing applications for the post and it is expected that the final appointment will be coming within the next few weeks.

"There's been a need for an executive secretary for quite a while," Witmer explained.

"We hope to have the person in place on July 1."

The executive secretary would work to coordinate a number of FFA and vo-ag activities on a statewide level, including chapter

Pennfield and You

WORKING TOGETHER TO DEVELOP A BALANCED AND PROFITABLE DAIRY PROGRAM

In our Technical Services Laboratory, located in Lancaster, we perform more than 2,000 forage analyses a year for farms like yours, in Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware. This service enables you to learn the exact nutrient values of your homegrown forages so that we can work with you to develop your best feeding program.

You know, not all testing is the same. The accuracy of your results depends on the thoroughness and professionalism of the people performing the analysis, and the precision of the testing equipment used.

1 The analysis begins with a collection of a forage sample from your farm

4 Samples are chemically digested to measure protein levels

2 The sample is dried in an oven to determine moisture

5 Acid detergent fiber is another important indication of nutrient content.

3 A sample is weighed seven times during the procedure to gather data.

6. Finally, a report is prepared like the ones shown above. The summary provides results on moisture, protein, fiber, energy, calcium, and phosphorous. It gives you the information you need to formulate your best dairy nutrition program.

Maximum feed efficiency and improved nutrition are two reasons for choosing Pennfield Dairy Program. Dairy men, you can count on Pennfield... for a better bottom line.

Pennfield Dairy Program Pluses:

- + "No Charge" for roughage testing
- + Computer calculated "Least Cost" feeding program
- + Bulk feed delivered within 24 hours from receipt of order.

- + Dairy terms: 2½% cash discount - due 15th of following month.
- + Well trained "Dairy Specialists" who can help solve problems when they occur.

What's good for the chicken is as good for the pig

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

Depopulation — a word mostly foreign to this area has become one of everyday use in Pennsylvania agriculture — particularly in Lancaster County.

It's one of those cosmetic words that comes into the language through either technical or bureaucratic avenues to describe something in more socially acceptable terms. A more common word that everyone understands is "kill" — a bit harsher but clearer in meaning.

When the weekend rolled around down on the farm, you weren't sent out to "depopulate" a chicken or rabbit for Sunday dinner. So what's the difference if it's one chicken or millions or a hatchet handle or gas.

But this is not intended to be an essay on using the King's English.

Amidst the killing of the millions of chickens in Pennsylvania another depopulation is proceeding, too. But there are glaring differences in the programs.

While owners of depopulated birds are receiving payments and now other kinds of financial help, the owners of hogs hit by pseudorabies are being forced to depopulate without receiving one red cent of outside financial help.

And, we admit there are differences between the two diseases, particularly in communicable pathogenicity or existing and potential scope of numbers and geographical spread.

But the individual effect on the farmer is just the same. The economic effects have the potential of wiping out a farming operation that has required generations to build up. And that's no different if the farm is a poultry operation or a hog breeding operation.

There are hog breeders who are losing hundreds of thousands of dollars in a PRV eradication program that has been mandated upon them by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Is it fair?

Better scientific minds than mine must answer whether depopulation is necessary. But when the principle is applied, it must be done in a way that is more equal to all segments of agriculture.

Indemnification for depopulation should not be a matter of:

—Whether one segment of agriculture has a better or louder lobbying organization.

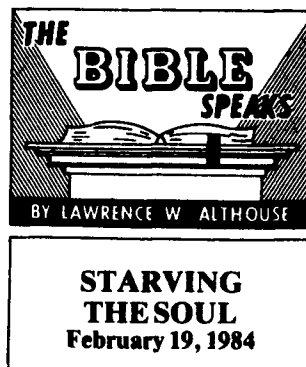

—Whether one segment of farming is more agribusiness-dominated and thus has more clout in Harrisburg or Washington.

—Whether there's someone like a Frank Perdue only a few miles away from a center of disease.

And we're not implying that the Pennsylvania poultry industry and particularly its farmers don't need all the help they're getting and maybe more. We simply want to point out that amidst all of the Avian it shouldn't be forgotten that there are some hog breeders facing just as serious economic dilemmas due to a disease that is beyond their personal control.

Or, what's good for the chicken is just as good for the pig.

Background Scripture:

Devotional Reading:

Isaiah 56:1-8.

I write these words in the midst of the Christmas season.

Although we've already been to several Christmas parties and social functions, there are still quite a few ahead of us. Despite my resolutions to the contrary, I've already eaten too much of the normal Christmas festivities fare. Too many sweets, too many heavy, fattening foods.

Why do so many of us overindulge at times like these? Well, for one thing, it all looks so good, so tempting. Yet, often we find, especially with many sweets, that eventually we feel somewhat unsatisfied. Perhaps we have stuffed ourselves to the limits of our capacities, and yet feel as if we still have not experienced what we were looking for.

UNSATISFIED

This is something we may experience, not only with food, but with life itself. That to which we look for our happiness or our fulfillment may prove to be empty and disappointing once we have attained it. This is what the Prophet Isaiah is referring to when he says:

NOW IS THE TIME

To Keep Small Children Away From Machinery

The spring cropping season will be starting in another month. Under current farming methods various pieces of farm machinery will be put into operation and things will be really moving. Small children like to become a part of this action and ask to ride on machinery, or even operate some of the smaller tractors. It might take nerve to refuse them at times; however, for their own protection they should not become involved. Many serious accidents have happened because "Dad" or "Grandad" took them along.

Where there are small children, all machinery operators should be especially careful of their exact location. Farm machinery and small children do not mix.

To Know Sewage Sludge Content

The use of sewage sludge on farm land is becoming more common. As the amount of this material increases, the farmers should be aware of the danger of excessive application. There can be a problem of too much sludge causing a build-up of heavy metals such as zinc, copper, cadmium, and cobalt. When these metals become too high in the soil they are toxic to plants. Farmers that utilize sewage sludge are urged to require a test of the material in order to know the exact mineral and fertilizer content. Disposal plants are urged to provide this test for their farmers in order to know what is being done. Both the sewage and the soil can be tested through the Penn State Testing Laboratory. Don't continue to apply sludge without knowing the mineral build-up in the soils.

To Recognize Lime For Weed Control

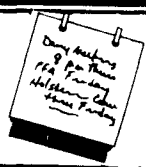

You have never heard us recommend lime for weed control, however, indirectly lime is important to obtain good herbicide weed control. Both research work and farm experience has indicated that herbicides are not as effective in sour soil. So, for best weed control with chemicals, the soil lime requirement must be satisfied. Many poor weed control experiences have been reported on sour soils. A complete soil test will indicate the amount of lime needed. There are many other advantages to crop production in addition to better herbicide action.

Purchased feeder pigs raised on different farms and placed together for sale must be handled carefully. The goal of management is simply to maintain or improve the health of the animal before placing it on a rapid gaining ration.

Young feeder pigs must have a warm, dry, draft-free sleeping area with good ventilation. Straw bedding can be used in conventional buildings. A "hover area" with heat bulbs may be used when floor heat is not available in concrete-floored feeding units. Air currents or drafts must be eliminated in either open-front structures or with conventional buildings.

Water medication has proven successful for many swine feeders. Newly arrived feeder pigs are often stressed and in many cases will consume medicated water before they will eat medicated feed.

Here's proof.

Results from performance trials throughout the Corn Belt prove that BROOT soil insecticide provides the kind of protection you need for top corn yields.

In testing to date, BROOT has been a consistent performer in terms of root ratings and yield response. That's why BROOT is included in university recommendations for effective rootworm control.

So ask your dealer about new BROOT 15GX. He knows that it's more than just another rootworm insecticide. And once you try BROOT, you'll know it too.

The rootworm insecticide built tough enough to last all season long.

Now there's BROOT™ from Union Carbide. It's the corn soil insecticide specially formulated to deliver the full-season rootworm control you need for higher corn yields.

Down deep, no other rootworm insecticide looks like BROOT™...

Unlike conventional soil insecticides, new BROOT is formulated into unique roll-compacted granules. Together with finely-ground gypsum, the active ingredient in BROOT, trimethacarb, is blended evenly throughout each and every granule.

Or works like BROOT™...

Because of this unique formulation, each granule of BROOT gradually releases its active ingredient throughout the rootworm season.

So your corn roots stand a better chance of developing normally

Or handles like BROOT™...

This advanced formulation also makes BROOT soil insecticide easier to handle. It flows smoothly and evenly out of the hopper box. And BROOT is not abrasive to your application

4-WHEEL DRIVE TRACTOR HEADQUARTERS

COUGAR IV

One of the world's most efficient farming machines

Once You Own A Four-Wheel-Drive Tractor, The Key To How Profitable It Is Comes Down To THE AMOUNT OF WORK IT DOES, HOW MUCH FUEL IT USES, AND HOW MUCH UPKEEP IT TAKES.

A COUGAR DOES MORE WORK.

The Cougar's large displacement and high torque rise Caterpillar and Cummins engines have consistently given Steiger the extra reserve of pulling power. In fact, these 280 horsepower Steigers actually outperform higher horsepower tractors by delivering more of their engine horsepower to the drawbar. This high percentage of engine to drawbar horsepower means that with a STEIGER Cougar you get more of the power you're paying for.

A COUGAR SAVES FUEL

You pay for a tractor once. You pay for fuel everytime you put the nozzle in the tank. But Steiger has engineered this four wheel drive to squeeze more power out of every drop of fuel than any other tractor in its class. The difference between the fuel efficiency of a Cougar CM-280 and most other tractors can save you enough money each year to buy your family a new TV or refrigerator or other appliance.

A COUGAR LASTS

Steiger selects engines, transmissions, and other components from a wide range of sources. So while other manufacturers are generally forced to sell only what they build, Steiger can pick from the newest and most efficient technology on the market. The components are then carefully engineered into a machine that can consistently outperform and outlast the competition. A COUGAR keeps its upkeep to a minimum.

IF YOU COMPARE A COUGAR IV TO THE OTHERS, SOONER OR LATER, YOU'LL OWN A STEIGER

"It may have been idle last year, but it'll be XL-61 this time around."

PIK took out a lot of corn acres around here last year. So it'll be nice to see XL-61 growing here again.

I've always been impressed with the quick start, strong stalks and healthy plants I get with XL-61. I'm even more impressed with the consistently high yields. And, while a lot of my customers plant XL-61 for its top-quality grain, just as many plant it for silage.

Now you know why I'm planting XL-61 this time around. And why most of my customers ordered it again.

If you're planting more corn this year, I hope you ordered enough XL-61. If you didn't, see your DEKALB-PFIZER dealer. Harvesting those extra bushels sure beats mowing weeds.

this time around?

I am.

Kitchen table meetings promote conservation

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

GLEN ROCK — While top environmental and political figures meet around polished board room tables to debate the planned cleanup of the Chesapeake Bay, landowners in part of the watershed are looking at the problem from their own point of view.

Over soup and sandwiches in the spacious kitchen of the Clarence and Darlene Godfrey farm home, at Glen Rock R2, a handful of local farmers shared conservation concerns.

This casual "kitchen" meeting is part of the strategy devised by local soil conservation officials to pinpoint grass roots problems in the targeted South and East Branches of the Codorus Creek watershed.

Not only does this portion of the Codorus join the greater Chesapeake watershed area, it also provides the sole source of drinking water for the greater York metropolitan area.

By meeting with small groups of farmers, like the nine who turned out for the first local target area discussion, conservationists hope to stir new interest in erosion control installations by landowners who have never previously taken part in preventing soil and water runoff.

In addition, Conservation District and Soil Conservation leaders hope to rekindle interest in updating conservation plans that may be a decade or two old, and no longer adequate for newer intense cropping methods.

Some $70,000 of Mason-Dixon Erosion Control Area monies have been allocated for use in York County's targeted area, in addition to previously budgeted conservation practice funds of $70,000. Target erosion area funds are for erosion control practices only, and may not be used toward animal waste facilities.

Manure runoff, a prime focus of the Chesapeake Bay problem studies, is expected to be addressed in a special $2 million conservation practices cost sharing proposal submitted by Pennsylvania, with half of that total likely aimed at six counties in the state's Susquehanna River basin.

"Farmers are doing a lot of little things on their own that are working," soil conservationist Lee Bentz told this initial gathering of Codorus watershed farm owners. "We want to set up meaningful demonstrations using local farmers who are willing to share what they're doing with others."

Bentz is especially interested in finding farm sites along major highways where he can set up erosion and runoff control demonstrations easily accessible to anyone interested.

Already, plans are underway for spring seedings of "switchgrass," a perennial summer forage developed especially for beef cattle. Potential yields from this crop, which grows back from a 4-5 inch stubble, are "fantastic" Bentz says. While initially expensive to establish, the crop should never need reseeded if properly managed.

Another forage possibility is Kentucky 31 Fescue, a durable grass that turns unpalatable in summer's heat and could be planted to, discourage cattle from overgrazing steep slopes prone to erosion under heavy summer storms. Cool weather renders grass more tasty to cattle, for winter grazing needs.

Dairymen could possibly use such a grass, Bentz figures, to discourage cattle from grazing stream edges bare and erosion-prone.

Conservation district manager Linda Houseal also issued a request for demonstration sites for no-till small grain seedings. Staffers will help locate no-till seeding equipment for farmers interested in cooperating on such demonstration plantings.

"We've got to start somewhere," says Bentz of the initial neighborhood meeting, an idea he and Ms. Houseal hope will be repeated across the 14 Pennsylvania and 8 Maryland counties in the Mason-Dixon Erosion Control Area that forms the Chesapeake watershed.

A concurrence of farmers at the session was that major soil and water runoff problems are being created by absentee landowners renting for the highest dollar-per-acre obtainable, with little concern over enforcing conservation practices.

Often, they agree, hilltop-to-valley-bottom corn or beans creates heavy top-soil losses and sediment problems, since no grass or hay crop strips are left lay to catch and utilize heavy downpours or groundwater runoff.

Conservation practices continue to be strictly voluntary measures, with conservationists available for advice and technical assistance.

Landowners interested in such assistance may contact the Conservation District offices at the York County Home Complex at 122 Pleasant Acres Road, York, or call 755-2966 or 755-0406.

Mid-Atlantic Direct Marketers to convene in Lancaster

LANCASTER — The 1984 Mid-Atlantic Direct Marketing Conference will be held at Americana's Host Farm Resort in Lancaster on February 21-23. Some of the finest direct farm markets in Pennsylvania are located in Lancaster County. With over 50 such markets in the county, direct marketing is highly competitive.

On Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 21, a tour of three selected direct marketing outlets in the Lancaster area has been planned. Last year was the first time to have a tour with the conference and it was a big hit. This year the tour will include Cherry Hill Orchards Outlet, Pine View Dairy Market, and Central Lancaster's Farmer's Market.

Wednesday's schedule offers a full day of seminars, workshops, and panel discussions. A general session in the morning will focus on merchandising. Multiple educational sessions in the afternoon will deal with displays, merchandising, advertising, and promotion. A panel discussion will address the question of how to get started in direct marketing. A separate session will address concerns of milk jugglers.

Wednesday evening convention goers will have the opportunity to dine and relax. A banquet and presentation of awards are scheduled early in the evening followed by dancing, swimming and entertainment.

Motivation and success stories are the subject of Thursday's general sessions. Successful direct market operators will talk on selecting and training employees, and bringing customers back.

A commercial exhibit area will feature over 50 exhibitors who will have displays set up throughout the entire conference.

Sponsors for the event are Cooperative Extension Service in Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, Retail Farm Market Division-PFA, Maryland Farm Market Association, Pennsylvania Milk Juggling Association, and the soon to be formed Delaware Direct Marketing Association.

Registration for the tour and conference is required. A late registration fee can be avoided by registering with one of the above sponsors before Feb. 14.

Persons who would like to have accommodations at Host Farm Resort, should contact the resort directly at telephone 717-299-5500.

membership enrollment, publicity, setting up a Foundation and activities of the state association at the national convention each year.

Initially, it is planned to finance the post with an extra 10 cents per box of citrus that chapters would turn back to the state association.

When a Pennsylvania FFA Foundation is established patterned after the national concept, the post and other FFA activities could be supported through agribusiness grants and donations.

And there are some other firsts for the Pennsylvania FFA Association.

During FFA Week, which started today, Witmer and other state officers will launch a program of visits to Pennsylvania businesses and industries which have been supportive of the FFA.

Visits during the coming week will be made to Victor F. Weaver Inc., Sperry New Holland, Lancaster Farming, Lancaster Newspapers, Wenger Farm Machinery, Ashcombe Farm and Greenhouse, Country Market Florist and other businesses who aid the FFA in various ways.

"Like the visits of national officers, we want to express our personal appreciation of the help shown by these businesses and industries and to ask for their continued support," Witmer said.

And the dynamic, forward-looking FFA president, who is seeking a career in agribusiness public relations, also has some other "firsts" in mind.

After a recent visit to Maryland, she'd like to see an FFA Citizenship Program adopted in Pennsylvania, in which FFA Chapter presidents and state officers get together with legislative and other governmental officials once a year to discuss mutual interests and needs.

"Due to our large number of chapters, we might have to divide such a program into two sessions for the eastern and western sections of the state," Witmer said.

"But it could be a valuable meeting to keep in touch with state officials."

And what does the future hold for this "FFA President of Firsts?"

Well, like her male predecessors in the post, she's about to begin the annual FFA banquet circuit that will take her to some 30 or more parent-member gatherings in the next couple of months.

And, that will bring her almost to June Activities Week when she will officially relinquish the reins of the State Association but still be active as past state president.

And active personifies the Garden Spot High School graduate who held just about every FFA post in the Grassland Chapter, was a member of the winning State Parliamentary Procedure Team, had breeding sheep and market lamb projects on-farm and works at Yoder's Country Market off-farm. And also managed to win the State Extemporaneous Public Speaking Contest.

And I'm sure the "firsts" aren't over. She'll likely be the first female FFA candidate from Pennsylvania for national office.

If not this coming year, possibly next year.

As president of the Pennsylvania Association of the Future Farmers of America, Carolyn Witmer, R2 East Earl, participates in many statewide functions. Standing at right, she joins other state presidents of vocational organizations for the signing of a proclamation by Governor Thornburgh for Vocational Education Week, which was held during the past week and is followed immediately by FFA Week, which began today.

Chapters plan FFA Week events

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Nearly one-half million members of the Future Farmers of America will be involved in promoting FFA/vocational agriculture and the agriculture industry across the nation during FFA Week, which began today.

FFA members in over 8,350 chapters across the U.S. and its territories will be organizing events and activities to create awareness of and support for FFA/vocational agriculture education.

This year's theme for FFA Week — "Keeping America on the Grow" — will be seen throughout local communities nationwide, not only through promotional efforts of the local students, but also through a national public service announcement campaign featuring Eddie Albert.

FFA/vocational agriculture education places a major emphasis on developing leadership skills, innovative practices and the application of both to the industry of agriculture.

Ron Wineinger, National FFA President, sees FFA Week as a "good opportunity for all involved to reassess the importance of agriculture to us as individuals and the nation as a whole."

Traditionally, FFA Week has included George Washington's birthday in respect for his leadership and commitment to strengthening America through agriculture. Both the National FFA Center and FFA National Hall of Achievement are located on part of the old Washington estate, near Alexandria, Virginia.

Many chapters throughout Pennsylvania plan special activities during FFA Week.

The Twin Valley FFA Chapter at Elverson will hold an open house from 4 to 8 p.m. Wednesday in the vo-ag classroom and shop. The chapter will have exhibits and demonstrations of its activities and accomplishments.

The Warwick FFA in Lititz will be displaying some of the project activities of members in the high school lobby and distribute FFA items to supporters, as well as a newsletter of FFA activities to the community. The school faculty will also be treated to cherry pie on Washington's birthday.

In Berks County, Conrad Weiser Chapter is planning displays in area grocery stores; Oley Valley, a display in the school lobby; Hamburg, an FFA Dress-Up Day; Kutztown, placements in restaurants; and Tulpehocken, bulletin boards displays and a sign in front of the school.

National officers coming to NE

NEW YORK — The national FFA officers will travel throughout the Northeastern United States during the next two weeks to learn about American business and industry.

This year, the two FFA "Stars" (Star Farmer and Agribusinessman) are accompanying the six national officers among others in the FFA group visiting 30 cities in 10 states. Thus, approximately 150 businesses and industries in the Northeast will be visited in an effort to teach the officers and stars something about the structure of the U.S. economic system.

support vocational agriculture and FFA," commented Ron Wineinger, National FFA President from Marion, Kansas. He added, "It is our chance to learn about their work and service as well as an opportunity to express our appreciation to them and explain our current activities."

During the first half of the month, the national officers participated in a two-week trip to Japan.

The officers visited their Japanese counterparts — the Future Farmers of Japan and stayed with host families provided by the FFAJ.

Hayes is Grassland speaker

New York City will be the starting point for the two-week tour. The group will meet with Hilmer Jones, Vice President, North American Operations, MSD AGVET Division of Merck and Company, Inc., Rahway, N.J. Jones is also the Chairman for the 1984 National FFA Foundation Sponsoring Board. From there, the group will divide into three teams and cover New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Maryland and Delaware.

NEW HOLLAND — Samuel E. Hayes, Jr., Minority Whip of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, will be the featured speaker at the 25th Anniversary Banquet of the Grassland FFA to be held on Friday, March 9. The program will begin at 8:15 p.m. in the auditorium of the Garden Spot High School following simultaneous banquets at the Blue Ball and New Holland Fire Halls.

A former FFA member, Hayes holds both the Honorary Keystone Farmer Degree and the Honorary American Farmer Degree. He graduated from Penn State with both a bachelors and masters degree. He began his career as a teacher of vocational agriculture in Central Pennsylvania. In 1970, he was elected to the Pennsylvania House of Representatives and has served seven consecutive terms. Currently he serves as Minority Whip, and he previously served as Majority Whip for two legislative sessions. In 1983, he was named Lawmaker of the Year and was also the recipient of the Miracle Mile Award and Special Leadership Award given by the Rural Electric Cooperative.

More than 500 current and former FFA members including recipients of chapter, county, state and national degrees; chapter, county, state, and national FFA officers; and charter members of the Grassland FFA Chapter of the Garden Spot High School are expected to attend the activities. In addition, teachers; administrators and former administrators; school board members; and community and agri-business leaders will be in attendance.

All former members of the Grassland FFA are invited to attend. For information about tickets, call Clifford Day or Robert Herr at (717) 354-4031. Reservations must be made by Feb. 21.

In addition to all of her commitments as State FFA president, Carolyn Witmer works in produce department of Yoder's Country Market, New Holland.

Record year

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Nearly 1,000 individuals and businesses agreed with the 1983 National FFA Foundation Sponsoring Committee Chairman's theme, "Today is the Day to Shape Tomorrow's Leaders," by giving record amounts to the FFA.

Sponsors showed their faith in the Future Farmers of America in 1983 with $1,601,000 in support to fund the organization's programs and awards. This is a new record for sponsor giving to the organization and represents a 17.1% increase over the 1982 campaign. Also, over $1,600,000 in deferred giving - grants from wills and trusts — was pledged in 1983 to help support FFA activities in the future.

The FFA Foundation serves FFA members by providing monies for numerous incentive, leadership and citizenship programs on the chapter, state and national levels.

With the close of calendar year 1983, the FFA Foundation Sponsoring Committee has begun work on the 1984 fund raising campaign. Dr. Hilmer L. Jones, the 1984 chairman has announced this year's theme, "Keeping America on the Grow — Vocational Agriculture and the FFA."

RISING SUN, MD — Cecil County Holstein breeders are gearing up to host the 1984 Maryland Holstein Convention and Sale, February 28 and 29, at Sandy Cove resort.

Sandy Cove - Morning Cheer, is known for its fantastic food and banquet facilities that overlook the upper reaches of the scenic Chesapeake Bay. The peaceful resort community of Sandy Cove is located south of Northeast, Md on route 272. Rooms are available at Sandy Cove for convention goers and a hall for the Convention Sale.

Many activities are planned to entertain and inform participants to the two day event. The annual business meeting of the Maryland Holstein Association will be held Tuesday morning February 28th, followed by a luncheon.

Tuesday afternoon's program features two speakers. Steve Briggs part owner and operator of Brigeen Farms, of Turner, Maine, will address the convention. Briggs is a past president of the New England Holstein Association and is associated with Hanover Hill sales service.

William H. Hill, Jr., a representative from the Holstein Association will speak on the new linear type program.

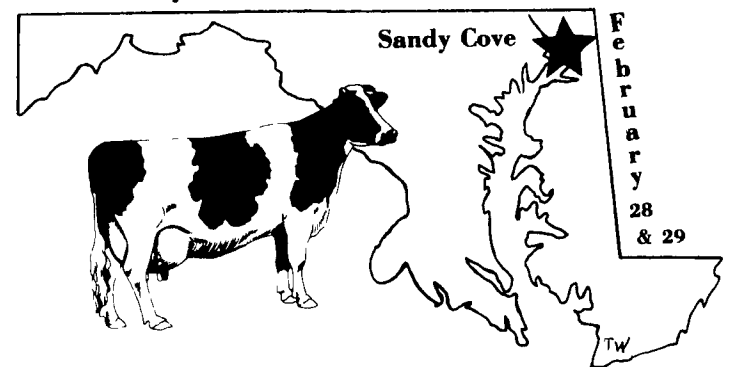

A special program for women and another for youth will also be held on Tuesday. Women attending the convention will have the chance to watch 12 craftsmen as they perform their art. Later the women will have the opportunity to create their own craft pieces under instruction of the craftsmen.

Lois Remburg Skeen, will conduct a special program for youth.

The convention banquet will be held Tuesday evening, followed by a "Fun Auction." The auction proceeds will benefit the Maryland Holstein Youth Scholarship Fund. So come with plenty of spending money

Anyone who has farm or cow oriented items to donate to the auction should contact Tom Crothers, auction chairman, Long Green Farm, 20 Long Green Farm Slides will be shown at the banquet of the Intergalactic Milk Carton Boat Race, held last summer at the farm of Bob and Warren Knutsen, Cecil County dairymen.

Remsburg Sales Service will conduct the Convention Sale on leap year day, Wednesday, Feb. 29. According to auctioneer, A. Doty Remsburg, over 70 top quality registered Holsteins have been consigned to the sale.

The sale will feature 10 daughter out of excellent dams and nine daughters from cows with over 1000 pounds of fat.

Harold Smith, Monkton, Md, has consigned to the sale a Columbus daughter from a dam classified E-91, with production records of 30,050 pounds of milk and 1302 pounds of fat.

Marlin Hoff, New Windsor, Md. has consigned a Board Chairman daughter from a dam rated 2E-93, with production records of 36,880 milk, and 1354 fat.

Also a featured consignment, from Paul Welk, is a Wileda daughter out of VG 88 dam with production records of 22,725 milk, and 1279 fat.

Dairy cows often exhibit no outward symptoms in cases of subclinical mastitis. But such infections do lower milk production, and their presence can be shown by unusually high counts of somatic cells in a farmer's bulk milk tank.

Leaders in mastitis research say that milk in bulk tanks on most dairy farms across the nation would yield somatic cell counts of 400,000 to 800,000 cells per milliliter. Somatic cell counts below 100,000 are necessary to minimize milk yield losses. Formerly it was thought that counts under 300,000 were satisfactory.

Milk starts tasting rancid when the somatic cell count exceeds 400,000. Cheesemaking yields also are reduced. When the somatic cell count exceeds 1.5 million, milk is rejected by wholesale buyers.

Recent research at Virginia Tech and the University of Wisconsin indicates that at the 400,000 to 800,000 cell-count level — which is common on many farms — milk production in a dairy herd is reduced at a rate of 1,600 to 2,000 pounds per cow per year. Based on a wholesale price of $13 per cwt., this means an income loss of $208 to $260 per cow for dairy farmers, according to Robert R. Peters, an Extension dairy science specialist at the University of Maryland in College Park.

When an expansive mastitis education program was conducted recently in Nebraska, somatic cell counts in milk were reduced by 20 percent within one year. This translated into savings of more than $1 million for Nebraska dairy farmers. Similar results could happen in Maryland, Dr. Peters believes. The critical factor will be a large turnout at next month's Extension - sponsored mastitis control educational meetings in 25 locations in the state, ranging from western Maryland to the Eastern Shore.

Beef tour set in Del.

DOVER, Del. — The Delmarva Beef Cattlemen's Association is planning a tour of area livestock operations on Thursday, March 1. The tour will start at 9 a.m. at Hickory Hill Farm, on the grounds of Delaware State College in Dover.

Before installation had 2.5 volts at peak times, this was reduced to .04 volts with installation of the Tingle Voltage Filter

WILLIAM EICK FARM
COLUMBIA CROSS ROADS, PA.
Before installation had 3.5 volts at peak times was reduced to .14 volts with installation of the Tingle Voltage Filter.

The TINGLE VOLTAGE FILTER is safe, effective, permanent, inexpensive and are completely maintenance free. If installed with Dairylands Stray Voltage Indicator permanently will show electrical faults before they become hazardous.

3 Pa. breeders seek national Holstein post

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

ALTOONA — Three Pennsylvania Holstein breeders are seeking candidacy for a position on the national Holstein association's board of directors. One of three men will receive the endorsement of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association next week at PHA's annual convention. Selection will be made by a caucus on Thursday, Feb. 23.

Four national board terms will expire during 1984, including the seat presently held by Don Seipt of Easton. Those board terms will be filled by election during the national convention in June, to be held in St. Louis, Missouri.

Candidates to date being considered for the caucus' endorsement are John Cope, Grantham, Cumberland County; Kenneth Mowry, Roaring Springs, Bedford County; Gordon Wood, Mansfield, Tioga County.

John Cope is vice-president and general manager of Ashcombe's Farms, which operates milk production, processing and retail sales facilities in both York and Cumberland counties. Cope also independently owns Holsteins and farms with his son and daughter.

Ashcombe Farms' combined herds of 520 cows have a rolling herd average of 19,307 milk and 677 fat. Production last year earned the farms high herd average in the state for production in herds over 200 cows.

Cope was involved in Pennsylvania's first export shipment of cattle, and the farm has since sent individuals to over a dozen countries.

He is immediate past president of the state Holstein Association and has served 12 years on the executive committee, with 6 years as treasurer and a term as vice-president.

Among his ag related activities are Commonwealth National Bank's Dillsburg branch advisory committees, board of overseers of the University of Pennsylvania veterinary school, county extension board, ag-speakers bureau and school dairy promotion.

Cope is also a trustee of Findley College in Ohio, and a past president of the Mechanicsburg School board and the Dillsburg Lions Club.

Kenneth Mowry is co-owner of Mowry Farms, a three-generation operation that includes his father, Clarence, and sons Steve and Ron. Of the total 500 head on the farm, about 200 make up the milking herd.

The Mowry's have developed seven of the nation's top ten indexed cows and set the first 40,000 and 50,000 pound milk production records.

The herd has been on DHIR for 30 years and won the Progressive Breeder Registry for 15 years. Numerous individuals have been exported and consigned to domestic sales programs.

Mowry has been a state Holstein director for 20 years, served on a variety of state merchandising and sales committees, and been a national delegate for 20 years. He is secretary of the 1984 convention and a member of the convention sale committee.

Mowry has served on legislative and labor committees for the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, and as a past member of the Bedford School board, worked with finance and personnel committees.

His community activities have included serving as president and executive board member of the Washington Cove Memorial Park and the Bedford Lions Club.

Gordon Wood and his sons operate two dairy herds with a combined total of 450 head of milking animals.

The Gor-Wood home herd of 142 cows has a rolling herd average of 17,761 milk and 606 fat.

Among the farm's recent show accomplishments are the winning of the 1983 state spring show's best three female class, seven consecutive years as premier breeder at the Northeast championship show and a Reserve All-American bull exhibited last year.

For 25 years, Wood has operated an auction service specializing in cattle and machinery, and recently with his youngest son purchased a local restaurant business.

He's a past state Holstein director and served on the committees that purchased the PHA's farm and built additional barn facilities, and has been a national delegate for three years.

Wood has 30 years of active service with Northeast Dairy

Cooperative (NEDCO). He served 15 years as a delegate and 15 as a board member, the last five years on the executive committee and as assistant treasurer.

He has also been a director for 20 years of the Headwaters PCA and Land Bank, presently serving as vice-president and loan committee member, and been an ASCS committeemen for 15 years. During seven years as a school director, he served one year as president of the Mansfield, Richman, Sullivant joint district board.

Seed treatment may be needed

DEKALB, IL. — For 1984, seed treatment may be an essential part of crop protection against seed-attacking insects. Wherever cover crops were grown last year and use of a soil insecticide to control rootworms is not planned, the protection of a planter box seed treatment should be considered. It just might avoid a profit-robbing thin and spotty stand or, perhaps, the cost of replanting.

Most hybrid corn and sorghum seed marketed by established producers is fungicide-treated before it is bagged. This provides a protective film around the seed to help ward off diseases after planting. Captan is the most commonly used fungicide for corn and sorghum seed.

Soil inhabiting insects are another hazard to planted seed. Seed corn maggots, seed corn beetles, wireworms, and thief ants are the more common problem insects. An insecticide applied to seed just before it is planted can provide a great deal of stand assurance at low cost. Diazinon and lindane seed treatments are the most common University-recommended materials.

Diazinon planter box seed treatments are registered in most states to help protect corn against stand reduction by seed corn maggots and seed corn beetles and to protect soybeans against seed corn maggots. Losses to these insects will be most pronounced if cool weather slows seed germination. Cost of material will vary from about 40 cents to 75 cents per acre, depending on application and seed planting rates.

Lindane can be used on corn, sorghum, soybean, sunflower, and several other crop seeds in several states to protect against feeding by seed corn beetles, seed corn maggots, and wireworms during germination. The product also helps deter thief ants, kafir ants, and false wireworms. Cost of material depends on seeding rate and varies from about 50 cents to 75 cents per acre for corn, 5 cents to 25 cents for sorghum, and runs about one dollar per acre for soybeans.

Generally it is not considered necessary to use a planter box insecticide if an organo-phosphate is being applied over the row or in the furrow at planting. With this exception, the cost of added stand protection afforded by a planter box seed treatment is very low, considering the total investment in planting a crop.

High quality seed treatment materials come in dry powder form and should contain a graphite additive, which improves seed flow and benefits moving planter parts. If planting during high humidity, check planting mechanisms periodically to guard against seed treatment buildup. There is no adverse effect on seed germination and plant growth when these insecticides are used as directed on the label.

Does Lasso[®]
outperform Dual¹?

Consider the facts.

FACT: Lasso[®] herbicide not only gives you full-season grass control, Lasso provides better control of pigweed and black nightshade than Dual—and better suppression of lambsquarters and common ragweed.

FACT: Lasso stresses young corn and soybean plants less than Dual.

FACT: Universities around the country have conducted herbicide tests in corn for eight straight years, 1975 through 1982. In those independent tests, plots treated with Lasso consistently produced bigger yields than plots treated with Dual.

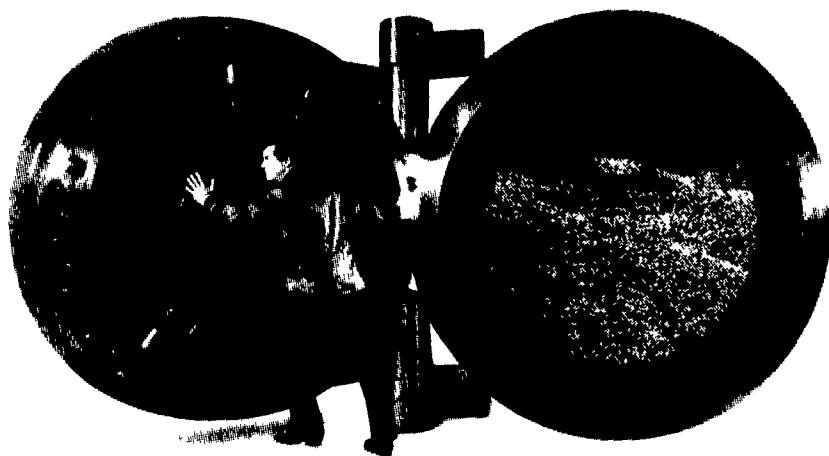

FACT: Lasso averaged over four bushels per acre more than Dual³ whether the herbicides were used alone or tank mixed with atrazine or Bladex² herbicides.

FACT: All available comparisons (more than 1,000) from published university experiments were reviewed to obtain these results.

FACT: Comparisons were made at universities in many different states. They included a wide range of weather conditions, soil types and weed infestations, as well as many popular varieties of corn.

FACT: No Monsanto data were used. All tests were conducted independently by each university as part of its regular weed control testing program.

ADD IT UP: Full-season grass control, better control of some tough broadleaf weeds, less herbicide stress, a significant yield advantage verified by independent university tests—clearly, Lasso outperforms Dual. Count on Lasso for all the yield you're entitled to. Monsanto

Rounding-out the banquet activities was guest speaker Walt Buesher, who through pictures and humor, entertained the 300 Council members and guests. Buesher said "our problems in agriculture have always been surplus problems," and he suggested that the alternative to these problems is to sell.

The Pork Producers Council banquet was the highlight of the Keystone Pork Congress held at the Penn Harris-Motor Inn in Harrisburg. Morning and afternoon sessions featured speakers from Penn State University and the state pork industry.

Penn State professor of Agriculture Economics Extension H. Louis Moore offered encouraging words for the pork industry for 1984. Economic indicators are good, Moore said, "and I'm real upbeat about the agriculture economy in 1984. What's going on in the general economy is very good news for agriculture."

Consumer attitudes are positive, Moore said, and people are spending more money on agriculture products. The economic recovery has also been positive, he said, and has added to the good news of the agriculture industry.

On a less positive note, Moore said that long-range plans are needed to control the surplus problem in agriculture. "We have a major long-range surplus problem in agriculture," he said, "which we as producers and the

Pennfield develops computer swine program

BY LAURA ENGLAND

HARRISBURG — Pennfield Corporation, of Rohrerstown, has developed a computerized swine management program which will replace the carousel-type record-keeping system currently used by its customers.

The new system, about 75 percent complete, was introduced during the Keystone Pork Congress in Harrisburg on Thursday. Developed by Pennfield's computer specialists Gary Groff, Rick Pentz and Frank Mears, the program will be tested on one of the corporation's swine herds during the next six weeks and should be ready for commercial use this summer.

Requiring no computer training on the producer's part, the management program has a two-fold purpose: to eliminate the bulk of daily manual record-keeping and to provide statistical data on individual sows and boars and on the complete herd. The program will be available to Pennfield customers only.

By using familiar computer terms, producers will receive a daily print out on the farm listing what activities, such as breeding, pregnancy checks and weaning, should be done that day. At the end of the day, producers can then enter into the computer terminal what chores were completed.

Pennfield is using an IBM Systems 38 computer for the management program, according to swine specialist Ray Lehr; however, farmers participating in the program can use either an IBM personnel computer or a terminal/printer option. Pennfield will supply the 10 units they have for producer use.

The basic concept behind the program, Lehr said, is to place computers on the four swine farms that Pennfield contracts and to make available the system on the other six farms that the Rohrerstown branch manages. This will allow for better management and provide more accurate records, Lehr said.

By linking the 10 farms up to the main computer at the Rohrerstown office, Pennfield employees can keep a daily check on the farms from a centralized location, Lehr said. Another advantage, he added, is that predictions and future plans for each operation will be easier to make because the farm data will be at hand.

"This is the only system," Lehr said, "that combines operating practices with a comparative system."

government haven't addressed yet.

"We have to continue to be concerned about this. It's a bad problem."

While most producers would like to see less government intervention in agriculture, Moore said this would not be possible as long as a surplus problem exists.

As for the hog industry, Moore said he is optimistic and expects to see hog profits throughout the year. He offered the following suggestions to producers to continue in the hog industry: stay competitive in marketing and stay close to the markets. Marketing is important, he added, and producers should be concerned with competitive meats.

Butler Countian gets sheep, wool crown

BY BARBARA RADER
Staff Correspondent

NEW CASTLE — Highlights of the Butler, Beaver, Lawrence Area Sheep and Wool Growers Spring Event on Feb. 4 at the Liberty Grange featured the crowning of the '84 Lamb/Wool Queen, the youth wool judging contest, open wool contest, Ladies League wool fashion show, election of directors, various guest speakers and 292 pounds of dressed lamb.

Butler Countian, Peggy McCrumb, 17-year-old daughter of the Rev. Robert and Sally McCrumb, of Mars, was crowned the '84 Lamb/Wool Queen during the event. She will represent Beaver, Butler and Lawrence Counties at the state wide competition later on in Harrisburg.

Two Lawrence County youths captured trophies, blue ribbons and cash prizes in the youth wool judging contest. Bridget Whiting, eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Whiting, won the junior division, 12 and under, and Janet Shick, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shick, took the honors of the senior division of 14 thru 17 years.

Being sponsored by the First National Bank at New Castle, the juniors had to judge two classes of wool, one a low quarter the other 3/8 blood. Mercer County Agent Bob Calvert served as official judge with Lee Miller and Curt Hughes, Beaver and Butler County agents, respectfully, having charge of the contest.

Contestants looked for wool character, strength and length of the fiber and extra added ingredients such as hay and feed matter in the fleeces while selecting their placings.

The open wool pool contest being sponsored by the Lawrence County Wool Growers presented the champion fleece trophy to Lloyd McCracken, New Castle, on his 3/8 blood entry. He also took second place winnings in this class. His flock of 10 ewes, which began as a hobby, will be acquiring more of his attention as he just retired. Wayne Hixenbaugh and Carl Shuler were third and fourth place winners, respectfully.

Robert and Rick Dunn, father and son, took honors in the quarter blood and switched spots in the half blood class. Maggie Whiting received third place for her quarter blood fleece.

District 5 Director of Ladies League, Mrs. Shirley Dunn, Chicora, explained the contest rules on "Make it yourself with wool" and narrated a fashion show with five girls modeling. Janet Shick, 16, modeled her slack and jacket outfit; Melinda Shaffer, 13, showed off her solid brown knickers; Carol Shuler was attired in her brown 2-piece short jacket and skirt, complemented with a 100% wool felt hat. A two-piece heather gray skirt and jacket was modeled by 20-year-old Robin Dunn, and Kim Schultheis modeled 17-year-old Sandy Schaffer's gray 2-piece skirt and jacket in her absence.

Dave Martin, Volant, conducted the business meeting in which seven new directors were elected to serve one year terms. Those elected were Robert Burry, Beaver County; William Fullerton and David Whiting, Lawrence County; Robert and Harold Dunn and Jack Estess, Butler County; and Gerald Thoma from Ohio.

Calvert reported the state field days will be June 2 at Mercer County 4-H Park, adding that he would need some assistance with the program. He also announced that their would be no ram test sale this year and the Keystone sale had been moved from the Farm Show Complex, Harrisburg, to the Carlisle Fairgrounds.

Jack Fischer, Dog Law officer in this area, was the featured morning speaker. He spoke on the rights sheep owners have concerning the intrusion of stray dogs and damages done by dogs.

Sally Young, Canonsburg, was guest afternoon speaker, advising the group how to better direct market wool and the pelts. She told of many different directions to go with marketing their fleeces. She showed several samples of wool done commercially and at home which was washed and carded and ready to spin. Stressing fleeces must be clean. "A little more effort brings back a better return as premium prices will be paid for cleaner wool," she said. Hand spinning is the newest market for wool outlets, according to Mrs. Young. She also noted quilting has picked up as a craft for the wool and sheep growers.

NEWARK, Del. — Chemical control of weeds, insects and diseases is a critical part of today's farm operation. This makes the low-pressure field sprayer one of the most used pieces of equipment on the farm — and perhaps one of the most abused.

Each pesticide has its own method of application. For instance, herbicides (weedkillers) can be applied preplant contact or incorporated, pre-emergence, post-emergence over the top or directed, and selectively. Each method may require a different sprayer set-up and calibration, says University of Delaware extension power and machinery specialist Tom Williams.

Calibration is the key to successful results with pesticides, Williams says. Apply too little chemical and you get no control. Apply too much chemical and you may damage the crop as well as increase production costs.

A survey of field sprayer operators made by agricultural engineers at the University of Nebraska showed that only one out of four operators was applying chemicals within plus or minus 5 percent of the intended rate. Improper or lack of calibration accounted for 78 percent of the errors. Errors ranged from 59 percent under to 83 percent over the intended rate. Checks on granular insecticide applicators give similar results.

Pesticide costs on no-till corn could exceed $36 per acre. But applying these chemicals 50 percent above the intended rate would cost an additional $8 per acre, a cost few farmers can afford today.

The Delaware Cooperative Extension Service is planning a calibration workshop to demonstrate sprayer maintenance and calibration techniques. The meeting will be held on Thursday, March 1, beginning at 10 a.m. at the Delaware State Fairgrounds on U.S. 13 in Harrington. Calibration techniques for PTO and ground-driven sprayers, granular applicators, corn planters, row fertilizer, and grain drills will be covered. The meeting will count toward recertification for pesticide applicators.

Md. to hold massive mastitis program

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Extension dairy and veterinary science specialists at the University of Maryland are gearing up for a massive statewide educational campaign which, it is hoped, will involve the largest turnout of Maryland dairy farmers in nearly 60 years.

Concentrating on mastitis control in milk cows, the one-day program will use modern communications equipment like closed-circuit television and conference telephone hook-ups to reach an estimated 800 dairy farmers gathered at 24 locations.

The program will take place on four consecutive days during the first full week in March. A separate one-day meeting is scheduled March 15 at Salisbury, on Maryland's lower Eastern Shore.

The move-about, multi-media event will kick off the second year

— Phase II — of a three-year project for "Profitable and Efficient Production," which is being sponsored by the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service.

Dubbed as PEP, the three-year educational endeavor is intended to help Maryland dairy farmers face an uncertain cost-price future. Nutrition, or proper feeding of dairy cows, received primary emphasis last year at winter educational meetings for dairy farmers throughout the state.

This year, the emphasis will be on maintaining and improving milk quality — primarily through mastitis control. So the annual meeting of the Maryland Mastitis Council — normally held in March — will not be scheduled this year, for the first time in 19 years.

The mastitis control and milking management format is patterned after a similar program which has already been successful in Nebraska, according to Dr. Robert R. Peters, an Extension dairy science specialist at the University of Maryland in College Park. The Nebraska undertaking has gained national recognition as a model Extension educational program.

When the Nebraska mastitis meetings were held, about one-third of that state's dairy farms were represented. Peters hopes for one-half of Maryland's dairy farms each sending at least one person to next month's meetings. He notes that 60 percent of Maryland's dairy cows are concentrated in only three counties — Washington, Frederick and Carroll.

Thanks to co-sponsorship by all five of the dairy marketing cooperative organizations operating in Maryland, noon meals for next month's Maryland mastitis meetings will be provided free for co-op patrons. However, there will be a $5 charge per family or dairy farm for registration expense and a packet of educational leaflets. The deadline for advance registration is March 1.

Promotional brochures containing a registration form are available from 4-H club members or county Extension agricultural agents for $5. This covers the cost of each educational packet, with $1 going to the local 4-H club. Persons who register for the meetings without going through a local 4-H club may designate a club to receive the $1 commission from their registration fee.

Grange names Avian consultant

HARRISBURG — State Grange Master Charles Wismer announces the appointment of Ronald E. Shaffer of Manheim as a consultant to the Grange on poultry issues and the avian influenza problem.

As consultant, Shaffer will represent the State Grange in Lancaster and Lebanon counties, assisting family poultry farmers with poultry-related concerns and helping them to obtain optimum assistance for financial and other problems brought on by the avian flu outbreak. He also will testify for the Grange, as needed, on poultry issues and will continually advise the Grange staff on legislation relating to poultry farming and avian flu.

Shaffer belongs to Elizabethtown Grange in Lancaster County and will serve on the Grange's Poultry Advisory Committee. His extensive knowledge of the poultry industry was mainly acquired through experience. He grew up on a farm in Lancaster County where he raised turkeys and game birds. In 1976, he became general manager of the Dutch Dozens Farms complex in Lancaster County, where he is now under contract to manage and supply labor for the 80,000 layer operation.

Shaffer is familiar with the avian flu problem, after surviving two outbreaks in his operation last year. In July he lost between 1500 and 2000 birds to the disease before it was recognized as being of epidemic proportions in the state. Again in November, he lost 10 percent of the flock to the disease and the other 90 percent were depopulated by the federal government.

Since he recovered the poultry operation from the first outbreak, Shaffer has, on his own initiative, been active on the avian flu issue on both the Harrisburg and Washington legislative scenes. He shares the Grange's primary concern for the future of the small family poultry farmer.

"It's the family farmer who is really getting hurt," Shaffer said. "The disease not only is devastating to the poultry, but it also has emotional effects on the farmer and his family. When you've been depopulated and your chicken houses are empty, it really bothers you."

State Master Charles Wismer said, "I have found Ron to be very aggressive and sincere in his efforts to help poultry farmers through this crisis. His poultry management experience and excellent rapport with farmers will enable him to be a valuable asset to the Grange out in the field."

Wismer said the State Grange offers its assistance to any farmers who have lost birds either directly to the virus or have had birds slaughtered to prevent spread of the disease from September 1 up until the November 9 federal emergency declaration in applying for state financial assistance. Farmers can contact Ron Shaffer at (717) 665-6913, OR the State Grange office at (717) 234-5001

Shine announced a Class II milk price of $12.10 per hundredweight for January 1984 and a butterfat differential of 16.2 cents for the month. The Class II price was down 9 cents from December and the butterfat differential dropped three-tenths of a cent.

The March Class I price and the January Class II price are based on the January 1984 Minnesota-Wisconsin manufacturing milk price of $12.05 per hundredweight at a 3.5 percent butterfat content.

The USDA reported that the wholesale price of Grade A butter at Chicago for January was $1.4044 per pound and the nonfat dry milk price was $.9116 per pound, f.o.b. plants in the Chicago area.

Morocco buys wheat

RABAT, Morocco — Sec. of Agriculture John R. Block has signed an agreement with Morocco under which the United States will finance the sale of $25 million in U.S. wheat to that country in 1984 under the P.L. 480, Title I program.

Block said under terms of the agreement, Morocco plans to conduct agricultural self-help measures to improve the production, storage and distribution of farm commodities. The measures contained in the agreement will be used to support studies relating to agricultural policies and to plan and implement policy changes. These measures include studies of production in rainfed areas and actions to advance agricultural research and extension efforts.

Today's agreement follows the announcement on Dec. 15, of a $244 million blended credit program with Morocco for the purchase of U.S. wheat. That program included $209.4 million in credit guarantees and $34.6 million in interest-free government credits. Sales of U.S. Farm products to Morocco in fiscal 1983 were $218 million, chiefly wheat, corn and tobacco.

Breed switch fits into diversion program

Feeding changes and longer dry periods planned by Martin family to cut production

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS

Staff Correspondent

CHAMBERSBURG — "Farmers are going to have to take care of the complete process and become more involved," says Lester Martin, Guilford Springs Road, Chambersburg. Referring to milk marketing and the new dairy bill, he adds that "we must see to getting it sold."

Lester and Ruth Martin and their family at Pleasant Valley Jerseys, were one of the 67 dairies in Franklin County who signed up for the dairy diversion program. Martin feels that dairymen can no longer ignore the surplus. He is disturbed by the lack of concern shown by many farmers who keep increasing cow numbers without looking into other alternatives.

"It's a step in cutting the milk supply down, even if some parts of the program are not ideal," Martin explains.

Martin began his operation almost 20 years ago with more than 100 Holsteins. The major change in his dairy began in 1977 when he needed more cows and found some Jerseys available at a good price.

"After we got them, everyone liked them," Martin says of his family's acceptance of the Jerseys. In addition to the feed savings with the smaller animals, the family appreciates the calmer disposition and the ease of handling the Jerseys.

"We don't hunt for extra work here," Martin explains. So, over the past several years they have been selling the Holsteins and replacing them with Jerseys. With up to 170 milking animals, Martin says it was becoming overcrowded in his freestall barn. There was too much pushing at the feed bunk. Besides, he explains, "there were too many cows to milk." The Martins utilize a 12 stanchion milking barn equipped with a Boumatic pipeline system.

Today the Martin herd consists of 125 milking animals with over 100 Jerseys. With the cow breed numbers reversed from what they were a few years ago, Martin is 20 percent below his base.

"We didn't have to do much to qualify," Martin states about the dairy diversion program.

"We are going to be penalized on test," he admits. His test went from a base of 4.3% to his current average of 5.3%. Although his milk production has decreased a great deal, the higher test means more butterfat premiums in the milk check. Also, protein premiums are becoming a reality in many dairies and he would be able to take advantage of them, while doing his part in cutting the surplus.

"It's such a relaxed atmosphere when you don't have to push for higher production," Martin states. Instead of culling any more cows from his herd, Martin has chosen to reduce labor and feed costs. Cows are fed twice a day instead of the previous four times a day. Grain was decreased 40 percent. Dry periods were increased to 90 days instead of 60 days. Depending on what the daily production amounts to, Martin will either cut the feed rations further or increase dry periods to 120 days.

The Martins use 300 acres to grow their own feeds. The rations include corn silage, haylage, high moisture shelled corn, grass hay, and minerals. The ration is balanced for a maintenance program, feeding the high group for 35 pounds milk per day and the low group for 25 pounds milk per day.

Pleasant Valley Jerseys is a family operation and the family backs Martin's decision to participate in the new milk program.

"It'll hurt the cow's records, but the cows will last longer," says 19-year-old Doug Martin.

Doug is the herdsman of this dairy. He takes care of the breeding, registration paperwork, sire selections, and herd health.

"We'd rather win a couple of shows in the summer than a production award," Doug states.

"Doug likes type," states his 16-year-old sister, Tina. "He loves his cows," she adds. Tina and her older sister, Karla, do the milking chores. They smile as they tell how particular Doug is about the animals. But, they are involved, too. Twenty-year-old Karla was the 1981 Pennsylvania State Jersey queen and currently serves as the coordinator for the contest. They both continue to show their animals and Karla is looking forward to nursing school in the fall. Twelve-year-old Denise helps her father do the feeding and also helps to take the manure out. "I watch the gates," Denise says. Martin's wife, Ruth, raises the calves. Calves are raised in hutches and fed milk for three months, depending on their size. "As long as she's the calf manager, everything goes good," Martin says.

The family is very active in the showing with their Jerseys. Doug is a veteran fitting and showing champion and has led the Martin team in winning the premier exhibitor honors at the farm show for the past two years. All the children have also had the honor of having their animals selected to show in the Pennsylvania state herd at the national show in Louisville, Ky. They show at five fairs each summer and their Jerseys include many champions.

Although big on type, the Martins do not ignore production. Much of the herd is bred artificially and only bulls with a high PD that also sire high functional type are used. Some island breeding is also utilized to keep with the refined Jersey type.

After the 15-month program ends, Martin admits he will probably increase feeding, but cow numbers will stay the same. "I think it will have a small effect," he says of the entire program. "A 15-month program isn't going to solve a ten-year-old problem," he sates. "I look for the 15 cent deduction to do more than all the rest. If advertising is going to pay, it certainly will through this program," Martin says.

Martin enjoys promoting the Jersey breed in his county and participates in several local dairy promotions. He admits that he does not like the provision in the new program that disallows any selling of breeding stock but says that it's a "one program fits all." "What was required for different people to go into it wasn't equal," he says. "The purebred guy is taking it over the knuckles," he added.

In spite of the uncertain dairy outlook, the Martin family looks forward to spending more time enjoying their Jerseys. Although they cannot sell their stock at the consignment sales of their breed, they continue to participate in their breed's activities and sales and promote the Jersey breed wherever they can.

King-sized memories along tanbark trail

BY JOYCE BUPP

DELTA — Imagine being five years old and swept away from your family in the middle of those massive crowds of visitors at the State Farm Show.

That's exactly what happened ten years ago to Lesley King, daughter of Paul and Kathy King, R2 Delta.

While Kathy was tending the Kingway show string, her daughter asked if she could cross the outer aisle, just a couple yards across, to where Paul was clipping one of the family's entries.

In that short distance, the elbow-to-elbow spectators carried away the little girl, who wasn't reunited with her parents until an uneasy hour later.

Then there was the time when the family was hauling heifers the 40 miles north from their southeastern York County farm to the York Fairgrounds and the pickup's gearshift parted company with the rest of the vehicle.

Those are just two of the humorous - now, but not then - memories of cattle showing that you won't find in the pages of the family cattle scrapbook that Kathy King adds to from year to year.

Even though Paul grew up in a registered Holstein breeding family, and first hit the showing when he was just small, he still likes to remember that it was 20 years until he won his first blue ribbon. That landmark event came in 1967, when the couple topped their local show's senior heifer calf division with their homebred Kingway Empress Melinda.

That blue ribbon has multiplied into a collection of awards on their office wall that includes five Farm Show premier breeder banners, plus one taken for exhibitor. Among the several grand champion awards from the county's Holstein shows and York Fair are a few earned by son Dave's 4-H entries over the past years.

This year's Farm Show, the Kings 15th at the Harrisburg competition, added more pages to their scrapbook, when two of the family's entries claimed purple ribbon honors.

Lesley's aged 4-H cow, Kingstead Ari Lee, won the grand champion honors in the junior division and their homebred Kingway Marvex Snowbird got the judges' nod as reserve senior and grand champion.

Snowbird, by Lawcrest Marvex, is the daughter of a "surprise gift" cow Paul purchased at a sale several years ago for his wife. The

Lancaster to hold conservation tillage meeting

LANCASTER — Lancaster County will hold its 3rd Annual Conservation Tillage Meeting on Tuesday, Feb. 28, from 9 A.M. to 3 P.M. at the Farm and Home Center, 1383 Arcadia Road.

The emphasis this year will be on successful no-till corn planting, even on farms on which considerable manure is applied. Four farmer panel members who collectively plant over 2500 acres of no-till corn each year will discuss how they produce equal or better yields on their no-till acreage as compared to conventionally planted fields.

The meeting is sponsored by the Lancaster County Conservation District, the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension Service and Supporting Businesses of Lancaster County. A $3.00 registration charge will be collected to partially defray the cost of lunch.

Farmers living in neighboring counties are invited to attend.

Conservation District Chairman, Aaron Z. Stauffer, will open the meeting, followed with remarks by County Commissioner, James E. Huber, on "The Need for Erosion Control in Lancaster County". "The Soil Conservation Service's Role from a State Perspective" will be discussed by Robert T. Heidecker, State Resource Conservationist, USDA.

The Keynote Speaker will be introduced by William Hunt, Deputy State conservationist, USDA.

The Keynote presentation will be made by Raymond J. Adamski, District Conservationist from the Knox County, Ohio Conservation District. On March 15, 1983, Adamski was named one of ten conservation professionals in the Nation to receive the Gulf Oil Conservation Award for his very effective efforts to promote no-till corn and soybean planting in Knox County, Ohio. Knox County leads all other Ohio Counties with 62% of the corn in the county planted in no-till. Adamski will explain how it was done.

"Inspect Problems and Their Control" will be discussed by Arnold Lueck, Lancaster County Extension Agent.

"Control of Problem Weeds in a Conservation Tillage Program" is the topic assigned to John Yocum, Superintendent, Penn State's Research Lab, Landisville.

"Observations of Conservation

Tillage Practices" will be discussed by John D. Hauck, Chevron Chemical Company.

Gerald Heistand, Lancaster Conservation District Tillage Specialist, will explain the details of the County Corn Planter Assistance Program.

Wrap-up and questions will be handled by Robert E. Gregory, District Administrator.

Adjournment is planned for 3 p.m. allowing additional time to visit exhibits of conservation planting and tillage equipment placed on display by interested dealers.

Farm Show marked the debut onto the tanbark trail for this outstanding three-year-old, with an impressive production record of 19,537 milk, 3.8 percent test and 717 fat in 305 days.

Her dam, "Rockside King Snowdrift, was bred by Chester Countian Jefferson Yoder, set the pattern for the family's showing style. Snowdrift has won champion honors in the past at the York Holstein show and topped her 3-and-4-year-old dry class at the Farm Show a few years ago.

Another of her daughters, by the King's popular Kingway Elevation Very bull, was also in January's Farm Show lineup. Kingway Very Sugar, owned by Lesley for 4-H project work, took third in her senior yearling category.

Exhibiting their outstanding registered Holsteins is truly a family event for the Kings and their children.

And, as Kathy King might have predicted, in light of the typically unusual events that crop up during a show week, their first grandchild arrived just as the Farm Show cattle hauling was at its peak.

Oldest son Peter and his wife Tracey became the parents of a little girl, Krista, in time for the Kings to celebrate their new grandparenthood status, along with those purple ribbons. Peter, a veteran exhibitor during his 4-H years, is now employed by a Maryland dairy operation.

"We live a good life," agree this long-time farm couple, who are quick to credit their enjoyment of farming in large part to their registered Holstein activities.

Kathy, a "town girl", married Paul when he was managing a commercial dairy farm in his home Montgomery County, Md. His family continues to breed their well-known Kingstead bloodlines on the Gaithersburg farm where he was raised.

When Rockville Holstein breeder August Nagel decided it was time to retire from the dairy business, it was Paul King he approached one day, with an offer to sell the young dairyman his well-bred Redgate herd. Of the 41 cows and nine bred heifers purchased by the Kings in the Nagel herd, about two-thirds were purebreds.

While Nagel's farm had been sold - and today is a golf course - the Kings were able to rent it for a few years, and then move to another rented farm in Frederick County, near Urbana.

In 1968, the Kings purchased their present farm near Delta, rolling land on the plateau that drops off to the Susquehanna River, not far to the east.

Among those nine heifers purchased with the Nagel herd was Redgate Leader Victoria, an individual that developed over the ensuing years into one of the breed's outstanding type cows.

Victoria became the first Pennsylvania cow to be scored EX-4E, and only the 11th in the nation to attain that level of classification recognition.

When her daughter, Kingway Regal Victory, matched that achievement, the two became the first EX-4E daughter-dam pair in the state, and the second in the U.S.

Later, Victory surpassed her own understanding dam with her 1979 scoring, at age 15, of EX-5E.

The genetic legacy left by the heifer acquisition of Victoria today reaches into thousands of domestic and foreign herds through Victory's son, by Elevation, Kingway Elevation Very.

Very, owned by Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, continues to be the highest ranked butterfat percentage bull in the Holstein summaries, with over 700 daughters already on his proof. His high fat percentage test has made him extremely popular among European breeders, and made Kingway Farms a frequent stop for visiting foreign breeders.

The Kings presently have 11 Very daughters in the milking string, with 20 more coming along in the heifer pens. One of the most promising two-year-olds is another of Lesley's 4-H animals, Kingway Very Jade. Jade scored VG-85 on her first classification, with a 2-year-old record over 18,500 milk and 800 fat on a 4.4 percent test.

Ten years ago, a new stall barn was built to replace the farm's original milking parlor system and to offer more complete individual care to the King's typey herd. Kingway has earned the Progressive Breeder Registry award for the past seven consecutive years, and scored a Breed Age Average (BAA) of 106.3 on 1983 classification.

Daughters of their own-bred Kingway Elevation Very, now at Atlantic Breeders, include this Farm Show reserve champ that Paul King readies for milking.

During their first year of milking the Redgate herd, the herd averaged about 13,000 milk and 500 fat, putting them in Montgomery County's fourth place spot on DHIA.

The 55 head-herd continues to be high on the production list in York County, with a rolling herd average of about 17,600 milk and 700 fat.

Kathy and Paul are both quick to play down their accomplishments in the registered Holstein industry and Paul will turn away any questions about why he is in farming with a broad grin and the answer that he's too "dumb" to do anything else.

Still, what they both want to do is just continue to breed their pedigreed-production bloodlines, promote their product and head for the tanbark trail, expecting that the most unexpected events will probably happen somewhere along the way.

JOHN DEERE DISK DRAFT TESTS PROVE

WE DON'T HAVE THE PULL YOU THINK WE DO

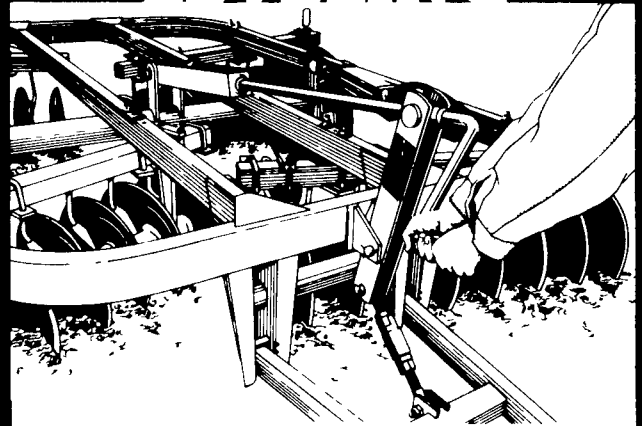

The chart below shows the results of disk draft tests John Deere engineers ran in Illinois, Tennessee and Kansas against our major full-line competitor. In the Kansas test we also took on two of the major short-line disks. These tests help dispel the rumor that our disks pull harder. Sophisticated computer equipment accurately measured the results of side-by-side runs. The drawbar pull required by our disk at maximum gang angle was less than, or equal to, that of the competition. At no time did we pull harder. When we went to minimum gang angle (the competition's fixed gang angle couldn't match this ideal adjustment for less-aggressive seed-bed tillage work), we required far less pull. Stop by and let us give you all the details on these draft tests. And we can point out all the features that make John Deere Level-Action disks your best buy.

Ag seminar stresses dairy, livestock efficiency

BY LAURA ENGLAND

BLUE BALL — Increasing profitability in the feedlot and in the dairy herd, and determining how much debt an individual farm can support were the topics discussed at an agriculture seminar held Wednesday in Blue Ball.

Sponsored by the Blue Ball National Bank, Lancaster County, the seminar was open to farmers and featured speakers Cheryl Fairbairn, Chester County extension agent, Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County extension agent, Fred A. Hughes, Penn State farm management specialist and Senator Noah Wenger of the 36th

District of Lancaster and Chester counties.

The seminar opened with a talk on factors affecting profitability in the feedlot by Cheryl Fairbairn. These factors include market prices, the farm debt load and steer performance in the feedlot.

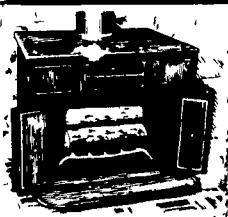

Most importantly, Fairbairn said, is that farm operators are excellent managers and know the ultimate importance of steer performance in the feedlot. "He knows that steers must gain weight as rapidly as possible," she said, "and in the least amount of time on the least amount of feed."

"The less weight a steer gains each day the longer he must

Residue Avoidance

Pennsylvania has one of the highest contamination rates for drug residues in bob veal calves, according to Hutchinson. About 47 percent of the Northeast's sulfa drug contamination cases occur in Pennsylvania, although some of these animals come from out of state for slaughter.

"We need to address this problem (of drug residues) and get our act cleaned up," Hutchinson cautioned dairymen.

Most slaughter plants now test for drug residues in meat by performing the STOP test (Swab Test On Premises). The most commonly occurring residue problem is sulfa drugs in bob veal calves. Bob veal calves are dairy calves sent to slaughter at less than one month of age. Sulfa drugs generally require a 20-30 day withdrawal period for drug residues to clear.

The LAST test (Live Animal Swab Test) is now available. It provides the producer with a quick method to detect the presence of bacteria-inhibiting substances in the urine or milk of the live animal before it is marketed.

Research has shown that calves fed milk from a cow that has been treated with antibiotics will have residues of the drug in their meat. Therefore, Hutchinson recommended not to feed milk from treated cows to calves that will be sent to market until the milk is free of drug residues. He reminded dairymen to read the drug label for the recommended withdrawal time. There is no apparent detriment to feeding milk from a cow treated with antibiotics to a calf that will remain in the herd.

Hutchinson suggested avoiding the use of antibiotics as a preventive measure in newborn calves. To keep calves healthy he recommended:

-Get colostrum into calves immediately.

-Calve cows in a clean, dry area.

Vaccination Programs at Calving Time

Hutchinson also spoke on establishing and updating effective vaccination programs. Because there are new vaccines available for cattle diseases, he urged dairymen to review their present vaccination program.

He recommended using the following vaccines in all herds: IBR-PI3, Brucella, and Lepto-5 strain.

He recommended using the following vaccines if your herd is at risk, (if the disease is in your herd or in the area): BVD, Vibrio, Pinkeye, Coli, and Haemophilus pneumonia.

He said he would probably not recommend the use of vaccines for: Clostridia, virus calf scours, Chlamydia, and Staph.

Effective use of vaccines can be made by following these pointers:

1. With your veterinarian, develop the right vaccination program for your farm.

2. Review and update the vaccine program at least twice a year.

3. Don't use unnecessary vaccines.

4. Buy fresh, refrigerated vaccine from a reliable source.

5. Keep vaccine refrigerated until use.
6. Follow the label directions exactly.
7. Use sterile, disposable syringes that have not been used for other drugs.
8. Discard outdated vaccine or opened bottles that cannot be used right away.
9. Don't mix two vaccines unless so indicated by manufacturer's directions.
10. Don't vaccinate sick or stressed cattle.

Linda Scibilia, graduate student, dept. of dairy science
Dairy Calf Energy Needs in Cold Weather

Ms. Scibilia, a native of New York State, has been researching the affect of energy in the ration on average daily gain of calves under one month of age that are exposed to cold weather.

The calves in her experiment were fed milk replacer with varying levels of fat. They were measured for average daily gain (ADG).

Research has demonstrated that calves need extra dietary energy in winter if they are housed in the cold, in order to maintain a desirable ADG.

The National Research Council recommends 10 percent fat in milk replacers or 1.71 megacalories of metabolizable energy per pound.

Ms. Scibilia's research suggests that this level may not be adequate in cold weather.

Jerry Jones, dairy Extension specialist, VPI

Dry Cow Care and Management

Problems occurring during the dry period tend to show up later during the following lactation, according to Jones. For this reason dry cow care is extremely important.

"Length of the dry period has a definite affect on production of the following lactation," said Jones. "The ideal length is 50-70 days."

Jones proposed that cows should be fed on an individual basis during the dry period just as they are during lactation. Each cow has different nutritional needs that should be met. Cows that are over condition should be fed to reduce weight before calving to avoid the problems associated with the "fat cow syndrome."

Body condition during the dry period also affects production. Diseases associated with the cow at calving are, milk fever, ketosis, retained placenta, metritis, displace abomasum and indigestion.

Jones outlined nine points for improve dry cow care:

1. Separate from milkers.
2. Balance ration.
3. Avoid diet changes at calving.
4. Restrict corn silage and grain.
5. 50 to 70 day dry period.
6. Keep cows open 100 to 120 days.
7. Provide exercise lot.

8. Provide good water supply.
9. Worm if needed.

Larry Muller, professor of dairy science

Feeding the Dry Cow for Daylight Calving

Muller is conducting research that may allow dairymen to sleep easier at night. He is trying to determine if it is possible to induce cows to calve during daylight hours by controlling their feeding during the dry period.

Most farmers under normal feeding conditions have an even distribution of calving times, Muller reported. Some research indicates that you can increase the percentage of daylight calving by restricting feeding to one time per day during daylight hours.

Muller reported that his research has found that, one time per day feeding of dry cows between 5 - 7 p.m., starting two weeks before calving will result in a 10-15 percent increase in daylight calving.

Muller said, he is looking for dairymen in Pennsylvania who would be willing to cooperate with him on research in their herds on this subject.

MAKE MORE MILK. CUT FEED COST. OR BOTH!

ASK ME TO BALANCE YOUR MILK COW RATIONS BY COMPUTER. ON YOUR FARM. IN MINUTES. FREE!

Formulating dairy rations by computer makes sense.

A properly programmed computer can make complicated calculations in a second or two. It can take into consideration nutritive values of all the things cows eat and tell you how much of each ingredient to feed to answer your cows' body maintenance and milk production needs.

But, a computer is expensive. It takes skilled, trained nutritionists to set up the program and a specialized operator to make it work.

With McNess' Maxi-Milk™ program you can use our computer . . . free. There's no waiting period.

You tell me how big your cows are, what you're feeding (or would like to feed), how much milk you expect your cows to produce.

I'll make one phone call . . . from your phone . . . and show you a better, more productive lower cost way to feed your cows!

Northern Tier holds Extension meeting

BY JANE BRESEE
Staff Correspondent

WYSOX — Mrs. Mary Grim, of New Berlin, Adams County, president of the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperative Extension Associations, was featured speaker at the 7th Annual Northern Tier Regional Cooperative Extension Annual Meeting held at the Wysox Presbyterian Church, Feb. 10.

A most dynamic and enthusiastic personality, Mrs. Grim defined the basic purpose of the Cooperative Extension to be educational - teaching people to teach other people to help themselves.

"However, many people do not know about us," she stated, "because we give away education, not dollars and cents!"

Mrs. Jean Castrogiovanni, member of the Extension Executive Committee from Susquehanna County, presented an illustrated talk about Cooperative Extension Funding. Over $20 million is spent in Pennsylvania for the Cooperative Extension Service, she related. Of this, $1 1/4 million is spent in the 5-county northern tier region. Forty nine percent is from federal funds, 6% from other sources such as grants, 16% from local sources, and 29% from state funds.

Gary Green, president of the Bradford County Extension Executive Committee, moderator for the all day meeting, introduced a panel of county commissioners: William Gannon, Bradford County; Mrs. Vivian Beeman, Sullivan County; Jack Masters, Susquehanna County; Brian Edgcomb, Tioga County; and Robert Barzilowski, Wyoming County.

The County Extension Directors were asked to state what they expected from the Commissioners. Murray Fisk, Agent from Wyoming County replied that "all counties in Pennsylvania don't have the good rapport with the county commissioners that we in this region have. Some people have never really understood the commitment that county commissioners have to the Extension Service. It is a continuing process of keeping the commissioners and people informed. Communication is the key!"

Roger Madigan, state General Assembly member from the 110th District, spoke briefly following the luncheon.

"The good news", he said, "is that the governor presented a budget with a 7% overall increase to all higher educational institutions."

Orville Yoder, Extension

Speakers at the Northern Tier Regional Extension annual meeting include Roger Madigan, State Assemblyman; and Mrs. Mary Grim, president of the State Council of Cooperative Extension Associations.

EDB alternatives listed in Pa.

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture banned the agricultural sale and use of ethylene dibromide (EDB) in Pennsylvania on Feb. 3. This action dictates the use of alternative products for fumigation purposes, according to state Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell.

"The Feb. 3 order by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the state Agriculture Department suspended the already limited sale and use of EDB in the Commonwealth," Hallowell said. Only two products containing EDB had previously been registered for use in Pennsylvania during 1984.

"Many adequate substitute products are on the market and registered for use in Pennsylvania," Hallowell said. "Few Pennsylvania farmers or agribusinesses have used EDB in the last five to seven years, with many already using these other products to satisfy their needs."

The Department's Bureau of Plant Industry has compiled a list of products which serve as qualified substitutes for EDB. That list includes:

Adding more cows is not the answer in Pa.

UNIVERSITY PARK — The number of dairy cows in Pennsylvania continues to increase although most other states show a decrease in the number of cows. This increase is partially the result of farmers adding cows to increase profits, but this method of money making is only short term and can not be continued if small dairy farmers want to stay in business, says Jack Kirkland, Penn State Extension agricultural economist.

In 1972, the total number of dairy cows in the state was 684,000. This number has risen to 730,000 in 1982. The top ten milk producing counties housed 50 percent of the cows, and since the number of farms in the state has decreased in the last ten years, these figures show that the dairy industry is becoming more concentrated and many farms are adding more cows.

Many times, farmers in the state increase the number of cows because that is the easiest way to increase production and profit, Kirkland says. But this method is not suited for Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania is mostly made up of small family-owned farms, he says, and many are dairy farms because that industry is best for limited acres. On these family farms, the owners may not spend as much time as they might on making internal changes to better management practices, so to compete they increase production by adding cows.

But because of natural limitations in the state, this method will not work and more efficient farms are still the best answer.

Pennsylvania farmers are not able to have the kind of super-farms found in California and the south because the cold climate makes it necessary to house the animals indoors for much of the year. The state also has a limited amount of land to grow feed, so to expand the farm too much, the farmer will probably have to buy at least part of his feed.

"You can't be profitable if you have to buy your feed," Kirkland says.

Adding more cows may increase profits, but it will not decrease costs. Even though farmers may be making more money, they will also be spending more on feed and farm machinery and with the surplus of milk the country has today, prices of milk will probably not go up enough to cover these additional expenses.

"Being more efficient is the answer when the price of milk goes down," Kirkland says. "You have to have a cut in cost or you will go out of business."

Even the new government bill that pays the farmer to reduce production will not benefit many farmers, Kirkland says. The people who will benefit most from this plan are those who have not had increases in production in recent years, or people who were thinking about selling out.

For the rest of the farmers, Kirkland says he sees continued increases in the amount of milk produced.

To help these farmers, Kirkland says he sees a continued need for research to let the farmers make more income per cow with less cost.

operations during a time when the hog cycle is turning up; other lost breeding stock sales on gilts and premiums for market gilts and added expenses, such as cleanup and disinfecting and higher trucking fees due to the disease.

In addition to these tangible economic losses are other intangibles such as the blood lines developed through a breeding program and the time expended in attaining these lines.

Hog producers are asking why some form of indemnification can't be arranged under the mandatory depopulation that would at least cover the breeding value of the stock and help reduce the large losses being incurred.

Further complicating the financial picture are the significant losses that have been sustained by producers this past season when corn yields suffered due to the drought.

And after depopulation, a hog operator has no guarantee that his new herd can't become reinfected since there are no regulations restricting the movement of feeder pigs into Pennsylvania or of the movement of vehicles, such as feed trucks or custom haulers, between farms or between auctions and farms.

The PRV virus is believed to remain alive for up to four days in some kinds of feed such as whole corn and for up to two days in manure. Thus, it might easily be transported to farms where herds even have no direct contact with outside animals.

In the most recent breeding operation outbreak, only four animals were introduced into the herd in the past two years. These came from a PRV-free herd, which was even revaluated only three months after the animals were introduced.

Also, since there was no movement of animals between buildings on the breeding operation and pseudorabies was found in all areas of the farm, there is further support to the belief that the virus is transmitted by humans or other carriers through such means as the manure.

It is expected that the Pennsylvania Pork Producers will be meeting in the near future on the state's forced depopulation policy without indemnification to determine if any changes can be made or if any assistance can be found for those hog operations, particularly the breeders, being so hard hit by the eradication program.

If you are considering glass-lined storage in the near future, this meeting will be most informative and profitable.

The meeting will be directed toward the counties listed on the map.

GLASS-LINED STORAGE SYSTEMS NOW AVAILABLE TO FARMERS IN THIS AREA

(1) CORRUGLASS™ BINS:

For high moisture grain Long incorporates the strength of corrugated steel with a protective glass-fused-to-steel coating to produce the lowest cost, glass-lined, oxygen limiting storage system for high moisture grain that you can buy. Breather bags and choice of bottom unloader with tapered, power-driven sweep augers, or standard 6" auger unloader with clean-out sweep arm, complete this outstanding storage system.

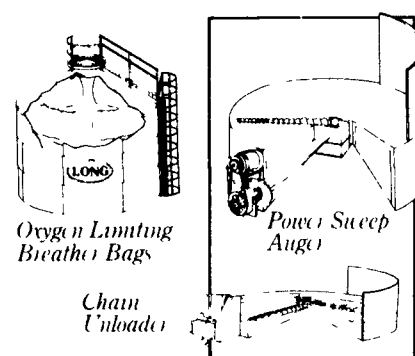

(2) OXYGEN LIMITING, GLASS-LINED SILOS:

These smooth wall silos are constructed of heavy gauge steel with a glass fused to-steel coating permanently bonded to both sides of the sheets to give maximum protection against acids inside the silo and elements outside. Long's glass-lined silos are designed for both high-moisture grain and medium-moisture forages. Breather bags and bottom unloader with tapered, power-driven sweep auger for grain storage or heavy duty chain unloader for forage and grain storage complete this system.

OTHER FEATURES:

Both storage systems feature glass-fused-to-steel wall and roof panels for maximum feed protection, and radius drawn roofs with 30.5 degree pitch for extra strength. Breather bags, suspended in the roof, provide an oxygen limiting environment for feed. The feed stays fresher longer and is more digestible, more palatable, and more nutritious. These systems are designed to cut feed losses — both quality and quantity, and allow growers to carry more animals on the same number of acres.

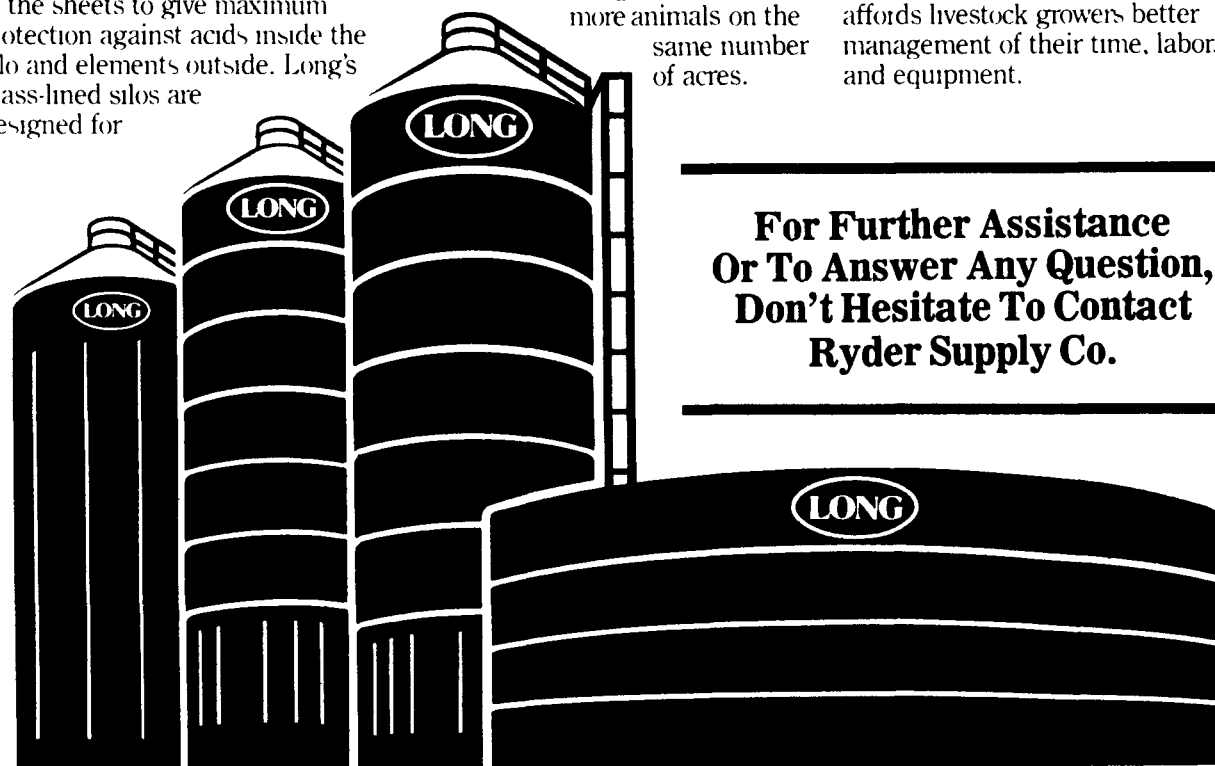

Oxygen Limiting Breather Bags

Chain Unloader

(3) STOR-LIX® LIQUID MANURE STORAGE SYSTEMS:

Stor-Lix tanks are constructed of glass-fused-to-steel walls sheets for protection and durability. Long's Stor-Lix system helps to preserve the nutrient value of manure, helps to protect the environment; and affords livestock growers better management of their time, labor, and equipment.

remain in the feedlot. The longer he stays in the feedlot the more interest the operator is paying on his borrowed money."

Fairbairn said a good cattle manager is aware of these factors and keeps records to help determine the performance of each feedlot group. Records farmers keep include average daily gain and feed efficiency. Fairbairn presented formulas and presented examples of determining these factors.

Glenn Shirk shared with the dairymen in the group ways to increase cash flow. He broke these into the following categories: feeding considerations, feeding high producing cows, reducing somatic cell count, maintaining the fat test, avoiding long dry periods, feeding fewer heifers and calving heifers early.

Under these categories, Shirk presented management tips farmers can follow to get the best production efficiency from their cows. Shirk also outlined steps to control mastitis such as dipping each teat after milking with a germicidal teat dip, preparing cows properly for milking, and making sure all equipment is working properly and that housing is clean.

Speaking on the debt carrying capacity of a farm was Fred Hughes who said that "more and more agriculture representatives will be in the banking business." This trend is important, Hughes said, because farmers are agribusinessmen and need trained people to look at their businesses.

In determining the debt carrying capacity of a farm, Hughes said that farmers need to know the amount of cash available - the amount of money coming into the family. "You're going to have to know it," Hughes said of the family living expenses.

To help farmers determine their debt capacity, which farmers need to know when considering loans, Hughes gave examples of short and long term loans and the interest calculated for each. He stressed the need for farmers to "sit down at home and know how much debt load you can carry."

"Don't over borrow more than what you're farm can uphold," he said.

Avian flu

holding steady

LANCASTER — With the outbreak of avian influenza in a 400,000 bird layer flock last week, the USDA-imposed quarantine zone was expanded to include 5,700 square miles. It was previously set at 5,100 square miles.

The quarantine zone was expanded to include the 400,000 bird flock located in Fredericksburg in Lebanon County although no other outbreaks were diagnosed in that area. Task force spokesman Chuck Williams said that the number of positive flocks was holding steady, and as of Wednesday, 273 flocks had been declared positive. This total includes 11.1 million birds appraised at $22 million.

Also, as of Wednesday, 125 premises received approval for cleaning and disinfecting, Williams said. Forty-two premises were granted permits for repopulation. Nine of the repopulated premises, mostly layer flocks, have been reevaluated for avian flu and have come up negative, Williams said.

Concluding the seminar was Senator Wenger who gave an update on farm legislation and the agriculture outlook. Wenger said that fewer dollars are put into the Departments of Agriculture, commerce and banking, yet "we depend on these to generate the dollars." He said it's important to get more money into ag research and ag funding.

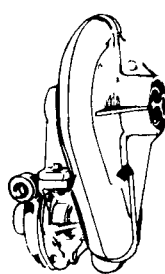

The agriculture seminar was the first one sponsored by Blue Ball National Bank. Coordinating the program was Ken Overly, agriculture-commercial loan officer.

Special Service Award

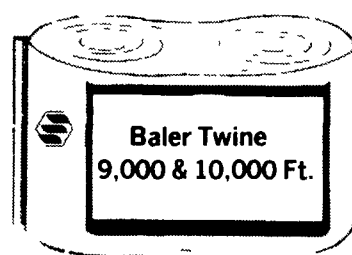

Amos Funk accompanied by his wife Esta, was presented the special service Award this week by the National Association of conservation District for outstanding contributions to NACD and its objectives. The presentation was made in Denver, Col.

Corn studies examine photosynthesis

UNIVERSITY PARK — Exploring ways to improve the ability of corn plants to convert solar energy into increased yields is a key goal of crop scientists at Penn State.

Daniel P. Knievel and Jack C. Shannon in agronomy are working to improve the efficiency of corn plants to produce high levels of carbohydrates through the natural process of photosynthesis. They call carbohydrates the vital "building blocks" of plant growth.

Knievel said the complex process of converting solar energy into grain in corn plants is twofold. In addition to high rates of photosynthesis, plants must have the capacity to accumulate and store efficiently the resulting high levels of carbohydrates as grain.

"Improved carbohydrate storage is essential," he said, "since high photosynthetic rates do not necessarily lead to high grain production. That's the crux of the problem," he affirmed.

Experiments at Penn State show that, after pollination, carbohydrates can accumulate in corn plants during periods of high photosynthesis but without increasing the growth rate of the developing grain.

"To complicate the situation, we also found that corn plants accumulating high carbohydrate levels in their tissues during grain filling had lower than normal rates of photosynthesis," Knievel stated.

This means, he noted, that a scientific "breakthrough" to increase plant photosynthesis would not, by itself, improve crop yields. Corn plants would need the genetic ability to accept and convert additional carbohydrates into grain. The growing crop also must be managed properly to fully utilize the improved potential, he added.

The Penn Staters have grown corn at high and low populations to vary the degree of shading between plants. This helps to control the level of photosynthetic energy in the plant. Pollination was done by hand to control the number of grains per plant.

Accumulation of carbohydrates in stalk tissue was high, it was observed, when the kernels were unable to accept all of the available energy from photosynthesis.

Rate of grain growth in each kernel was the same for all treatments, regardless of the number of kernels per ear. Where kernel numbers were low, plants stored higher amounts of carbohydrates in stalk tissues than were kernel numbers were high.

Penn State studies cadmium toxicity

UNIVERSITY PARK — Soil scientists at Penn State report that cadmium, a toxic heavy metal, is "tied up" or held onto by tiny organisms known as microflora in the soil. This absorption keeps cadmium from contaminating the food chain of plants, animals, and man.

The Penn State experiments show that microflora, not visible to the naked eye, can take up considerable amounts of cadmium, a heavy metal sometimes entering the soil in sewage sludge.

Direct observations of cadmium accumulation by soil microflora is a "first" for scientists in the College of Agriculture.

Until recently, scientists had given little attention to soil microbes as possible accumulators of cadmium. It is well known in research, however, that cadmium can be held onto strongly by clay minerals, metal oxides, or organic materials such as humus in the soil.

Directing Penn State studies of soil microbes is Jean-Marc Bollag, microbiologist. He said one of the most important factors determining the possible uptake of cadmium by plants is its binding or absorption by various soil particles. Such binding of cadmium obviously decreases its toxic effect.

Bollag said cadmium is a poison affecting microbes, plants, animals, and man. Many people exposed to cadmium have developed serious diseases, giving much attention to cadmium in recent years. Where the soil is contaminated, plants can absorb and accumulate cadmium — thus endangering the food chain.

While the research is encouraging, Bollag said no one should expect all cadmium to be removed by microflora. He pointed out that farmers using sludge from sewage treatment plants should use only acceptable sludges containing no more than 25 parts per million of cadmium. Moreover, these farmers should have their soils tested annually for levels of cadmium and other heavy metals.

Carrying out the most recent studies of microflora at Penn State was Radha Chanmugathas, graduate student from Sri Lanka. Ms. Chanmugathas investigated the ability of microbes to remove cadmium from a liquid, and compared the microbial uptake with the absorption of other soil particles.

"When similar amounts of clay, sand, and live or dead bacterial cells were incubated with cadmium, we found that bacteria removed the largest amount of cadmium from a liquid," she stated.

"An explanation for this phenomenon could be," she said, "that microorganisms have more binding sites than other soil components."

Absorption or bioaccumulation of a heavy metal by soil microbes has received much attention as a potential industrial method for recovering various metals or for wast water purification, it was pointed out.

Amounts of bacteria in the experiments were similar to those present in the top layer of different soils, the Penn Staters said. However, the amounts of sand or clay were much lower than their actual abundance in a typical soil.

When the soil components were present in about the same concentration as they occur normally, clay at a concentration of 5 percent was the most effective, but it removed only twice as much cadmium as dead bacteria.

Bollag and various graduate students have found that dead bacterial cells can take up more cadmium than live cells. He believes this is significant, since dead microbes outnumber live cells in the soil environment and are still effective in holding onto the cadmium.

N.J. field crop guide

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — The "Production Recommendations for New Jersey Field Crops, 1984" is available for distribution by the Cooperative Extension Service offices in Hunterdon, Somerset, Mercer and other New Jersey counties. This 72-page guide to field crop production is prepared by Extension Specialists on Rutgers' Cook College.

Contributors are specialists in soils, grain and forage crops, weed, insect, and disease control, agricultural engineering, and Rutgers' pesticide coordinator. The recommendations are based on research conducted at the various stations located in the state as well as related research in neighboring states.

Included are chapters dealing with information for all crops, tillage systems, selection and calibration of sprayers. Chapters are devoted to field corn; soybeans; small grains, that's wheat, barley, oats; grain sorghum; forages, pasture and hay; and pesticide safety.

Descriptions of varieties and hybrids adaptable to New Jersey are part of the information provided on each crop. Control measures for weeds, insects and diseases are discussed.

A new policy was set by Cooperative Extension administration on the first of the year to charge for publications of this type.

Only Bladex gives you all these advantages in heavy crop residue.

Bladex gives excellent control of surface germinating grasses in heavy crop residue. It stops grasses like fall panicum and foxtails which can germinate in the surface trash and escape from grass herbicides that work through shoot uptake. And because of its root uptake action, Bladex provides more effective residual control of both grasses and broadleaves.

Bladex alone controls 55 weeds—14 grasses and 41 broadleaves—more than any other corn herbicide.

3.

The list includes die-hard foxtails, fall panicum, crabgrass, annual morningglory, smartweed, velvet-leaf and nightshade.

Bladex with atrazine is the most economical atrazine tank mix you can use. Added savings result because Bladex can end the need for expensive contact herbicides.

Bladex is the only post-emergence corn herbicide labeled for controlling fall panicum after it has emerged.

Bladex delivers excellent burndown of emerged weeds, up to three inches tall, in heavy crop residue. This can be an important advantage on fields which have no spring tillage.

Using Bladex for burndown weed control on no-till acres can end the need for paraquat or other costly contact herbicides. Even hotter burndown is achieved when Bladex is applied with 2-4D and/or liquid fertilizer containing nitrogen.

This year, more than ever, get all the high performance weed control you can muster with Bladex at new federally approved rates. Ask for Bladex 4L or 80W. Always use as directed.

Algerian agreement is signed

ALGIERS, Algeria — Sec. of Agriculture John R. Block has signed an agreement on agricultural cooperation, trade and technical assistance with Algeria.

The new agreement will bolster the growth of farm trade and scientific exchanges and includes projects on intensive feeding of beef cattle, dairy sector development, compound feed manufacturing and grain distribution and marketing.

Block said that U.S. farm exports to Algeria — which amounted to $203 million in fiscal 1983 — also would get a boost from the opening of a new U.S. agricultural trade office in Algiers later this year.

There are currently 11 agricultural trade offices situated throughout the world to open up the global market and promote the sales of U.S. food and fiber.

In announcing the new office, Block said that Algeria is one of the fastest growing markets in North Africa. "With a population of 21 million and a trade surplus of nearly $3 billion," Block said, "Algeria is the kind of market we need to give more attention."

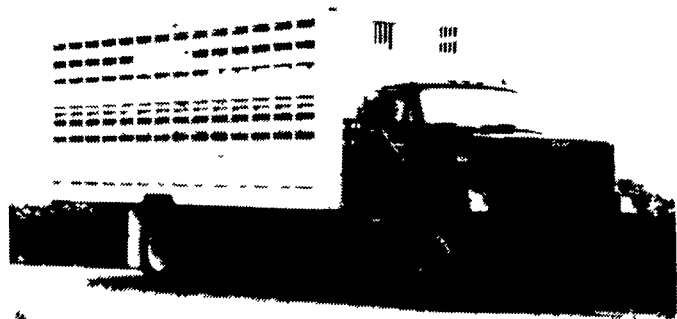

Today's signing follows on yesterday's announcement by Block of a blended credit program to Algeria that would enable that country to purchase $160 million in U.S. wheat during fiscal 1984.

Algeria currently imports $2.3 billion worth of agricultural commodities, but the United States only has 12 percent of the market. Traditionally the big supplier has been continental Europe. Half of Algeria's imports are value-added products

Chance Encounter Sparks Friendship, New Interest

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

A chance encounter on a Navaho Indian reservation 20 years ago has grown into a deep and abiding friendship which bridges both distance and cultures for Hazel Ulrich, Lititz.

Recently honored by Lancaster Toastmasters Speakers Bureau for giving the most number of speeches during 1983, Hazel says she is asked most often to relate the experiences of her family in meeting and getting to know an Indian couple, Minnie and Cuyler Hoskie.

On a camping trip to the Grand Canyon 20 years ago, Hazel, her late husband Leon and their two teenaged children decided they wanted to travel through an Indian Reservation and see life firsthand. Their experience, coupled with a very short twilight, found them traveling through "very dark" country. They stopped at the first light, a trading post, and camped there for the night after meeting Cuyler. This trading post was about 60 miles north of Gallop.

The next day they spoke with Cuyler some more, and Hazel relates, "He must have liked us because he was friendly to us." As they talked, Hazel remarked that she would like to have one of the full skirts typical of the Navaho. Cuyler replied that his wife Minnie made the skirts and soon he offered to take the Ulrichs to his home and arrangements were made for his wife to make a skirt and send it to Hazel.

Hazel still has the skirt, plus a panne velvet top which Minnie made for her. She learned later that the Ulrichs were the first white people who had ever been to the Hoskie home.

Hazel maintained a correspondence with the family and two years later returned to visit them. This pattern continued over the years, with Hazel now having visited them nine times. Hazel said she and her husband frequently took Minnie and Cuyler with them as they visited local sites, most of which the Hoskies had never visited.

In addition to making the traditional long skirts of the Indians, Minnie also weaves traditional Navaho rugs, masterpieces of skill and beauty.

For the wool for the rugs, Hazel notes that they raise their own sheep and Minnie cleans, cards and spins the wool before weaving them with a hand loom. Minnie's loom is metal instead of the earlier wooden version, and Minnie sits before it crosslegged on the floor as she weaves. "They weave and measure and use no patterns," Hazel says. "The patterns are all in their minds. They weave 100 threads per inch."

Minnie weaves in the "Two Grey Hills" style of rug, meaning that the wools are all natural. They have brown, tan, black and white sheep, and to achieve the gray color, Minnie actually cards the white and black wool together.

These rugs are difficult to weave, but Minnie's skill won her first prize in 1981 at the Gallop Ceremonials, after it was entered by the owner of a trading post through whom Minnie markets her work.

The Ulrichs decided to order one of Minnie's rug tapestries, and left some money there as a down payment. They requested that Minnie and Cuyler deliver it to Pennsylvania. Hazel was, of course, thrilled when the Hoskies decided to come, and she held an open house for all their local friends to meet their Indian friends. "Since I had told the story everybody felt they already knew them," Hazel relates.

Meeting so many people was not easy for Minnie who was extremely shy. However, Hazel says, "They appreciated that our friends wanted to meet them." During their visit, Minnie made "Navaho fried bread," a favorite of Hazel's.

Cuyler now works full time in maintenance for the local school board and Minnie works in the trading post, after serving as head cook in the local school. Both had attended Indian boarding schools as children.

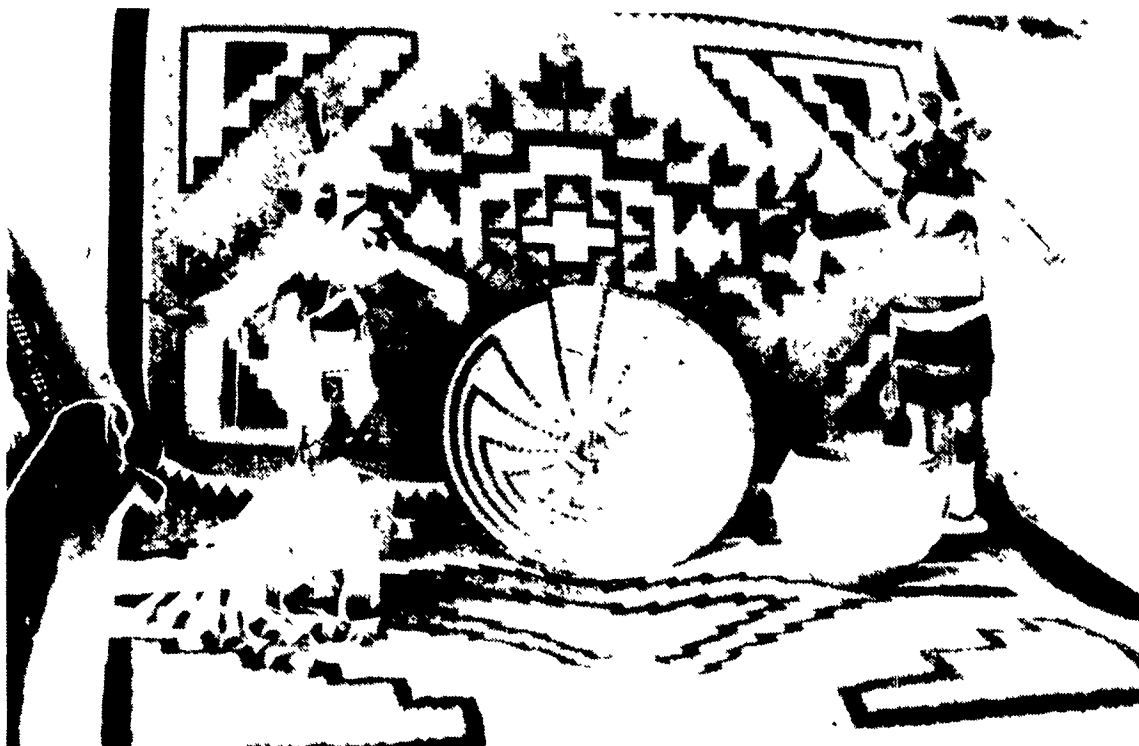

"Because of our friendship, we started buying Indian dolls," Hazel relates. Some of her favorites are the Hopi Kachino dolls. The Hopi Indians live in the middle of the Navaho reservation, and the Hazel demonstrates the use of a spindle employed by Minnie Hoskie when she works with the wool before weaving the rugs and tapestries which are typical of the Navaho Indians. Hazel said Minnie spins and re-spins as they talk and visit.

In the background are two of the rug tapestries created by Navaho Indian Minnie Hoskie, and other artifacts in the front include an eagle dancer kachina (left), a mud head Kachina, zia pottery and papago, and Apache basket. These represent some of the items Hazel takes with her when presenting programs on the Indians.

I'm a DEKALB-PFIZER dealer and a dairyman. Economics plays a big part in my operation. That's why choosing the right alfalfa is such a big decision.

My alfalfa is DEKALB Brand 120. DEKALB-PFIZER said it was a top performer and they're right. It gives my cows a fine stemmed, leafy hay and more tons per acre.

You can count on 120 for winter hardiness—even after a season of tough weather. This seeding will last me for a few more years.

120 is topping state yield trials all across the country. With that kind of record, and my own experience, I'm proud to recommend it to my customers. Sure, I put more money into 120, but I get it back, cutting after cutting. So will you.

Kachino dolls are representations of spirits. Hazel says, "The men carve them from the roots of the cottonwood tree, and they hang the dolls on the wall and the children learn about the spirits like our children learn catechism." The dolls are carved to look like men who impersonate the spirits on special occasions.

Her Indian friendship has also piqued her interest in other Indian artifacts and her home abounds with pottery, baskets and jewelry she has collected. Hazel even refers to one room of her home as her "Indian" room, and when she is asked to show her slides, she carries representative samples of her collections with her.

She and her husband traveled to all 50 states before his death last summer, and Hazel says, "I have been seeking out Indians wherever we travel." Her most northern Indian doll is from Alaska and her most southern is from Florida.

Also when she speaks, she frequently wears her Seminole Indian skirt, typical of Florida's Seminole Indians. It is a bright full cotton skirt, and with the addition of some turquoise jewelry, Hazel makes a colorful image.

Frequently, Hazel tries to get pictures of the creators of some of her Indiana artifacts, but she admits that it took her nine years before Minnie would allow herself to be photographed.

Hazel notes that some of the Indians from whom she purchases items wish to trade something for part of the money. Coffee and other supplies may be requested.

In addition to her study of Indians, Hazel has visited about 80 of the country's national parks, and has a slide show on the parks too. Alaska is the topic of yet another speech, and it was, in fact, this Alaska speech which helped Hazel decide to become involved with the speaker's bureau.

Before they left for Alaska in 1970 Hazel says she bought a 35 mm camera and took slides. When she returned she showed the slide program to her farm women group (Society 1, of which she is currently president), after which a friend suggested she join the toastmasters group so she could give more talks.

As a result she is now a member of the Lancaster Toastmistresses

Club and is a regional officer for the region which includes part of Canada. She is also on the Lancaster Toastmaster's Speakers Bureau and it was through that that she gave 25 presentations last year.

A former school teacher, Hazel enjoys the opportunity to tell of her experiences and help others learn and enjoy through the use of slides.

But she does not just fill her time by giving talks. Hazel was recently elected as second vice-president of the County Farm Women, a commitment through which she will become county president in four years. She is also custodian of the Farm women jewelry for the state.

She volunteers one day a week at Landis Valley Farm Museum as a guide, and teaches the young adult Sunday School class at St. John's Lutheran church in Brickerville. She is past president and remains active in the Lutheran Church Women there. Hazel is also secretary of the Baroness Steigel Lioness Club. And once a week she can be found in the Clay School helping children work on the computer. This is the same Clay School where she spent the majority of the 36 1/2 years she was a teacher.

Hazel's Indian friendship is a slide talk which helps people understand the Navaho Indians, but it is also the story of a friendship which has flourished despite cultural differences and the handicap of distance. Hazel's chance encounter opened a whole new world of study and interest for her, and it is a world she likes sharing with others.

This traditional Navaho Indian costume was sewn for Hazel by her Navaho friend Minnie. Hazel requested the silver buttons, and she notes that the use of several pieces of jewelry is strictly in the Navaho custom. It was this skirt which was responsible for Hazel's 20 year friendship with the Hoskie family.

Patz

A Patz feeding system is headed by the unique Patz cutter-and-claw gathering chain silo unloaders. Select the surface-drive 98B or the ring-drive RD-820. The Patz gathering chain with chain-saw action cuts out frozen and hard-packed silage for full-flow feeding.

Spring tension keeps the Patz power cutter tight to silo walls, even if walls are irregular.

Choose from three over-under chain conveyors with varied capacities and one-way or two-way delivery. Or, chose a versatile side-by-side single chain Patz Material Mover.

The Patz Belt Feeder feeds quickly. The simplicity of design makes maintenance simple and keeps the price low. For other feeding situations, consider a Patz tapered-pan feeder or an in-bunk chain feeder.

All Patz feeding equipment offers a variety of optional accessories to meet your needs.

See your Patz dealer for details. He is experienced in installation, service and he has a parts supply on hand to keep you feeding.

Puddings and Custards: Happy Endings to Meals

No matter how wonderful rich cakes and pies taste there are some meals that are just too filling to permit such a dessert. When your family says they don't have room for dessert, why not surprise them with a light and airy treat, perfect for full tummies?

Try some of these mouth-watering recipes.

OLD TIME RICE PUDDING

1/2 cup uncooked rice, unwashed
1 quart milk
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg, if desired
1/2 cup raisins, if desired

Pour into buttered 1 1/2 quart casserole. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 1/4 hours. Stir occasionally. Let cool at room temperature. Serve warm or cold.

The following two recipes come from Betty Biehl, Mertztown.

BREAD PUDDING WITH PEACH

8 peaches, sliced
1/4 cup sugar
2 cups milk
3 eggs
little salt
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups stale bread

Add sugar, salt, vanilla to milk. Stir in well beaten eggs. Arrange bread in bottom of well buttered baking dish. Add a layer of peaches and alternate layers of bread, ending with peaches on top. Pour milk mixture over all. Bake at 350 degrees until firm.

PUDDING

1 large egg, beaten
3 tablespoons tapioca
2 3/4 cup milk
1/3 cup sugar
3/4 teaspoon vanilla

Mix milk, sugar and tapioca in top of a double broiler. Heat until tapioca is clear. Add beaten egg and vanilla. Chill.

CHERRY PUDDING

2 cups sugar
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons baking powder butter (size on an egg)
3 cups flour
Cherry Mixture:
1 cup sugar
2 cups boiling water
1 pint sour cherries

Mix together the first five ingredients. Pour half of the batter in pan. Combine ingredients for cherry mixture. Pour half of cherry mixture over batter in pan. Add rest of batter and rest of cherry mixture on top. Bake at 350 degrees or until toothpick comes out clean.

LEMON SPONGE PUDDING

1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
pinch of salt
2 egg yolks
1 cup milk
rind and juice of 1 lemon
2 tablespoons butter
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Sift the sugar, flour, salt and blend with the egg yolks. Add the milk, lemon juice and rind, beating thoroughly. Melt butter and add. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and bake in pudding dish set in a pan of hot water for 3/4 hour in 350-degree oven. Serve cold.

GRAHAM CRACKER CUSTARD

Mix 1 1/4 cup graham crackers
1/4 cup sugar

1 1/4 cup margarine
Mix well and put in pie pan. Bake about 8 to 10 minutes at 375 degrees.

Custard Filling

1 quart milk
2 eggs
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix eggs, flour, cornstarch and sugar. Add to milk and cook until thick. Add vanilla and pour into graham cracker crust. Can put coconut on top, if desired.

PERFECT CHOCOLATE PUDDING

1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons cocoa
2 tablespoons oil
2 cups milk
2 slightly beaten egg yolks or 1 well beaten egg
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla

In saucepan, blend sugar, salt, cornstarch and cocoa; add oil and milk. Cook and stir over medium heat until thickened and bubbly. Cook and stir two minutes more. Remove from heat. Stir small amount of hot mixture into yolks or beaten egg; return to hot mixture. Cook and stir two minutes more. Remove from heat; add butter and vanilla. Pour into individual serving dishes; chill. To prevent skin from forming on top, place plastic wrap directly on pudding while cooling.

BUTTERSCOTCH PUDDING

1 package butterscotch pudding
1 package vanilla pudding
1/2 pint whipping cream
5 bananas
7 graham crackers

Cook pudding and cool. Whip cream and blend pudding and cream. Cut bananas and break up crackers, add to pudding mixture. Chill before serving.

RHUBARB PUDDING

1 tablespoon butter
3/4 cup sugar
1 egg
1/2 cup milk
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 1/4 cup flour

3 cups rhubarb
1 cup sugar

Combine the first six ingredients and pour in 9X13X2-inch pan. Sprinkle the rhubarb and sugar over batter and pour one cup of boiling water over mixture. Bake at 375 degrees for 40 minutes.

CHEESE-FRUIT PUDDING DESSERT

2 cups milk
1 8 oz. package cream cheese
1 package instant vanilla pudding
1 1/2 cups drained fruit cocktail
1 cup miniature marshmallows

Gradually add 1/2 cup milk to soften cream cheese, mixing until well blended. Add instant pudding mix, then add the remaining milk. Beat slowly for one minute. Stir in the drained fruit and marshmallows. Decorate with coconut and maraschino cherries. Chopped nuts may be added to the pudding mixture, if desired.

Cook's Question Corner

EDITOR'S NOTE - Thanks to all of our readers who have sent in recipes for bagels and granola bars. We received more than we could print, but they will be filed and kept for later reference. Thanks, again.

ANSWER - As a result of a recent request for Long Johns, we got two different types of recipes, one for doughnuts and one that resembles a hot hoagie sandwich. Thanks go to Lavina Stoltzfus, Leola, for the following recipe

Long Johns

1 1/2 teaspoons dry yeast 1/2 cup boiling water
1/4 cup warm water 1/3 cup sugar
1/2 cup shortening 1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon salt 5 or 6 cups sifted flour
2 beaten eggs

Dissolve yeast in warm water, combine boiling water and shortening. Add sugar and salt. Stir until lukewarm. Blend in yeast, milk, and eggs. Gradually stir in enough flour for easy handling. Knead until smooth. Place in greased bowl. Turn over to grease top. Cover. Let rise in a warm place until double thickness. Cut in strips any size. cover. Let rise to double, about 30 minutes. Deep Fry like doughnuts

Chicken Delights

Featured Recipe

This week's featured recipe comes from Dolores Harnish, who claimed that she was not a custard and pudding person. And instead, gave us this delicious sounding sour cream chocolate cake recipe. It even has its own frosting!

But before trying this recipe that Dolores said was "fattening, but delicious," read about Dolores' work as a seamstress for bridal fashions on the Family Living page.

Sour Cream Chocolate Cake

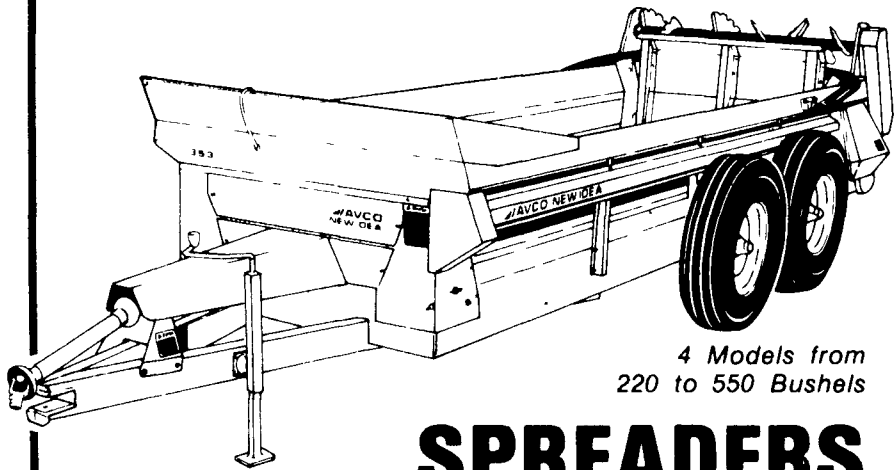

2 cups all purpose flour 1 1/4 teaspoon soda
2 cups granulated sugar 1 teaspoon salt
1 cup water 1 teaspoon vanilla
3/4 cup dairy sour cream 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 cup shortening 2 eggs
4 oz. melted unsweetened chocolate

Mix ingredients into large mixer bowl. Mix 1/2 minute on low speed, scraping bowl constantly. Beat two more minutes on high speed, scraping bowl occasionally. Bake 30-35 minutes for round pan or 40-45 minutes for oblong pan at 350 degrees

Sour Cream Chocolate Frosting

1/3 cup butter or margarine 2 teaspoons vanilla
3 oz. unsweetened chocolate 3 cups confectioner's sugar
1/2 cup dairy sour cream
Cream butter, sour cream and chocolate and vanilla together. Add to confectioner's sugar over cake.

AVCO NEW IDEA

SPREADERS Heal Themselves

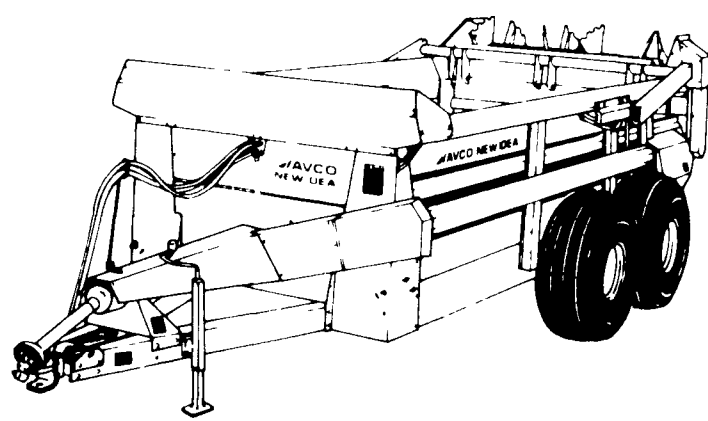

Scratch the painted metal surface of most spreaders and you have an "open wound" subject to corrosion and rust-through.

Scratch the galvanized surface of a New Idea spreader and the healing process of galvanic action begins. A layer of zinc oxide quickly forms to create a protective barrier.

Paint is a surface coating. Galvanizing bonds zinc into the steel electrochemically to protect up to 25 times better than no coating at all...which is what you have when you scratch a painted metal surface.

This long-life spreader box protection is available only on the complete line of New Idea conveyor spreaders. It is another reason why you can rely on New Idea spreaders.

For more information on this "New Idea" in manure handling equipment, see us today!

BIG FARMS NEED BIG MACHINES

- * Hydraulic, worm gear conveyor drive
- * Dual "positive lock" conveyors
- * Thick ship-lap plank floor
- * Galvanized, copper bearing steel sides (10-year warranty)
- * Dual beaters

That's why New Idea offers the 15-ton/550-bushel model 355 spreader. This high-capacity machine dramatically reduces the per-ton cost of spreading manure. Ideal for large beef feed lots and dairy farms, the "355" is loaded with the long-life features and quality you expect from the company that invented the manure spreader in 1899... New Idea

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

It was with pride, joy, frustration and sorrow (plus a few tears here and there) that we devoured every broadcast of the Winter Olympics from the picturebook setting in the snow-mothered mountains of Yugoslavia.

The pride, joy, frustration and sorrow combined as we watched our American athletes perform their best against delays and dismays, some weather-induced, and some controversial judging decisions.

Relief came in the form of the expectation that I can return to getting something accomplished in the evening other than just crashing the kitchen for snacks during commercials.

But what the television cameras completely missed were a series of agricultural athletic events, for which farmers train year round, and which have failed thus far to win Olympic Committee attention.

So at this time, we bring you a quickie rundown on what you may have missed during the broadcasts from Sarajevo '84:

Giant Slalom: an individual event, for both males and females, run twice daily, year in and year out, hardy, well-trained contestants. Equipment includes a feed scoop and bull buckets of grain. Participants must complete the course through a dozen gates formed by shoving, hungry, 700-pound heifers vying to stick their noses into the feed before the feed trough goal is reached. points will be deducted based on amounts of feed lost from buckets when heifers pull contestant off balance by grabbing hold of the back of a vest or sweatshirt. Disqualification for getting stuck up to the knees at the sticky spot where the water fountain froze, then thawed into a steady slow leak.

Ten Kilometer Cross Country: a perennial spectator favorite, staged with herds of animals bored with having feed and water carried to their stalls and pens. Most exciting runs take place in icy conditions over rolling terrain. Would-be medalists must be accomplished in forming snowballs on the run and targeting them accurately to the tailheads of herd leaders headed for neighboring properties.

Banquet-Nite Biathlon: held on dairy farms, only on days when annual meetings or otherwise important organizational meetings are scheduled. Competitors must complete their normal milking routines while delivering a big, breached bull calf from an uncooperative and nervous first-calf heifer. Extra points awarded to participants who diplomatically handle a pair of salesmen who stop by through the middle of this contest. Entrants successfully juggling the milk tester into this event automatically take a medal.

Men's - and Women's - Downhill Races - footwear plays a critical role in this time-honored caterogy. Judges will carefully inspect boots or shoes for smooth, worn-down sole tread, allowing participants to slide sideways down a mild-to-steep gradient from barn to barn. Track preparation of vital importance. Surface should have snowmelt runoff that was refrozen, with a light coating of foggy mist settled on the top for speed. Entrants balance bags of feed or holes of hay while maneuvering the slick track. While time may be lost on the flats, experienced racers can make it up on the steeper slopes. True test of champions is the ability to curve and sweep into barn doorways without losing balance. Supreme physical fitness and balance demanded in this race.

So don't turn your TV set off just yet.

4-H Stenciling Workshop

Arts & Crafts 4-H members celebrated Valentines Day a week early this year. Mrs. Ruth Gronsky of Hampton conducted a Valentine Stenciling Workshop, attended by 25 members and leaders. Mrs. Elsie Bundt of Lebanon assisted.

This event was sponsored by the Hunterdon County 4-H Arts & Crafts Council.

The members learned that stenciling is a unique art. They each received a plastic paper stencil. Four heart-shaped balloons made up the design. The members, aged 9-15, were able to take their projects home with them after the workshop.

Clubs represented at the workshop were: Pins & Needles, Clever Clovers and Country Cooks.

HOW TO MAKE THE SYSTEM WORK FOR YOU.

You don't even have to write your Congressman. Just get the Vicon Haying System is all.

Because with this trio — A Vicon KM mower/conditioner, one of our heavy-duty hay rakes or tedders, and a new Vicon square baler — you can make hay faster, better and more economically.

The KM 321, for instance, is the fastest mower/conditioner in the world. It's 30 percent faster than other conventional mower/conditioners. A new drive unit lets you operate non-stop.

Take square corners with no drive line vibration or danger of failure. And even if you've got a heavy, dew-wet crop, the KM 321 won't plug, and won't leave you worrying about leaf loss.

The Vicon line of rakes and tedders are just as efficient in their own right. They're versatile, ideal for short crops or big balers. Rake, turn, fluff. Quickly and cleanly. In a wide range of widths. With easy tine replacement. And, best of all, Vicon rakes and tedders are gentle on your crop.

Last but not least, you'll find that the Vicon SP square balers give you the convenient range of bale sizes and weights to meet your haying needs. The unique counter-balanced flywheel eliminates drive line vibration. The result is a smooth running baler with less strain on the PTO, tractor and operator. The Vicon SP is also available with hydraulic bale thrower. For more information on the Vicon Hay Systems, or the name of your closest Vicon dealer, just call or write. We think you'll see that when you can't beat the system, there's only one thing left for a grower to do.

Join it.

YOU CAN'T BEAT THE SYSTEM.

Gifts That Grew

In the days when people from Europe were first settling in America, there were many times when they had very little food. Luckily for the newcomers, some American Indians showed them how to use certain plants for food.

One of the first Indians to help the newcomers was an Algonquin (ol-GON-kin) chief named Massasoit (MASS-uh-soit). Massasoit showed the Pilgrims how to plant corn, store it for future use, and cook it. Today when you eat corn-on-the-cob, cornbread, corn muffins, hominy, or popcorn, you can thank the Indians.

The Ojibway (o-JIB-way) Indians of the Northeast showed the Pilgrims how they tapped sugar-maple trees and made maple syrup. Soon the Pilgrims were enjoying this delicious treat too.

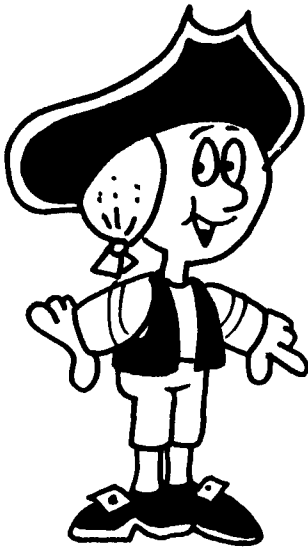

Other Indians introduced the early settlers to rice, sweet potatoes, pumpkins, sunflower seeds, and many more plants. Some of the settlers would never have survived without these "gifts that grew."

4-H Beef Club

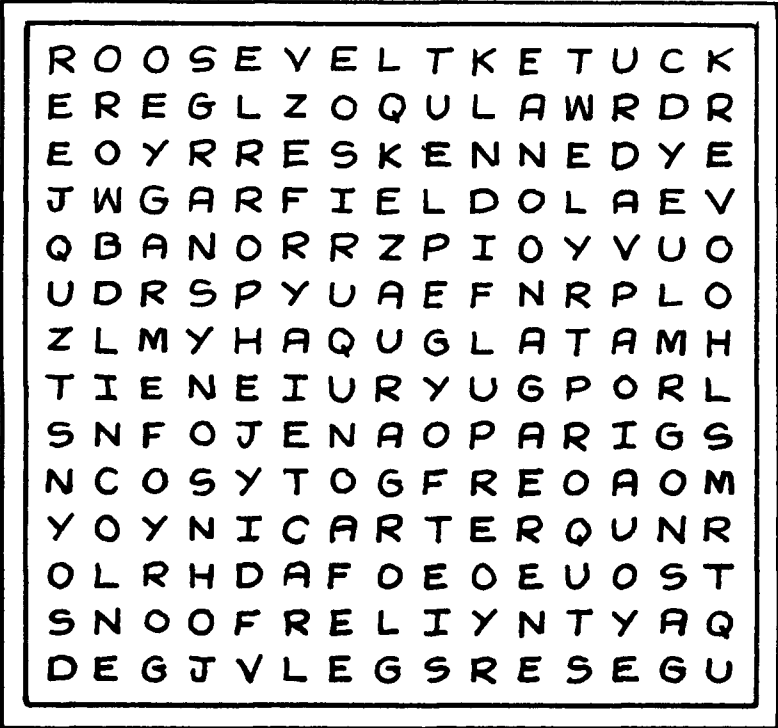

The February meeting of the Hunterdon County 4-H Sheep Club was held earlier this month at the Rodenberger home in Pittstown. Debbie Gengler, Melissa Yontz and Gretchen Kuehn gave a presentation on their 1983 Citizenship Washington Focus trip. Committee reports and upcoming events were discussed.

Members will visit the Somerset Sheep Farm during their March meeting.

Apple Recipe Contest Winners Announced

HERSHEY — The scent of chocolate was replaced with the aroma of warm, spicy apples as the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board named the winners of the State Apple Recipe Contest. Ten finalists, selected from the 430 entrants, competed for top honors at the Hershey Convention Center during the 125th Annual State Horticultural Association Meeting. Pennsylvania's apple industry ranks fifth in the nation, annually accounting for more than $61 million in farm sales. The State Apple Recipe Contest is successful because of the work done by the Board, and the hundreds of contestants who have learned the economic and nutritional value of Pennsylvania apples.

Norma Broderick of Waterford, Erie County, took first prize of $200 with her original "Apple Torte" recipe. Broderick was inspired to enter the state contest after being a finalist in the Pillsbury Bake Off Contest.

Second prize went to Betty Lou Burke of Roaring Spring, Blair County, for her "Apple Shrub" entry. Burke described her entry as a nutritious, refreshing beverage.

Margaret Kovacs of Bethlehem, Lehigh County, received a $100 third prize for her "Johnny Apple Seed Bread Pudding". Kovacs is a homemaker who enjoys cooking for her friends and family.

Fourth prize of $75 went to John McIntyre of Harrisburg, Dauphin County, for his "Crabapples". McIntyre, manager of Saga Foods at Nationwide Insurance Company, created his recipe for an apple promotion in the dining room at Nationwide.

Six other finalists, who each received a $50 prize, were Ruth Roberts of Bensalem, Bucks County, for "Apple Loaf Cake"; Jacqueline McComas of Frazer, Chester county, for "Apple Orchard Cheesecake"; Jean Borkowski of North Huntingdon, Westmoreland County, for "Applesauce Date Bars"; Eileen Benkovic of Middletown, Dauphin County, for "PA Apple Cider Cake"; John Wells of Danville, Montour County, for "Quadrapple Coffee Cake"; and Shirley DeSantis of Bethlehem, Lehigh County, for "Spicy-Apple Side Up Granola Cake".

Judges for the contest were Margaret Malehorn, Pennsylvania State Extension home economist for Cumberland County; Carol Ernst, home economist for Weis Markets, Sunbury; and Wil Gardner, director of food service for Messiah College.

Contest rules required that all contestants be state residents and use a Pennsylvania processed apple product as an ingredient. Recipes were to be economical, tasty and attractive. The 10 prize winning apple recipes will be published by the Apple Marketing

Board, and will be available during the 1984 apple harvest season.

First prize winning recipe follows:

Pennsylvania Apple Torte
CRUST: ½ cup butter
⅓ cup sugar
1 tsp. grated orange rind
1 cup all-purpose flour
FILLING: 1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
⅓ cup sugar
2 eggs
1 tsp. ground cinnamon
¼ tsp. ground nutmeg
1 tsp. lemon juice
1 can (20 oz.) apple filling

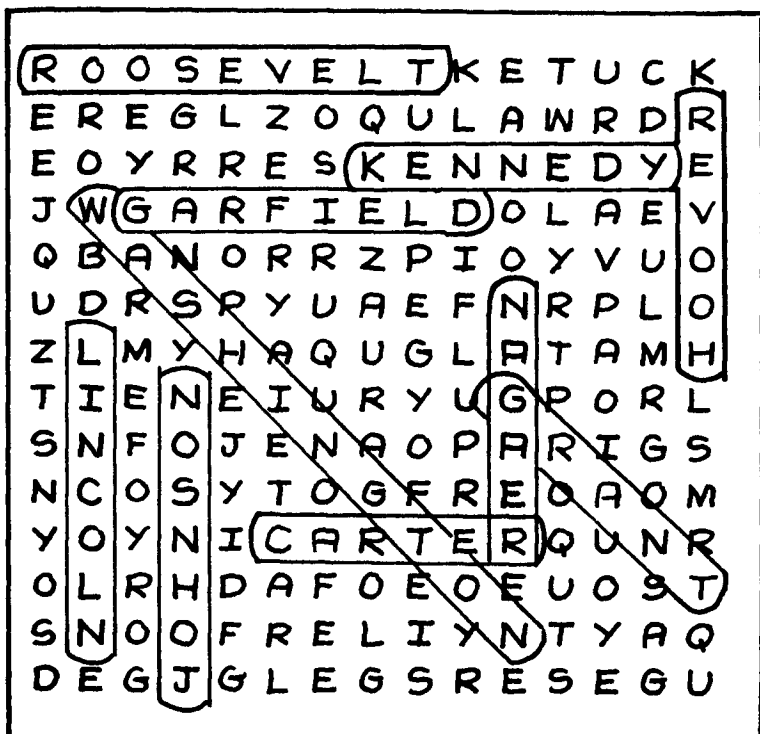

TOPPING: 8 oz. container of whipped topping

GARNISH: Slices of Pennsylvania Red Delicious apples, if desired

Prepare filling: In a large mixing bowl, beat cream cheese and sugar; mix well. Add eggs and lemon juice; mix well. Fold in prepared apple pie filling. Pour into prepared pastry-lined pan. Bake in 425° F oven for 10 minutes. Reduced heat to 375° F. Continue to bake for 20 to 25 minutes or until golden brown and knife inserted in center comes out clean. Cool before removing rim of pan.

Before serving, garnish whipped topping around edge of Apple Torte. Place a sliced Pennsylvania Red Delicious apple slice on each serving, if desired.

Serves 12 to 14.

Ida Risser

A vacation in the sun — that is what I've just had. I flew from the Philadelphia Airport to San Juan with 283 people on a morning flight. The cumulus clouds looked like huge balls of cotton as we flew through them at 33,000 feet. We were served a delicious meal and had a choice of several radio stations by using our headphones.

A bus took me to the ship, Sun Princess, and a photographer took pictures of each boarding passenger. Then throughout the cruise our pictures were taken in the dining room, in the lounges and at the Captains cocktail party. We had an opportunity to view the pictures and buy them if we wished.

Our meals were unusually good and I had a number of unfamiliar things such as escargots (snails in garlic oil), caviar (salted raw fish eggs), tiny shrimp, lobster tail, papaya, truffles (subterranean fungi) and avocados. Some meals had a French, Italian or British menu from which to choose. Our dinner companions were from Hong Kong, San Diego and India. However, I got to know a family from Indiana best. The four members represented three generations. The 80-year-old grandmother was quite spry and lively. But we did have folks in wheelchairs on our ship too.

The first morning, when I awoke, my clothes were swinging back

We had a drill after the church service and were shown how to wear our life jackets. There were about 600 passengers and 300 personnel on board.

There were many activities available on the ship. Tea was served every afternoon and movies were shown too. Some people played Bingo and Black Jack while others sunned themselves. There was a gym, a reading room, a sauna and a beauty parlor. Different extravaganzas were presented each night.

The service was out of this world. Every time we left our room, we received all new towels — three or four times a day. Room service was available at any hour and we always had a basket of fresh fruit on our desk. It certainly was living in the lap of luxury.

Four Lead Training Workshops

CARLISLE — Four local women led workshops at the Regional 4-H Leader Forum held recently near Carlisle. 4-H volunteers who led workshops were: Nancy Hoke - Sparkle for You Meetings; Alvena Kneasel - Foods Special Series; Donna McConaughy - Health - the 4th H. 4-H Agent, Linda Siegel, led a workshop called Dig Into Leadership.

The Keynote Speaker was Dr. Theodore M. Johnson. Dr. Johnson, director of Psychological Services at Philhaven Hospital/Ephrata, spoke on the topic, "Strengthen Your Family." He resides in Lebanon.

County 4-H Leaders, a Cumberland 4-H staff member, and chairman Linda Siegel. Over 80 leaders attended this multi-county effort.

According to Siegel, the Regional Forum is offered every two years to provide chances for idea sharing and introduction of new 4-H programs. "We offer opportunities for 4-H leaders to continue life-long learning. This benefits both their club members and also the leaders, themselves," she said.

The Lebanon County 4-H program seeks adults interested in sharing skills and time with youth. Call Linda Siegel at 274-2801, Ext. 351 for more information.

Make Your Dream Dress Come True

BY KIMBERLY HERR

WILLOW STREET — Every bride dreams of finding the perfect dress, not only for her, but for the close friends and family that will be her bridal party, following her in long, lacy creations of their own.

The dresses have to be unique, beautiful and not too expensive.

Here is where the dreams can turn to nightmares as the soon-to-be bride rushes through her last months as a single woman trying to find those perfect dresses. If she buys the dresses already made, will they be too expensive? Will they be the wrong style for some of her party? Will they be the right color?

And if she wants her bridal party to make their dresses, will they find the right pattern or the right material? Will every girl sew her dress in the same way? Will they all be finished on time?

Where does the anxious bride turn for help in answering these questions?

Dolores Harnish is hoping that some of Lancaster County's brides turn to her. In fact, some already have. Dolores is a seamstress who specializes in wedding apparel. She created the bridesmaids dresses for one wedding and is already working on another complete wedding and a flower girl's dress for yet another ceremony.

"I'm only beginning to do this," Dolores said. "This is a new challenge because every wedding is different. I think there is a great need for it in this area."

The first dresses Dolores made for a wedding were off-the-shoulder gowns done in a rich aqua shade for her nieces ceremony.

Prior to her first adventure on her own, however, Dolores worked in a local bridal shop, doing alterations.

"But I prefer to start from scratch," Dolores explained.

"Ready made dresses can be quite expensive," she said. "Maybe I can give the bride a better quality garment and she won't have to pay extra for alterations. She can have the gown she wants that maybe she couldn't afford otherwise."

And price is not the only factor. Dolores explained that the availability of bridal gown fabric is often limited in this area.

"I can get almost anything they want, with a little searching," she said, adding that she keeps in touch with fabric stores that carry a wide assortment of fabrics. She especially likes a store in Lansdale and is looking forward to traveling to New York to see what is available there.

Dolores also stressed that patterns can be a problem, but by adjusting them or using parts of different patterns, the ideal dress can be achieved.

"You can design your own gown," she said. "Don't be discouraged by the patterns you find."

Dolores especially likes patterns that call for "functional" bridesmaids gowns or those that can be worn "many, many times" after the wedding.

Dolores explained that she could make dresses with removal bolero jackets, detachable trains or tiers. She also recommended dresses that can be shortened after the wedding.

Although it sounds like a lot of work, Dolores said she needs only about six weeks to complete the dresses for a wedding. She may need more time if the bride's dress is included.

She explained that the average garment maker constructs three garments every week. According to her, she is not quite that quick yet, but she is thinking about joining the Custom Clothing Guild.

Following in Dolores' sewing footsteps is her daughter, Cindy,

How To Double Up and Make It Work

MEDIA — "The better prepared you are, the easier living with your aging parents will be," says Maryetta Dorricott, Extension home economist. Many families find doubling up is a workable solution to helping parents cope with medical, financial and even social problems that often accompany growing older.

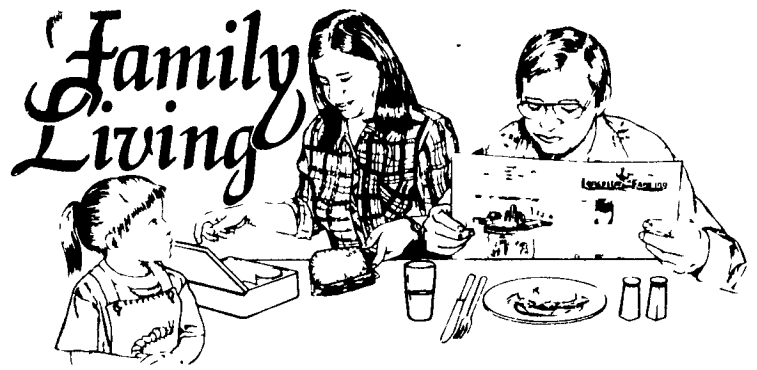

If your parents are no longer able to live on their own and you and your family have agreed that it's best for everyone that you all live together, here are a few suggestions on how to make it work.

- Everyone needs privacy sometimes. If you are able, give your parents a room or at least some part of a room of their own where they can pursue their own activities undisturbed and without disturbing others.

- Consider that everyone needs to feel useful. Ask them to share household responsibilities which match their capabilities. Ask them for advice and involve them in family discussions and decisions. Enjoy sharing your parents skills and experiences by asking them to contribute.

- Help your parents stay in contact with their friends. They and you need more than each other's company. Encourage them to entertain and visit and to participate in community activities as much as they are able.

- When you entertain, invite your parents to join you. Be sensitive to their preferences because unfamiliar people and noise are confusing. But if they seem to enjoy a little company, make them feel welcome without pressure. You will be best prepared if you are guided by their preferences and capabilities.

A fairly new term but not necessarily a new situation is that of "latch-key kids." This term describes those kids who spend time at home alone before and/or after school while their parents are working. The phrase "latch-key" comes from the notion that many of them carry their own set of house keys.

The number of latch-key kids has increased rapidly during this decade as many mothers have returned to the work force. However, latch-key isn't all that new. I became a latch-key kid in seventh grade as my mother went back to work part-time. Of course, nobody had a name for this social phenomena at that time. On the farm, the phenomena was not as great as for some other children. I knew that someone would have to come in from the fields or come down from the silo at milking time. I do remember though, having the feeling of increased responsibility and the added trust that came with my mother's return to work. This meant following specific well written notes for making dinner and getting along with my brother and sisters without a referee.

As you might already detect, latch-key kids are not necessarily lost creatures who are prime candidates for delinquency. A study done on a group of fifth graders showed that unsupervised kids were not more frequently late, absent from school, or delinquent. In fact, the study showed they were higher in intelligence, and when they had more responsibility at home, they were also more mature and better at thinking things through.

We must be careful at interpreting those results to indicate that by leaving children alone we can attain intelligence, maturity and the ability to quickly analyze any situation. These characteristics can only be attained when parents are wise enough to only allow mature, responsible kids to stay home alone.

Latch-key kids can and do survive. But for the safety and welfare of the child and for the ease of mind for parents it is important to first establish a few basic rules. These may include who can and cannot visit, what activities are allowed, what equipment can be used, and what or how much food can be eaten.

Depending on the age of the child, information about handling telephone calls and emergencies need to be rehearsed. It is important to teach children how to answer the phone or door without divulging that he is home alone. Many parents have a policy that the child call them when he gets home from school. Helping children to understand that this added responsibility is serious business is important. Questions and problems that occur before a parent returns home should become topics for routine family conferences.

"Latch-key" has been around long enough that there are several books on the topic. "The Official Kids' Survival Kit" by Elaine Cheback and Pat Fortunato is a good reference book. It is written with a blend of humor and fact to help latch-key kids "handle little things with ease, and big things without panic." If your children are in a latch-key situation, take some time to advise them of the best way to handle emergencies and unusual situations. Even on the farm suggestions need to be given as the outer field or hayloft might be too far away during an emergency in the home.

The Victorian parlor in Dolores' Willow Street home serves as the perfect romantic setting to discuss a wedding. Here is where the final touches are put on the garments.

S. Lancaster plans erosion effort

LANCASTER — As part of the the Soil Conservation Service has Control program in southern move to save the Chesapeake Bay, begun the Mason-Dixon Erosion Lancaster County.

This area, which lies south of an approximate line from Cambridge to Intercourse to Lampeter to Willow Street to Conestoga to the Susquehanna River, will receive special assistance from the U.S. Department of agriculture. Farmers in this area, which comprises the Pequea watershed and all land south to the Maryland Border, may be interested in this new program.

Three full-time Soil Conservation Service employees have been assigned to the Mason-Dixon area. Larry Zuschlag, John Bert and Clifford Bienko are available to assist farmers with their erosion and runoff problems. Each of these USDA employees have extensive experience in the design and layout of terraces, waterways and stripcropping on Southeastern Pennsylvania farms. Farmers interested in getting advice on their erosion and runoff problems should contact the Soil Conservation Service at 299-1563 and ask for assistance.

Farmers desiring financial assistance in establishing conservation practices will be able to utilize additional monies allocated for cost-share. These new monies, handled by the ASCS Office, are over and above the regular ACP funds.

Dream Dress

who recently won first prize in a contest sponsored by the American Home Sewing Association, which is based in New York. There were 25 categories, and Cindy won in the under 14 crafts division with a cloth cornucopia.

Dolores is leader of the Penn-Willow 4-H Club and she explained that Cindy, who is a member, learned much of her sewing skills in the club and watching her mother at home.

"I think I had her cutting at age five," Dolores laughed.

In addition to Dolores' sewing skills, she also keeps up with the latest trends in bridal fashion. What does she see for the upcoming wedding season?

"Lots of lace and ruffles," she said "And the purples, the lilacs and mauve colors seem very strong."

Dolores also displayed a piece of mauve point d' esprit, a lacy, net-like fabric, which she said is popular this year, as is dotted Swiss material. As for headpieces, Dolores said the hat-type veil is still popular.

"But it is all a matter of personal preference and what goes with the gown," she said.

And, if the bride is not sure of what will be most attractive on her party, Dolores will consult with the bride before she buys the pattern and material.

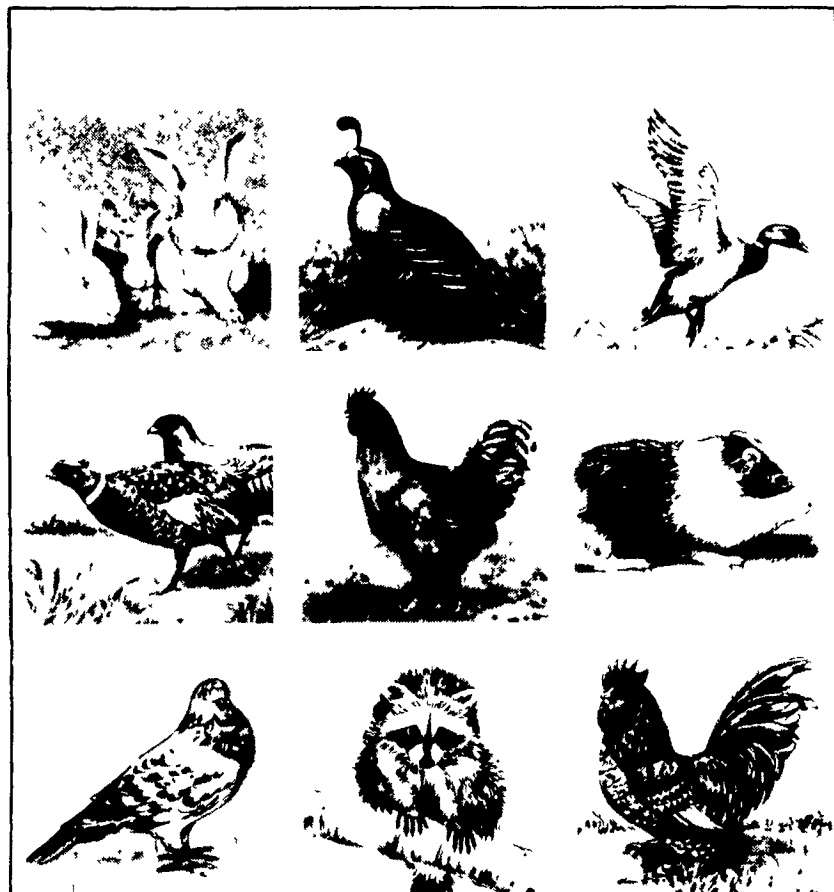

With so much of her time and energy going into her new bridal business, it would seem as though Dolores had time for little else.

That is far from true, however, as Dolores and her husband, Clayton, raise 180 veal calves on their 38-acre Willow Street R1 farm. Since Clayton has a fulltime job, away from the farm, Dolores is often called on to help with the feeding, the book work and the fort " She is also on the board at the Farm and Home Center.

Dolores' son, Bernie, appreciates his Mom's sewing ability. Here, he holds a corduroy stuffed moose Dolores made him for Christmas. Bernie saw the moose in a magazine, but since it was too expensive to buy, Dolores adapted a pattern of her own and made him his stuffed moose.

Ladies Have You Heard?

SAVE ON HOT WATER USAGE

The heating of water is the major source of energy required for handwashing dishes and utensils, apart from the human input. Individual habits of water usage vary greatly. However, the higher costs of heating water present an important factor in encouraging efficient use for all household purposes. Of all the uses, dishwashing is one where no compromise in cleanliness is acceptable. Hot water is essential for hand dishwashing.

Estimates of hot water usage for hand dishwashing range from 9-24 gallons per meal, part of which is cold water. This wide range indicates not only household variations, but different procedures. Undoubtedly, water temperatures vary greatly. Washing dishes, and particularly greasy utensils, in water less than 90° F, even with sufficient detergent, is likely to leave a greasy film. The hottest water most individuals can stand is about 110° F. Keeping dishwashing water as close to these upper limits as possible will provide good results. I would suggest that you conserve by reducing quantity rather than temperature.

Here are some sensible ways to save on hot water usage:

— Soak utensils with stubborn, burned-on or cooked-on soils using a liquid dishwashing detergent.

— Wipe off any food residues and heavy grease using a rubber spatula or paper towels.

— Wash items in a sink or dishpan of hot suds, rather than under running water, even for a few dishes.

— Wash lightly soiled items first, more heavily soiled later. Use enough liquid dishwashing detergent to produce a thick, rich layer of suds. Change the washing solution when it cools down, becomes greasy and dirty, or the suds disappear. Otherwise, the more heavily soiled pieces may not be adequately cleaned.

— Rinse by dipping each item in a pan of hot water. This is the most economical use of hot water. Or rack and spray-rinse dishes. Avoid running hot water for rinsing.

— Save a few dishes from one meal to the next, rather than run hot water for each. Soaking will soften food soils.

LAYER IT ON

Goose down may not be the most practical winter insulation available. If it gets wet, goose down is no defense. Neither are cotton and synthetics when wet. The only sure way of staying warm, rain or shine, is to wear wool. And don't just wear one bulky wool sweater. Wear several thin layers of wool instead. Layers trap air that cushions your body from the cold. Remember to wear gloves and a hat and scarf. When your extremities are cold, the rest of the body is cold. A good winter outfit starts with cotton-lined long johns and a pair of wool-blend socks. Layer on a wool blend shirt, then a sweater and wool pants. An insulated synthetic-fiber jacket will keep you warm on wet days. A down parka feels luxurious on cold, dry days. Waterproof fabrics don't allow perspiration to evaporate and should be avoided.

SHOWER IN STYLE

Fabric shower curtains are coming in solid-colored chintz and large floral designs while vinyl curtains are showing up with textured or pearlized backgrounds. In addition, traditional English country looks reflect the 18th century influence for today's bathrooms. For people looking for fun in the shower, musical themes of all types are depicted on shower curtains, some complete with lyrics from long-forgotten Broadway and rock-and-roll hits. You may never again be at a loss for words when singing in the shower. Those who like to think of the body beautiful while they bathe will be inspired by the new fitness theme that is appearing on some shower curtains.

CRAFT CORNER

Why not combat the cold spell with a cozy ribbed sweater? The sweater shown here can be comfortable on the coldest days with its mock turtleneck and full, puffy sleeves. Worked on No. 10 needles, you can easily finish it before winter ends.

The sweater features ribbed details, a variation of ribbing called the seed stitch, and a single cable in front. If you're not experienced enough to knit a cable, however, you can simply continue the seed stitch throughout.

To order the sweater kit, containing complete instructions plus Bernat "Berella 4" acrylic yarns or Blarneyspin Irish wool, write to the address that follows this column. To learn more about ribbing, just read on.

Ribbing creates stretch and resiliency for cuffs, necklines, waistbands and other areas that need to grip the body. Aside from being practical, however, ribbing is also a beautiful way to give a sweater texture, as illustrated by the double ribbed yoke of the sweater shown.

Ribbing is among the simplest of knitted patterns. It is formed through the use of both knit and purl stitches in the same row.

Single ribbing, the most common of all ribbing patterns, consists of knitting one stitch and then purling one stitch alternately across a row. In the following rows you purl over each stitch that was knitted in the previous row, and knit over each stitch that was purled in the previous row.

When a single ribbed pattern is completed, the knit stretches form raised vertical lines, while the purl stitches recede. The lines, or ribs, make the fabric so resilient that it literally springs back into shape after being stretched.

The sweater shown here uses double ribbing at the yoke, cuffs and waist. Double ribbing, because it's slightly less elastic than single ribbing, can be used for all-over patterns as well as for edges.

In double ribbing, you knit two stitches and purl two stitches alternately throughout the row. In the following rows, as in single ribbing, you knit over all purl stitches and purl over all knitted stitches in the previous row.

The seed stitch, seen in the body of the sweater is a variation of ribbing. Unlike ribbing, however, it produces a flat all-over pattern with a light, seeded or pebbled texture.

To work the seed stitch, you knit one stitch and then purl one stitch alternately across a row. In the following rows, unlike single ribbing, you knit over each knit stitch and purl over each purl stitch.

Ribbing patterns may be elastic or flat, but all are capable of adding beautiful texture to a sweater.

February is Potato Month!

February is a month chock full of special days. First comes Groundhog Day, and then little fat cupids and hearts arrive, declaring Valentine's Day. It is also the month when Abraham Lincoln's and George Washington's birthdays are observed.

But, what many people do not realize, is that February has another special significance. It is potato month, the month to celebrate the spud!

And here to help you in observing potato month are some extra special recipes. Try them!

GRATED POTATO CASSEROLE

1/2 cup milk
3 eggs
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 cup cubed cheese
2 tablespoons butter
1/2 small onion, cut in pieces, optional
3 medium potatoes cubed
Put everything in blender in the order given. Blend on high speed.

just until all potatoes are grated. Do not overblend. Pour into greased casserole dish. Bake at 375 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes or until a silver knife tests clean.

POTATO PATTIES

2 cups raw shredded potatoes
1 egg, beaten
2 tablespoons grated onion
1 tablespoon flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons fat or oil

Mix shredded potatoes with egg, onion, flour and salt. Drop from tablespoon into hot fat in frypan. Fry on both sides until crisp.

PA. DUTCH POTATOES AND FRANKS

6 medium potatoes, about 2 pounds, cooked, peeled and diced
2 green onions, chopped
6 dinner-size frankfurters, sliced 1/2-inch thick
2 tablespoons bacon drippings or salad oil
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon flour
1 teaspoon salt

1 tablespoon chopped parsley

In a large bowl, combine hot potatoes and onion; cover and keep warm. Meanwhile, in large skillet over medium heat, brown frankfurters in bacon drippings or oil. With slotted spoon, remove frankfurters, reserving drippings. Add frankfurters to potatoes and onions; keep warm. Into hot drippings, stir sugar, flour and salt until smooth and bubbly. Gradually stir in vinegar and 1/2 cup water; cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens and boils. Pour sauce over potatoes and frankfurters. Sprinkle with parsley.

FIREHOUSE POTATO-VEGETABLE SOUP

2 cans (10 1/2 ounces each) beef broth (bouillon)
2 cans water

1 pound ground beef
1 teaspoon salt
dash pepper
1 pound (3 medium) potatoes, unpeeled
1 10-ounce package frozen mixed vegetables potato chips

In large saucepan, bring broth and water to boil. Combine beef, salt and pepper. Drop marble-sized meat balls into simmering broth. Slice potatoes 1/4-inch thick. Add to broth along with mixed vegetables. Simmer 10 to 15 minutes or until potatoes are tender. Serve at once, with potato chips.

POTATOES ANNA

6 medium-sized potatoes (about two pounds), pared and thinly sliced
6 tablespoons butter
1 1/2 teaspoons salt

1/4 teaspoon pepper
grated onion
grated Parmesan cheese

Lightly grease a 10-inch skillet with a heat-resistant handle or a shallow casserole, with tight fitting cover. Arrange the potatoes in slightly overlapping spirals until the bottom of the pan is filled. Dot with bits of butter. Add a sprinkling of salt, pepper, grated onion and grated Parmesan cheese. Repeat with two additional layers. Cover pan and bake in 425-degree oven for 30 minutes. Remove cover and bake five minutes longer.

Fast track to egg cost reduction

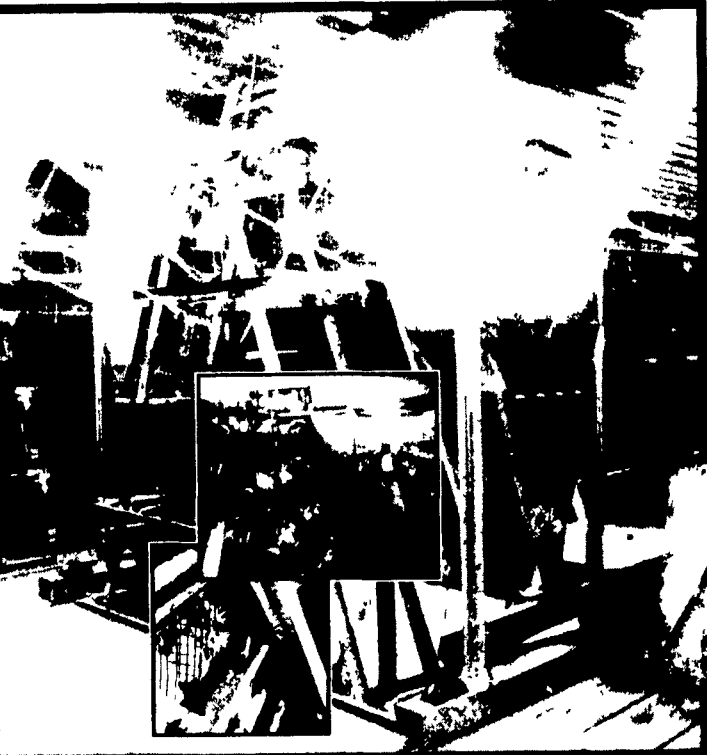

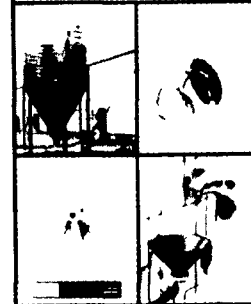

Shallow PYRAMID — 3 or 4 high

SSS System — 3 or 4 high

Brood Grow — 3 or 4 high

Chore Time's MEALMASTER FeedKar traveling feeder can help you get your egg costs on track. Here's how:

1. The typical chain feeder uses 1 1/2 hp to feed each cage tier — 6 hp for a 4 high. Our hopper system traveling on tracks is pulled by a cable using only 1/4 hp — a 95% energy reduction!
2. Cuts feeder maintenance and labor costs to virtually zero. You know what a chain feeder costs to maintain!
3. Evens out egg production from one end of the row to the other — birds at the front can't "highgrade" the feed.

We'd like to talk to you about the other ways the nearly 200 feeders we've sold are helping owners. Our FeedKar is now standard on all Chore Time brood grow and layer cages, our famous shallow PYRAMID and new deep PYRAMID, our 3 and 4 high SSS.

Find out more about the FeedKar — plus our line of cage systems and the Chore Time "total package" of feed bins, auger ventilation and waterers.

Three reasons why Bicep gives better control than most tank mixes.

Low volatility

Sure, most tank mixes do a pretty good job on weeds and grasses in corn. But what if you could get even better control with just a single product? With Bicep,[®] you can.

Bicep is different. It's the double-duty herbicide that gets both weeds and grasses all by itself. In fact, Bicep actually outperforms most tank mixes. One reason why is that Bicep is low in volatility.

Volatile herbicides escape into

Bicep goes into the soil, not into the air

the air soon after application. They become ineffective. But not Bicep. Put it down and it stays put for season-long control—even in cool, wet weather.

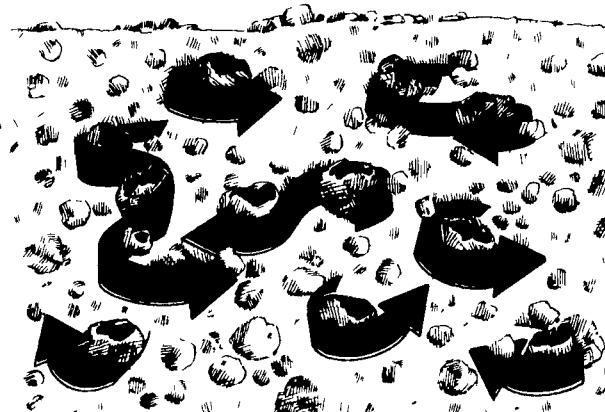

Low volatility is just the beginning of what makes Bicep better. Keep it in mind if you're up against tough weeds like cocklebur, pigweed, ragweed or black nightshade. Or late germinating grasses like foxtail, panicum or crabgrass.

Solubility

Bicep is more soluble than most tank-mix combinations.

Solubility is the ability of a herbicide to dissolve in water and become available for weed and grass uptake. The extra solubility of Bicep really helps. Because of it, Bicep is easily carried by water into the weed and grass germinating zone of the soil. And once it's there, Bicep is better dispersed. So it does a better job.

Greater solubility also makes Bicep readily available in the soil to be absorbed by the roots and shoots of weed seedlings that compete with corn. And it's part of the reason Bicep is so effective in reduced tillage fields. A light rainfall is all it takes to wash Bicep off surface trash and into the soil where it will go right to work.

Bicep stays available and active in the soil solution

Yet, for all its solubility, Bicep doesn't leach out significantly. It will give you the control you need right through harvest, even in a rainy growing season.

Excellent adsorption

Adsorption is the adhesive quality of a herbicide—how tightly or loosely it clings to soil particles. A herbicide that is too adsorptive becomes tied up by the soil—it becomes inactive. A herbicide that is not adsorptive enough leaches out excessively.

But with Bicep, adsorption is excellent, which helps explain why Bicep has staying power. Bicep stays active in the germinating zone right through harvest. Yet there are no carryover problems with Bicep, so you can rotate to soybeans.

Low volatility. Greater solubility. Excellent adsorption. These are just some of the properties that help make Bicep better than most tank mixes. Your dealer can tell you about other Bicep advantages. Talk to him soon

DOUBLE-DUTY BICEP

Frances Bradley Retires

NEWARK, Del. -- One door is closing, another opening in the life of Frances Bradley, staff assistant to the director of the University of Delaware Cooperative Extension Service, who retired January 31 after 33 years of service.

The former Frances Bell, Smyrna farm girl, and 4-H'er found employment after high school as a secretary for a local agricultural concern. She left in 1950 to become a full-time farm wife.

Six months later she ran into Extension Poultry Specialist Frank Gordy at an agricultural meeting. His secretary was leaving, and he begged her to fill in for a couple of days.

Mrs. Bradley didn't see how she could spare the time away from her farm duties, but she couldn't turn her back on an old friend, especially since it was just for a couple of days...

Somehow that temporary job stretched into a 33-year career, most of it spent working for Samuel Gwinn, Extension director.

The Cooperative Extension Service honored her with its Outstanding Staff Employee award in 1978, the first year the award was given.

Had there ever been an award for best dressed woman on campus, Frances Bradley surely would have been a top contender for that one, too.

For the time being, she'll be switching to a more casual lifestyle in the picturebook village of Summit. She plans to spend more time raising flowers, visiting with relatives and friends, enjoying the beauty of the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal, and crabbing in nearby Blackbird Creek. She also hopes to travel, especially after her husband, Paul Bradley, retires from the Delaware Department of Transportation in a few years.

Cone gets post

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Bruce W. Cone of Kennewick, Wash., has been named deputy assistant secretary for science and education at the USDA.

Edgar L. Kendrick, who has served in an acting capacity in the post, has been named administrator of the USDA's Office of Grants and Program Systems.

Cone, 48, has operated an alfalfa production ranch since 1977. He was a senior economist and research scientist with Battelle Memorial Institute in Richland, Wash., where he formulated and directed international water and energy research programs.

While at Battelle, Cone led the task force which wrote the first five-year plan for agricultural development in Iran. He also has worked on scientific projects in Japan, Canada and Brazil.

The new deputy assistant secretary served as a senior scientist on President Reagan's transition team.

Still #1 in Tillage Equipment

A great job of plowing starts with a great plow

If you really take pride in plowing, stop into our dealership and see the full line of innovative plows from White Farm Equipment Company.

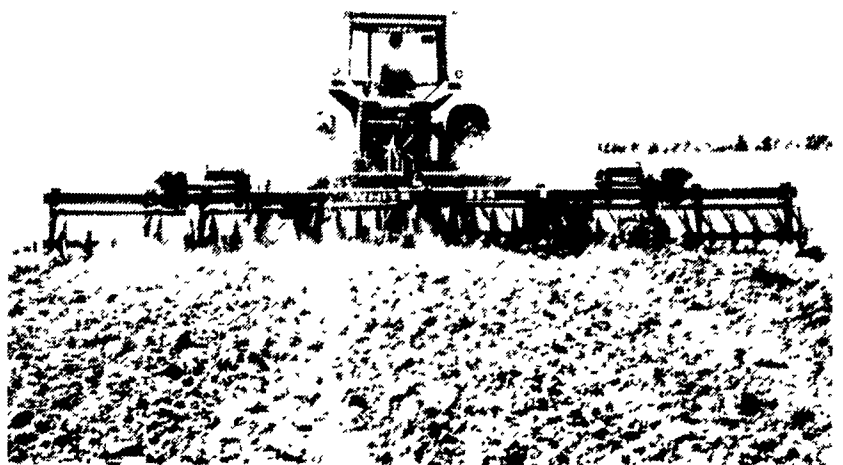

Strength for better plowing. Every White Farm moldboard plow starts with an extra-big box-beam main frame for more working weight and toughness. In fact, every component is designed with an extra measure of toughness.

A tradition of quality. Every plow bottom we build is polished by hand to insure faster scouring in the field. Every style is designed to work well in a variety of soil conditions. Our 125 year history of building plows demands this kind of care.

Choose from 10 models. There's a White Farm moldboard plow for you, whether pull-type, mounted, semi-mounted or flex-back. Ten models in all. From one bottom to twelve. So come on in and see our full line. You'll be glad you did.

Every White Farm Equipment Company moldboard plow features our famous box-beam construction for strength and rigidity.

difference in disks.

There's a big difference in disks. And if you've never taken the time to really study what makes one disk more productive than the next, drop into our dealership and let us point out a few facts using models from White Farm Equipment Company.

More weight means better disk. Not a revolutionary thought, but there are ways to spot built-in working weight without putting the implement on a scale. One example is massive box beams of high carbon steel used in all of our disks. More steel means more than durability and rigidity. It adds weight to keep disks in the ground.

Models for every need. Whatever type of disk you need, we've got a model for you. From our massive 281 Offset to the 270 series flex-wing tandem, to the 250 series semi-flexible frame, to the 264 rigid disk. Each offers specific features and attachments to make tillage easier and faster.

Come in and let us show you the difference in disks. And the difference in White Farm Equipment.

Nobody builds a more accurate planter than the Seed Boss®

And we can show you — on a Seed Boss planter in stock — exactly why we'll match our White Farm planter against any other brand. In conventional, minimum-till or no-till.

More accurate planting depth and seed spacing can mean better stands and yields. Come in and see how little it takes to own what a lot of farmers believe is the most accurate corn and soybean planter sold today: the Seed Boss.

Cumberland Co-op holds session

SHIPPENSBURG — Over 900 farmers and their families attended the 54th Annual Meeting of the Cumberland Valley Cooperative recently held at the Shippensburg Area Senior High School.

The luncheon was highlighted with entertainment from The Gospel Ambassadors, and Al Shade and Jean Romaine show, with a brief business meeting and slide presentation about the Cumberland Valley Cooperative Association.

Wayne Baker, the 1983 General Manager presented his management report for the past year. Baker remarked that the CVC's future still relies on good service to help the customer produce as much milk, meat and grain as possible. However, he said, economic conditions do effect the farming business and the Cumberland Valley Cooperative.

For instance, he said, the Payment In Kind program curtailed farming activities to a significant degree, resulting in reduced sales of fertilizer, PAG seed corn, chemicals, petroleum and other production inputs. In the Cumberland-Franklin County area the PIK program reduced corn production acres by an average of over 20%. This reduction and the worst drought in years have affected local agriculture more than anything else.

However, he said the CVC's 1983 operating results compare very favorably with others in this industry. Baker added, "This comparatively good operating year can be attributed to the cost cutting, cost containment and other steps taken during the year." He added that the Association is making do with fewer employees and using cost cutting measures without altering the basic Cooperative organization that is still very much intact and remains ready to serve the farmers.

However, while doing all of this Baker said, we have been careful not to dismantle the significant degree of a fine service organization that farmers have built up in the Cumberland Valley Cooperative Association.

"Our basic strategy at CVC is to continue to aim for and maintain a financially strong and healthy organization and at the same time maintain a strong distribution system at all levels to serve the farmer," said Baker.

Baker concluded with this one message that the basic mission of CVC of helping to make farming more profitable - for the farmer - is still alive and well.

The newly elected officers of the Cooperative are President, Garnet Dice; Chairman, Merrill Bivens; Vice President, Wayne F. Craig; Secretary-Treasurer, Donald Hawk; Executive Vice President, Wayne Baker, and Member of the Executive Committee for a one year term, Harry Mohn.

Also elected were Directors who will be serving 3-year terms. They are Clarence Allison, Cham-

Lamb workshop scheduled

UNIVERSITY PARK — The Appalachian Regional Commission and the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service are sponsoring workshops on how to produce and market quality lamb. These will be held in six locations this spring and fall, announced Clair Engle, Penn State Extension associate professor of animal science and coordinator of the program.

The workshops will train sheep producers and allied industry leaders to be more efficient live lamb and lamb carcass evaluators, Engle says. They will also provide information on the regional standardized lamb grading program now being implemented by the eight major lamb producing states in the Northeast.

How to develop or improve a productive breeding and feeding program as well as alternatives and controlling factors known to influence market lamb prices are other issues included in the program.

A panel discussion on commercial market lamb production from the viewpoints of both a Northeast packer and a successful West Virginia sheep producer and lamb feeder will be a session of particular interest, Engle says. The subject material in each workshop will be the same, but each will have regional packers, feed lot operators and producers as guest speakers and session leaders.

Dates for the 1½ - day workshops are: Waynesburg, March 9-10; Greencastle, March 16-17; Mercer, April 6-7; Greensburg, Oct. 5-6; Trout Run, Oct. 12-13; and Danville, Nov. 9-10.

Because of limited space, only the first 30 applicants can be accepted for any workshop. Descriptive brochures with pre-registration forms are available through your Penn State County Extension office. There is an $8 fee for registration.

Wins Outstanding Award

MEDFORD, N.J. — It was spiced apples in the food preservation area, along with many other 4-H accomplishments that made Maryann Vogt, Southampton Township, N.J., the winner of the Burlington County Outstanding Teen for 1983 award.

As a winner, Maryann won a trip to Chicago in November, where she and 32 other delegates from the state joined other delegates to attend workshops and seminars sponsored by businesses from all over the country.

Maryann began her 4-H career when she was seven-years-old and joined a 4-H horse club. When this disbanded she joined a dog club and later a home-ec club, which is the one she enjoys the most.

Proving her right to win her recent title is the fact that during 4-H Achievement Night, Maryann received 20 awards, one for every project that she is involved in.

Maryann Vogt is the recipient of the Burlington Co. Outstanding Teen for 1983 award.

4-H Leader Training Scheduled

LANCASTER — On March 29 and 30, 50 4-H leaders will participate in a special program to improve their leadership and skills in 4-H Conservation and Natural Resources projects. This program is funded by a special grant from the Dean's Office of the College of Agriculture and will feature Paul Risk as the Keynote Speaker. Risk, author of a book on survival and a former National Park Ranger, will comment on the Conservation Movement in the 80s.

Leading a special session on the 4-H Middle Management Concept will be Mary JoCook, 4-H liaison in the North Central Region. The program capnote speaker is Gene Love, associate dean for Resident Education of the College of Agriculture.

1983 wheat reserve established

SAN FRANCISCO — Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block has established a farmer-owned grain reserve for 1983-crop wheat with a trigger release level of not less than $4.45 and annual storage payments to farmers of 26.5 cents per bushel.

Block also said the U.S. Department of Agriculture will open reserve V for the first time to 1983-crop feed grains. USDA on May 31, 1983 closed reserve V to additional entries of 1982-crop feed grains because grain from this reserve was to be used in the department's payment-in-kind program.

Farmers may place their grain in these reserves on maturity of regular Commodity Credit Corporation loans, he said.

The trigger release level for the new reserve wheat — reserve VI — will be the target price rate in effect for the then current crop year, but not less than the 1984-crop target price of $4.45 per bushel, Block said. Wheat in the other grain reserves also may be placed in the new reserve, he said.

Barley and sorghum reserve loans may be transferred to reserve V, he said. Reserve V corn and oats are currently in release status and their entry into this reserve will not be permitted until release is terminated.

Block said the announcement does not change the rule prohibiting entry of additional quantities of a commodity into a reserve when the commodity is in release status.

Annual storage payments for grain placed in the reserve will be 26.5 cents per bushel for wheat, corn and barley, 20 cents per bushel for oats and 47.32 cents per hundred weight for sorghum, Block said.

"Interest will be assessed for the first year of the agreement at the interest rate applicable to the regular loan but will be waived for the second and third years except during certain periods the reserve is in release status. No premiums for entry into the reserve are authorized."

Block said reserve V trigger release levels would remain at $3.25 per bushel for corn, $2.65 per bushel for barley, $1.65 per bushel for oats and $5.54 per hundredweight for sorghum.

Under the grain reserve program, eligible farmers can place feed grains and wheat into a reserve when farm prices are below trigger release prices. In return, farmers receive Commodity Credit Corporation price support loans on the grain in reserve as well as annual storage payments.

WOULD YOU LIKE 300 BUSHEL CORN PER ACRE?

A Juniata County farmer had it in 1982 using Flora-Life, a mineral and bacteria product which we now sell. It was a 9 acre field average of 300 bu. crib moisture.

To get top yields you must obviously supply what is missing — the elements that other programs destroy. Our Creator didn't make a mistake. And if it is missing in the soil, it is also missing in the feed. Hence our livestock diseases, troubles, and problems. Our customers fare considerably better in the barn and in the fields. Larger crops than their neighbors - healthier and spray free

Our N.E.M.A. GRANULATED VITAMIN C is a big boost to livestock and poultry because in mill feed C looses its value from oxidation. Ours has excellent proofs on layers — amny flocks. Big hog raisers are starting. It is becoming a good seller. We are looking for dealers. It is good money because it will get popular, and you get your own at wholesale - a very reasonable price because of volume production

HAVE NITRATE PROBLEM?

Our Vitamin C is the answer. It destroys or neutralizes the nitrates. What a good discovery! It is double purpose. At same time it supplies the rich nutrition mentioned above. Excellent for livestock problems especially breathing problems.

Ask for eye opening literature

ROCK PHOSPHATE

Balances manure and lasts long for a very reasonable price. Bulk spread or bags

A Natural Mastitis Treatment That Works

It is rich nutrition in the feed. Costs only about $2.75 per day, 2 feedings usually knocks it out except in old prolonged cases. Even those sometimes when drugs have failed. It is Spirulina, an algae that grows on water. Extremely rich in vitamins, minerals, trace elements, amino acids, chlorophyll and enzymes. It supplies the missing elements. Makes cows resistant. It is double purpose - nourishing the cow and treating the cause, not just the udder or symptom. Farmers say helps improve sick cows in a few hours.

200 Tablets... $18.95 Postpaid

Good repeat orders prove that this mastitis treatment works. We also have another excellent natural product to use in corn bination for very stubborn cases and sick cows. Free literature. Dealerships available for both these becoming popular products.

Eastern approves budget & merger

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Delegates representing 89% of Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative local organizations last week approved a $3.1 million dollar budget which calls for no increase in dues, and also gave the go-ahead for Eastern to accept the merger of Richmond Cooperative, a Vermont dairy organization.

The Feb. 7 Delegate Meeting, held at LeMoyne Manor, Liverpool, N.Y., was extremely well attended, with 127 of 142 local organizations in attendance.

Members and guests learned Eastern is ending a successful present fiscal year, with proceeds between $500,000 and $550,000 expected. General Manager, Michael Donovan said the profitable activities resulted in part, "from generating revenues which, at the seven month point are $236,000 better than budget while maintaining expenses $79,000 under budget."

The newly approved budget to start April 1, anticipates membership production of just under 2 billion pounds, up 200 million pounds from the present year's budget. An important duty of Eastern delegates is approval of the Association's yearly budget, as well as to act on resolutions and amendments to the Bylaws.

Eastern's delegate body ratified a Board-approved management plan to accomplish the merger of Richmond Cooperative, should that organization's members vote to do the same. Presently Eastern is responsible for marketing Richmond milk under terms of an affiliation agreement. The merger would involve a complete dissolution of Richmond assets and liabilities, while providing Richmond members an opportunity for direct Eastern membership contracts. Richmond membership now totals 231 dairy farmers, predominantly in the state of Vermont.

An Eastern Management suggestion to raise the level of member equity contribution was narrowly defeated by delegates after more than two hours of affirmative and negative debate on the issue. If approved, the measure would have required members to contribute 10 cents per hundred pounds of milk as an investment in the organization, up from the present level of 5 cents. Eastern repays these monies when members retire from the production of milk, at 100% of the equity investment.

Cooperative President Earl Forwood said, "This very close vote assures me the equity issue will be considered again — perhaps at our delegate meeting in June. Today's debate is a positive demonstration of how progressive Eastern has become — We were not debating present problems — but future opportunities."

Pick the weeds in your corn you'd like to get rid of...

Then pick Banvel® herbicide... the Big Plus...to do the job.

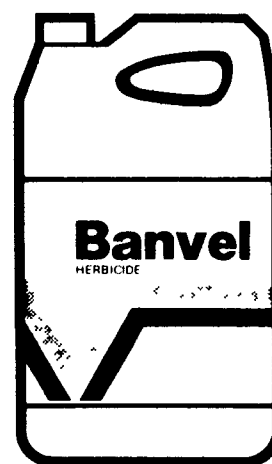

Pre-emergence: Banvel tank-mixed with *Lasso® to get broadleaf weeds along with grasses...ready and waiting when later weeds germinate.

Early layby (in corn up to five inches high): use Banvel at a one pint rate. Stop weeds before they've had a chance to develop. This Banvel overlay controls cocklebur, sunflower, annual morningglory, other troublemakers.

Before buying a less adaptable herbicide that may be short on performance, check out the Big Plus of Banvel...from Velsicol.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

As a farm manager, you are responsible for gathering information used to fill out at least 8 federal tax forms. Even if someone else prepares your return, you should know what is needed and how to best present it to your preparer. Sometimes a check list can help. Here is one I use for farmers. If you want more detail, feel free to write or call my office and request a copy of my tax mimeo for 1983.

Check List

A. Capital Gains

Did you put cull dairy cows, beef cows, sows, ewes, does, bulls, boars, rams, etc. in your record book as capital gain items? Be sure to call it to the attention of your tax practitioner. They go on form 4797 or Schedule D not Schedule F.

B. Depreciation

Did you list overhaul jobs or rebuilding operations as a capital expenditure. They should be depreciated. You can also take investment credit on them.

Did you list all machinery purchased, traded, sold or lost during the year including a business share of your new car?

C. Investment Credit

Did you put up a silo, build a milking parlor, build a new layer house, or construct a farrowing unit this year. They are some of the single purpose agricultural structures that are eligible for investment credit. Remember to tell your tax practitioner that they are eligible. Don't call them buildings though because buildings are generally not eligible for investment credit. Call them silos, parlors, milking centers, housing facilities, etc.

D. Did you remember all of your expenses? What about work clothes, barn boots, show clothes, and a share of car costs. Did you keep a hired man during the year? If so, you are entitled to a deduction for room and board for him. How much? Be reasonable - I'd suggest 3 to 7 dollars per day depending on your cost for keeping him.

E. Don't forget income. Those of you who sold PIK corn should remember to declare it. One item that some of you may forget is the forgiven government loan on corn. It is income to you even if you got the corn back as your PIK payment. Yes if you sold the PIK corn you will have income from the same corn twice. Don't forget to use the full patronage dividend - it must all be reported not just the 20 percent you received. Did you get interest income on a tax refund, be sure to report it.

F. Did you have a new child in 1983? Tell your tax preparer, he or she may not have seen the notice in the paper. Did one of your children get married, go out on their own, or become 19 during the year. They may no longer be a dependent. Note: If that 19 year old is a full time student, he or she would still be a dependent.

G. Did a purchased cow die during the year? Report it on 4684 as a business casualty loss. You will have to pay back investment credit though.

H. Did you inherit business property during the year? If so it has a depreciable base. What? The amount it was appraised at. You didn't get it appraised! If you didn't you are missing a good income tax deduction.

Farm income taxes are more complicated than most tax returns. If you have someone else preparing your tax returns, be sure that person knows farm tax rules and regulations. If he or she doesn't, the result could cost you a lot of lost tax dollars. If that person puts sales of cull dairy cows on Schedule F, puts depreciable property on any line other than a, b or f on the 4562, or doesn't use investment credit, get another practitioner. It is obvious that your preparer doesn't understand farm returns.

Look into Futures

Feb. 14

On Thursday, the USDA announced the first planting intentions report for corn and soybeans. A figure under 79 million acres for corn and 69 million acres for soybeans should be positive to the markets. These numbers are based on planting intentions as of Feb. 1. If interest in the set-aside program continues to increase, the actual acres planted may be substantially below these estimates. While I don't wish to be repetitious let me remind you again that participation in the set-aside program will assure a target price of $3.03 per bushel for corn. Talk to your ASCS people about this program before you turn it down. In addition, the December corn futures are trading in the $2.85 - $2.90 range. With a target price of $3.03 for new crop corn, feed purchasers may be wise to contract corn or buy futures at a price below $2.90 on the anticipation that prices should move into the $3.00 range. Both soybeans and corn have been drifting lower in almost directionless trading. The demand for feed grains has been good, however, and we can look for the grain markets to start forming a base in preparation of higher prices into Spring.

The milk diversion program has had a very limited success with less than 12% of the nation's farmers signing up to participate. The current estimates are the less than 350,000 cows could be slaughtered as a result of the program. This is approximately three days' national slaughter. Beef producers should take heart in these figures even though we are currently suffering a surplus of red meat products. The wholesale demand for meat is weak with steer beef trading at $102.00-$103.00 and we can expect the live market to take direction from the retail trade for the near term. If April cattle can show strength and push upward to $67.00-$68.00 hedgers would have an opportunity to sell futures and lock in profit.

The Seven State Cattle On Feed report will be public before you read this, but preliminary estimates are for cattle on feed to be about 98%, cattle placed to be 104% and marketings to be 97%. If the marketing is over 100%, expect the June cattle contracts to move higher.

The wholesale supply of pork products is weighing heavily on the shoulders of the pork complex and mild weather should promote big weight gains, further depressing prices for the immediate future. April hogs closed today at $44.72 and June at $50.87 lending support to the idea that the hog market will strengthen into Spring. However, expect the market to continue

My comments this week are certainly a mixed bag of good and bad news, but I prefer cautious optimism to reckless enthusiasm. The grains and cattle have been moving downward but the opportunity exists for profitable marketings into Spring and Summer. I welcome any questions you may have and would reply either in the column or privately. You may contact me by phone at (301) 685-1100 or by mail at THOMSON MCKINNON SECURITIES INC., A Ross Z. McCausland, 10 Hopkins Plaza, Baltimore, Maryland 21201.

Turf workshop to be held

NEWARK, Del. — Anyone interested in learning more about grounds and turf management will have the opportunity to do so next month. Two all-day workshops are being planned by the University of Delaware Cooperative Extension Service.

The first workshop will be held on Thursday, March 8, at the university's Georgetown substation. No registration fee is required.

The second workshop will be held Monday, March 12, at Clayton Hall on the University of Delaware's north campus in Newark. A fee of $9 will be charged for this event, to cover costs, including lunch. Deadline for registration is March 1.

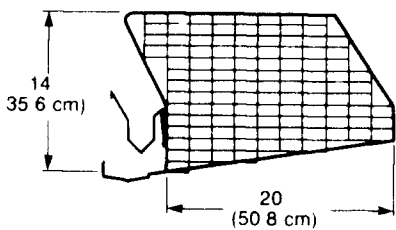

Both workshops will start at 8:30 a.m. and last until 4 p.m. The programs will also be the same. Topics to be covered include: disease problems in turf; insect pest management in ornamentals; toxicity and modes of action of pesticides used for ornamentals, buildings and grounds; pesticide storage and disposal; weed problems in ornamentals and turf; monitoring pesticide exposure and environmental considerations of pesticide use; and calibration.

Eight credits toward recertification in the commercial ornamental and turf category will be awarded to certified commercial pesticide applicators who attend. According to extension entomologist Mark Graustein, the workshops will also prepare noncertified applicators to take the state certification examination.

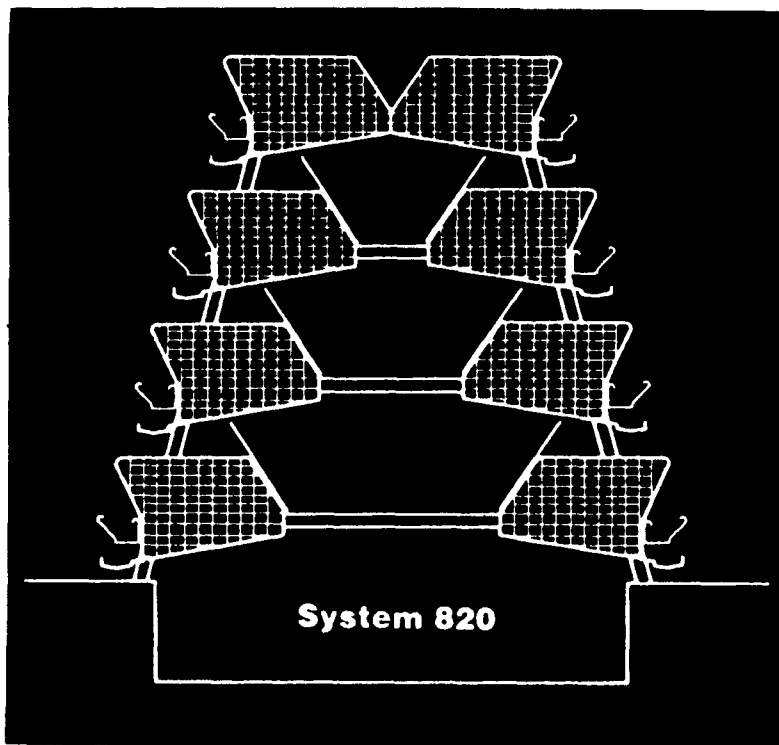

For a copy of the complete program and registration materials for the workshop at Clayton Hall, contact the county extension office in Newark (451-2506), Dover (736-1448) or Georgetown (856-5250).

The Dairy Business

WINTER IS DECISION TIME

Most of us like to put off making decisions about our business just as long as possible. We don't admit it, even to ourselves, because we like to think our judgement is sharpened by time. Maybe it is, if the time doesn't run out on us. A decision can be delayed too long and made too late. Many Springtime problems can be solved now, while you are sitting next to the kitchen stove. Once you are into the spring rush, there will be little time for meditation about the major course you should have charted earlier.

THE PAIN IN THE BRAIN

Snap decisions are not always the best ones, so some delay is good if you have put your best thinking to work during the interval. The key to a good decision, whether it's a quick one or delayed to the last minute, is how well you have weighed the pros and cons. The more information you have, and the better you sift through how each bit of knowledge will affect you or your business, the better the decision. Sometimes the process is a little painful, because it taxes our brain to the limit. Sometimes it calls for outside help, to aid in making up our mind.

USE ALL THE TOOLSAVAILABLE

An open mind is the best tool you have for decision making. The trouble is, we often think that we have our minds open to new ideas, when, in fact, we allowed ourselves to be influenced by shortsighted neighbors, or self-seeking salesmen, or news commentators with a one-track mind. Discuss your problems with a successful neighbor who is obviously a good manager, not with the one who is constantly blaming everyone else for all his problems. Read and listen to the un-biased Farm Press authors who have no axe to grind at your expense. Try to recognize the political and personal slant that sometimes creeps into both public and private discussions. Remember that decisions you make can affect your family over a short, long or medium range of time.

USE A GOOD CONSULTANT IF NECESSARY

For some of us, this idea might seem outrageous, but how often have you fallen back on your lender for advice? Of course he is actually a consultant, and his advice often costs you a lot of money. You always hope that it will pay off with interest. Maybe it will and maybe it won't. It's often a stop-gap measure to bail you out of a tight spot.

There are other sources of useful information, some free and some for hire. Use the free service like the Penn State Extension Service or the local S.C.S. technicians. Financial management advice from your Co-op or F.M.B.A.S. accountant is usually worth the minimal cost. There are also some private consultants lurking around. They may be good or bad, so look carefully at their credentials before you hire them. Make them reveal their background and motives and especially their track record of success. Just because he may belong to the Church, or promote "Natural" or "organic" or some other unusual notions doesn't make him an expert on your problems.

THE COMPUTER AS A DECISION MAKING TOOL

And don't overlook what the Modern Miracle of the computer can do for you. If you don't have one and are not quite ready to own one, consider making use of a consultant who is expert in their use. There is no better tool that a farmer can use in day-to-day decision making than a modern Computer in the hands of a competent operator. It can be you, your wife or child, or a competent consultant.

Many decisions involve juggling figures. Any time you have a lot of calculations to make, a computer can make them very fast, very accurate, and very easy. A good example is a problem facing those Dairymen who have signed a contract to reduce their milk marketing over the next 15 months. How do you keep track of what is happening? Only by a series of rather complicated calculations, month by month, can you know where you stand, in order to fully comply with the contract. Fortunately, the computer can do this for you. (I have personally developed a spreadsheet for some of my clients, that will make this onerous chore a breeze!) If you are interested in making use of this program, contact me any time after March 7. The cost is a small fraction of what it can save you in time, accuracy and efficiency.

Meanwhile, don't wait until the Spring rush to start working on those important decisions that will make or break your business. Now is the time for serious thinking, listening, and calculating the best answers to your problems.

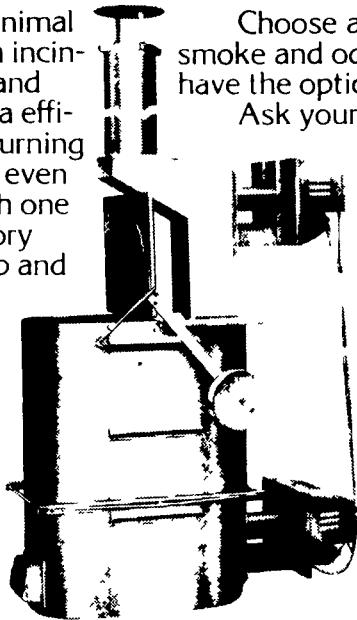

SHENANDOAH INCENERATORS - A SANITARY ALTERNATIVE FOR ON FARM DISPOSAL

To Help Prevent the Spread of Disease

The sanitary way to get rid of animal carcasses is with a Shenandoah incinerator. It's pollution controlled and convenient to use. It's also extra efficient because we've lined the burning chambers, and in some models even the afterburning chambers, with one and a quarter inches of refractory cement. That keeps the heat up and the energy costs down.

Choose among eight easy-to-install smoke and odor controlled models. You even have the option of burning gas or oil.

Ask your local Shenandoah dealer about efficient, inexpensive incinerators. You'll find out how our bright ideas in farm equipment can mean a bright spot in your day. And still leave a green spot in your wallet.

ADD A NEW EFFICIENCY EXPERT TO YOUR TEAM AT A NEW LOW PRICE

Your first thought may be "What did they leave off the tractor to get the price down?" Because of special allowances from John Deere, we can honestly tell you, "only the dollars we took off the price tag of 2150 through 2950 models." Yes, we want your business—but not enough to try to sell you some stripped-down "special" without features to handle the work you have to do. We won't do business that way neither will John Deere.

To make our new, lower priced tractor offer even more attractive, John Deere's making an additional price-reducing offer. Take a cash rebate or interest-free financing to January 1, 1985.

Come in check the specs on this lower priced John Deere and others in stock. Check the added savings from John Deere financing. Get our trade-in quote. Arrange for a demo. We'll compete for your business with anybody—and deliver a work ready John Deere tractor as our end of the bargain.

* This offer may be reduced in value or withdrawn at any time.
 Availability of John Deere financing subject to approved credit.

Complete TA assemblies for 706-1586 are priced at $595 and come with a Dana Co Heavy Duty Sprag instead of the usual IH sprag. The Dana sprag is guaranteed for 2 years against failure. FICKES SILAGEMASTER

Silo construction is not only an engineering science, it is also an art. Fickes Silos exemplify these principles, with their fine stave design and strength ... durability... and manufacturer's care in building.

SWING BACK HINGED DOOR

The hardware used in this door's construction is heavy duty steel with a double hinge system to allow the door to swing back against the side of the silo. A double lock system holds the door against the frame for a sure seal

LONG'S GLASS-LINED STORAGE SYSTEMS

(1) CORRUGLASS BINS

Long incorporates the strength of corrugated steel with a protective coating of glass fused to steel to produce the lowest cost glass-lined oxygen limiting storage system for high moisture grain. Breather bags and choice of bottom unloader with tapered power driven sweep auger or standard auger unloader with clean out sweep arm complete this system.

(2) OXYGEN LIMITING, GLASS-LINED SILOS

These smooth wall silos with glass fused to steel protective coating are designed for high moisture grain and medium moisture forages. Breather bags and bottom unloader with power driven sweep auger for grain or chain unloader for forage and grain complete this system.

(3) STOR-LIX LIQUID MANURE STORAGE

Stor-Lix lined tanks help preserve the nutrient value of manure, help protect the environment, and afford better management of labor and equipment.

"We're not telling."

"Sure enough, when everyone finds out how I can wean early and still get 20 percent faster gains, it won't be so special.

"It's my pride, you know. I like feeding rations that are special...and this one is. It's Potency Formulated, and made just for early-weaning pigs.

"It's not like others...not adapted from an ordinary starter feed that baby pigs aren't even interested in. No sir, this stuff has baby pigs scrambling after it.

"So they're on dry feed and ready to wean earlier.

"When they get to 20 pounds I switch them from Premawean to Premapig—oops, I just let out the secret.

"Oh well, you'd find out sooner or later... 'cause good ideas travel fast in the hog business."

Early weaning - does it pay with pigs?

NEWARK, De. — What does it take to produce 20 pigs per sow per year? One could make a long list of suggestions, but early weaning would certainly be near the top. Successful early weaning.

"Unfortunately, many producers who seek maximum sow productivity practice early weaning that's not so successful," says University of Delaware extension livestock specialist Dr. Ken Kephart.

"Let's say that your pigs weigh 12 pounds at 21 days. That's a reasonable weight for a three-week-old pig," he says. "And, ignoring all else, it justifies sending the sow to the breeding barn and the pigs to the nursery."

But now the fun begins. If things go just right, you hope that the following events will happen over the next 14 days.

- Each pig will consume about 8.5 pounds of feed.

- Each pig should gain 6 or 7 pounds, so at five weeks it will weigh 18 to 19 pounds.

- Less than one week after weaning, 90 to 95 percent of the sows will be bred and carry a normal litter.

And you're on your way to a production level of more than 20 pigs per sow per year.

"But what if things don't go just right?" Kephart asks. "Is there any reason they shouldn't, when you choose to wean at three weeks?"

Well, you've just put a 21-day-old pig into a totally new situation. He's used to a liquid diet, but now he's on solids. He's used to seven or eight pen mates, but now he has at least 15 - most of which he's never seen before. He has an immune system that's not up to speed.

Yesterday Mom was picking up the slack, but now he's on his own.

Anything else? "Chances are," the specialist continues, "he has to sleep in a draft, which means climbing on (or under) the pile with the rest of the guys. Or just as bad, the temperature is right, but the air is overloaded with moisture, ammonia and pit gases."

So what really happens with most early weaning efforts?

For two days the pig doesn't eat anything. On the third day he finds the feeder. And on the fourth, he starts to scour.

After the first week, he's lost 3 pounds. "By now, even with the help of antibiotics, he has a low-grade pneumonia," Kephart says. "But at least the diarrhea is getting tolerable. And he finally starts to gain weight. After 14 days he's found the 3 pounds he lost the first week after weaning."

So he's back up to 12 pounds. But the feed he's eaten is going to cost you about a buck and a quarter - times the number of pigs that came out of the farrowing house with him two weeks ago.

"In the process," Kephart says, "you've lost two weeks of production. And you'll never get them back."

What about the sows in the breeding barn? Most of them have been bred, but there may be a few that won't be ready to carry a litter - probably the same few that had to be pushed out of the crate at 2.5 weeks. Let's say this puts your conception rate 10 percent lower than it should be. That's another production loss you'll never recover.

When is the best time to wean? As early as possible without sacrificing production, says Kephart. For most producers that's 4.5 to 5.5 weeks. Though three-week weaning will work, it doesn't come easy.

To succeed, he says, you need a good nursery - one with small pens - one that you're willing to maintain at 85 to 90 degrees F, with good air quality.

You'll need a good ration, too. "Just what that means is always subject to debate," the specialist says. "Many rations will work, but research has shown that you'll get the best results with one that contains 1.0 to 1.1 percent lysine and 20 to 25 percent milk products, such as whey."

You'll also need to observe. Watch for diarrhea. Look for rough hair coats. "Watch the pigs to see that they're behaving with the same vigor and vitality they had in the farrowing crate. And be sure they're comfortable," he advises.

You'll need some scales. Weigh the pigs at weaning, then again two weeks later. They should have gained almost half a pound a day. By nine weeks of age most pigs should be pushing 45 to 50 pounds. If they're not, delaying weaning just a week or two could have made the difference.

So, if you're among the producers weaning pigs at less than 4.5 weeks, take a hard look at what's really happening, Kephart advises. "Be sure the pigs gain weight after they're weaned. Check sow records to see that the first service conception rate is at least 85 percent. And don't be afraid to leave the pigs on their mother a bit longer. She's one of the best managers you've got."

New York cattlemen honored

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Two officers, Robert Good of Perry and George Moore of Geneva, were given special recognition at New York Beef Cattlemen's Association annual meeting Feb. 4 at the Sheraton Inn here.

Good who retires March 1 as executive secretary was given the Service Award and Moore who was Association president 1980-82 was given the Presidential Award.

Good is a retired music teacher and school principal having served 30 years with the Perry Central School system. A graduate of the Eastman School of Music with a master's degree from the University of Rochester, he came to Perry from his home in Hazelton, Pa. after three years service with the U.S. Army in the European Theater during World War II.

He acquired a farm and a Guernsey dairy herd when he married his wife Helen and moved to her Home Acres Farm. The dairy has been replaced with beef cattle and the Goods now have a herd of about 20 brood cows, young stock, and bulls. Good assumed the executive secretary position when it was created seven years ago.

He is active in the Perry Rotary Club and last year was given the Paul Harris award in recognition of his contributions to the service organization. He served as organist and choir director of the United Presbyterian Church in Perry and is currently treasurer of the Perry Center United Church of Christ. He also has a large number of private music pupils.

The Service Award was presented in recognition of his work and dedication to the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association which in the last years has doubled its membership, expanded its marketing emphasis, and developed many new projects including an intensive promotional program.

Moore has been a member of the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association for 15 years and has served on the executive Beef Council for six years. He has served on many committees and has worked at the Association's Empire Farm Days Beef Barbecue for many years.

A retired agronomist with the United States Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service, he has operated a feedlot and beef freezer trade for many years.

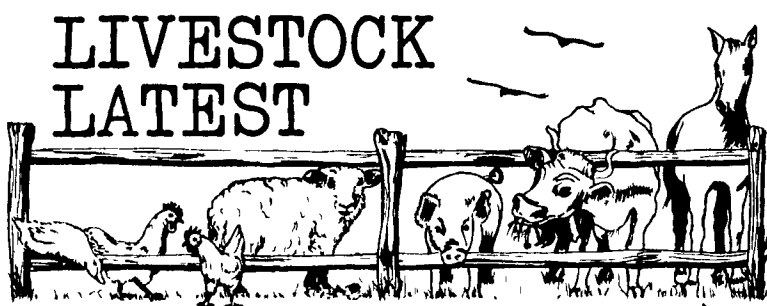

He is a member of the Hector Corporation Grazing Association, Soil Conservation Service Association, Cooperative Extension, and Farm Bureau and is currently serving as Town Justice.

The Presidential Award made by retiring president William Cisco of Lindley is a new honor initiated for the 1984 meeting.

During the business meeting of the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association Allen Peterson of Jamestown was elected president of the organization. Peterson has a registered herd of Polled Herefords and also operates a feedlot. He has been an active member of the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association for six years and is also a member of the Chautauque County Fair Board and 4-H Beef Committee as well as a member of Farm Bureau, the New York Hereford Association and the Empire Polled Hereford Association.

A two-day Trade Show with about 20 exhibits by agribusiness including machinery dealers, seed and feed companies, a biochemical company, farm publication, and other was a highlight of the annual meeting.

Commissioner of Agriculture Joseph Gerace was the featured speaker at the afternoon session

Livestock association opens membership

LANCASTER — The time is at hand to enroll new members in the Pennsylvania Livestock Association. This state-wide organization has been in operation for the past 20 years and local officials are interested in getting new members.

The purpose of the Association is to represent the overall livestock industry in matters such as education, promotion, research, and legislation. The association maintains that unified effort from all phases of the livestock industry can develop more support for its needs than individuals or smaller groups.

The membership is open to any livestock individual, corporation, partnership, or business interested in the production, marketing, processing, or other services related to the livestock industry. Annual dues are $15 per year for individuals, $25 for associations, and $35 for Agri-Business concerns.

Membership blanks are available from Peter H. Krall, Box 149, Catasauqua, Pa. (membership chairman) or from M.M. Smith, 508 South President Ave., Lancaster, Pa.

All livestock interests and concerns are urged to join this Pennsylvania Livestock Association.

Pa. Poultry Federation sets annual banquet

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Poultry Federation has scheduled its annual fund-raising banquet for Thursday night, April 5 at the Hershey Motor Lodge and Convention Center, Hershey.

Despite the problems that the Pennsylvania poultry industry is having, Federation officials are hoping that attendance at this year's banquet will approach the record levels which were set at 1983's banquet. They also hope that this year's event can double as a "victory celebration" over the avian influenza epidemic which has plagued poultrymen here since last April.

Because of its past success, the entertainment format of a comedian and a country/western recording artist will be kept intact for this year. The names of this year's entertainers will be announced in coming weeks.

Tickets for the banquet are $100 each and can be ordered by calling the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation office at (717) 652-7530

Charolais sale averages $5,000 per head

KANSAS CITY, MO. — Charolais breeders gathered in the Beef Palace Auction Arena at the National Western in Denver, Colo., to witness and participate in the 5th National Charolais Sale Bred and owned Charolais seedstock were presented to the public featuring some of the finest cattle in the nation.

The fifth annual event followed the National Charolais Show held the preceeding day. All cattle were inspected and represented all regions of the United States. With excellent quality, one and 3/8 bulls grossed $28,800 to average $20,945; 26 females grossed $108,150 to average $4,160 for a total gross of $136,950 on 27 3/8 lots to average $5,003.

Previous National Charolais Sales had experienced several consignments added to the sale from National Charolais Show—normally the various champions and some class winners. No champions or class winners were added consignments to this 5th National Charolais Sale except for a syndicated interest in the National Reserve Champion bull.

BCR Standout III 157, an added lot selected from the National Show after being named Reserve Grand Champion bull, was the high-selling individual Oakdale Farms, Upperville, Va., owned by Mrs. Thomas di Zerega, was the successful bidder at $22,000 for the breeding interest which included 10 registrations per year for five years. This polled Oct. 17, 1982 son of RCC Royal Standout 2873 is one of the most talked about bulls in the breed and was consigned by Barton Charolais Ranch, Abbeville, S.C., and Barton Charolais Ranch, Manti, Utah.

Riverwood Bessie 393/T2, a full sister to 1979 National Champion bull, Riverwood Genesis, was the high-selling female going to Brookwood Farms, Sauk Rapids, Minn. The Jan. 1, 1983 daughter of Riverwood Elevation 44 sold for $10,000 and was consigned by Riverwood Farms, Powell, Ohio. The full sister to Riverwood Genesis 396 had a 205-day weight of 640 pounds.

The second-place summer yearling heifer, Miss RW-CC Cover Girl, was an added lot to the sale consigned by Riverwood Farms, Powell, Ohio, and Circle C Charolais, Morehead, Ky. Retherford Charolais Ranch, Prescott, Ariz.; had the final bid of $8,000 on the daughter of Riverwood Elevation 44 and out of Miss Van Camp 333, one of the premier Polled cows of the breed, the progenitor of the famous "Starlet" cow family.

JB Jessica, a January 1983 transplant heifer consigned by John Bauman, Carpenter, Wyo., sold for $6,000 to Silver Creek Charolais, Blue Mounds, Wis. The young show prospect is sired by RCC Royal Standout, the highly successful show bull and breeding sire that heads the Kenwood herd, and out of everyone's dream girl, JB Cheri 172.

The second high-selling bull was DBL Hooks More 2696 sired by ACF Apocalypse 40 and consigned by The Designers, Rapid City, S.D. Boyle Ranch Co., Hersey, Neb., purchased the National Class winning December bull. The future herd sire is out of an Avignon bred cow.

Miss FMRC Starlet 3091, a polled daughter of Riverwood Elevation 44 sold for $5,200 to Myers Charolais Farm, Clear Spring, Md. The full sister to 1983 National Champion female, Miss CCC Starlet 1909, was consigned by Circle C Charolais, Myers Charolais Farm, Clear Spring, Md., Fence Post Farm, Franklin, Pa., and Riverwood Farms, Powell, Ohio.

Miller Farm, Osceola, Iowa, consigned the added lot of MF Miss Apocalypse 2823 Polled. The September 1982 heifer sired by ACF Apocalypse 40 was purchased by Black Oak Charolais, Sparta, Tenn.

The sale offering as represented by the consignments in the catalogue in this 5th National Charolais Sale was of the highest quality yet in this series of sales for the category of pre-consigned lots. All of these consignments must be bred and owned by the consignor. It is a true measure of breeding quality in the Charolais breed, and the results of an average better than $5,000 was extremely strong.

The sale was sponsored by the American-International Charolais Association and the Rocky Mountain Charolais Association. The sale was managed by Buzz Garey, Garey Cattle Sales, Inc., of Morrisville, Pa., with Stanley Stout, Linwood, Kan., serving as auctioneer.

Heitman named NY 'Cattleman of the Year'

Syracuse, N.Y. — Fran Heitman of Angelica was named Cattleman of the Year at the annual meeting of the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association Feb. 4 at the Sheraton Inn, here.

Heitman was cited for his work in the Southwestern Division of the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association, for his work with other beef programs, and for his work with 4-H youth.

Heitman like many beef cattle producers in the state is a part-time cattleman. He is also self-employed in the construction business.

He was instrumental in the construction of the Angelica Feeder Sales Barn, both in the initial concept and in the encouragement of the all-volunteer work force that built the facility.

Because of this division-owned building the Southwestern Division has expanded its marketing program to include both a fall and spring feeder calf sale and a spring breeding stock sale. The facility is also used for field day programs and other events.

Heitman has served as Allegany

County director of the Southwestern Division and also as Division sales manager for several years and was re-elected to both these positions last fall.

He is a member of the Seneca Trails Resource Conservation and Development livestock advisory committee and worked to help implement the current custom feedlot pilot project. He is also a member of the 4-H livestock advisory committee and has worked to develop and implement beef projects and the annual 4-H Meat Animal Show and Sale at the Allegany County Fair.

Fran and his wife Diana are the parents of four children. In addition to raising beef cattle, they make maple syrup, tapping about 3,000 trees, and have an acre garden.

Others honored at the annual meeting were Thomas Gallagher of Albany County who was given the Extension Award and Wanda Buss of Millbrook who was given the Youth Award. Gallagher was honored for his work with beef cattle producers in the Capital District and with the Eastern Division of the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association. Miss Buss was honored for her work with 4-H beef projects and with Junior Angus projects.

Tara Mitchell of Skaneateles was named 1984 Beef Ambassador and Shawn Clark of Victor, alternate. The two young people will work with the Cattlemen and the New York CowBelles in the areas of beef promotion and consumer education. With the theme of Reality and Quality.

Miss Mitchell is a junior at Cornell University and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Mitchell. She is currently president of the New York Junior Hereford Association and has raised and shown cattle for several years.

Clark is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Selwyn Clark of Monpelier, Ohio and is employed as cattle manager at Blazey Hill Farm, Victor. He too has raised and shown cattle for several years. He works with the Buttonwood Beefer's 4-H Club in Monroe County helping the young people with showing and fitting.

Nebraska breeder heads American Simmental Association

BOZEMAN, Mt. — Richard "Dick" Tetherow, Valentine, Neb., — a member of the American Simmental Association's Board of Trustees since 1980, was elected President during the Association's 16th Annual Meeting and Convention, held January 31 - February 2 at Honolulu, Hawaii. Tetherow served as President-elect in 1983, as Treasurer in 1982, and succeeds Jim L. Nickeson of Veblen, South Dakota, in the President's position.

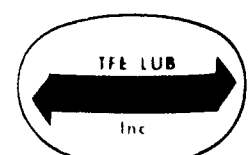

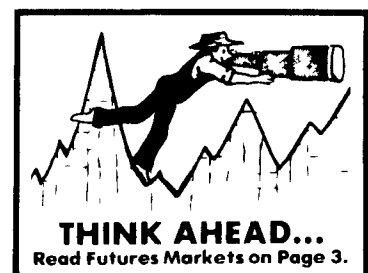

An outspoken advocate of performance testing, he has served as chairman of the Association's Performance Committee for the past three years and also chaired the Animal Health committee for one year.

A graduate of the University of Nebraska, Tetherow was born and raised in Cherry County, Neb., and maintains his Simmental operation near Valentine. He and his wife, Janice, are the parents of two sons, Bart and Sam, and a daughter, Nicole.

In other election results announced during the Convention, Dr. Hugh Karsteter of Cushing, Okla., was named vice president and president-elect; Edmund Tom, Campbelltown, Texas, was elected to the post of treasurer; and Tom Stevenson, Sherwood, Maryland, and John Teagarden, LaCygne, Kansas, were named to serve on the five-member executive committee, along with the three elected offices.

Two newly-elected Trustees were sworn in during the convention. John Hewes of Woodville, Ken., and Ellie Thomas Larson of Mount Horeb, Wis., replace Nickeson and Treasurer Roy Meek, Draper, Vir., who have completed their six-year terms of eligibility on the Board of Trustees. The American Simmental Association is governed by a 16-member Board of Trustees, four from each of four geographical regions.

The 17th Annual ASA Convention and Annual Meeting is scheduled for Denver, Colo. the week of January 14-18, 1985.

Mower conditioners from Gehl feature high-speed disc cutting.

Gehl reports disc MC's

WEST BEND, Wi. — Gehl Company announces the addition of two high-speed disc mower conditioners to its line of hay cutting machines.

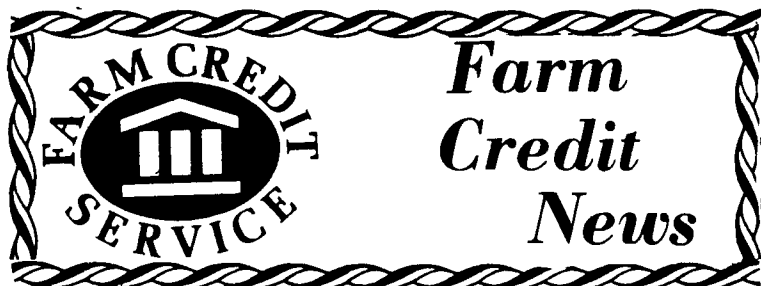

Both conditioners feature a high speed disc cutting system that cuts the crop quickly without plugging. The DC2330 has a 9'5" cutting width and uses seven oval discs with two knives each. The DC2350 has a 10'6" cutting width and uses eight triangular shaped discs with three knives each. In both machines, the discs operate at 3,000 RPM.

The conditioners also have full-width conditioning rolls that reduce crop drying time and windrow shields that adjust to form everything from high, fluffy windrows to full-width swaths.

Another feature is the patented drawbar drive system that maintains perfect alignment while allowing a high degree of maneuverability. The driving gear case is mounted on the drawbar which attaches to the lower links of a tractor's 3-point hitch. The conditioner pivots about its center shaft and the pto shaft remains fixed.

The DC2330 and DC2350 complement Gehl's line of haymaking equipment that includes swing and fixed frame mower conditioners, disc mowers, round balers, forage harvesters and fingerwheel hay rakes.

Eby dedicates addition

BY JACK HUBLEY

BLUE BALL — M.H. Eby, the East Coast's largest manufacturer of livestock trailers and truck bodies, celebrated 46 years of service with the dedication of its new facility on Feb. 10.

Located one-quarter-mile east of Blue Ball on Rt. 23, the new 27,000-square-foot building will triple the company's working area. The expansion, made possible by a loan from the Lancaster Industrial Development Corporation, will permit product modernization and rapid response to customer needs, according to Eby's Sales and Marketing Manager, Darryl Breniser.

Founded in 1938 by Menno H. Eby, Sr., the firm became well-known for its quality wooden wagons and cattle bodies. In 1972, Eby's son, Menno, Jr., purchased the business and, with only four employees, began production of their all-aluminum livestock bodies. The new light-weight and maintenance-free bodies quickly gained acceptance, and the firm's growth continued, resulting in its present expansion.

With its current work force of 30 employees, the company is a dealer for Timpco trailers and parts, and manufacturers its own units for customers as far away as Texas and Georgia.

Breniser attributes the company's continued success to its loyal employees, and small size, which permits custom construction and quick response to the specific trailering requirements of each customer.

Emphasizing their role as a designer of custom trailers, company personnel demonstrated the firm's first electric deck cattle trailer. Responding to a customer request, the firm equipped their all-aluminum, possum-belly trailer with a movable deck, providing two-tier cattle transport, and converting in minutes to a single-floor configuration. Such a specialized unit can be constructed within 10 days to two weeks.

The day's events included presentation of the facility's keys to Menno Eby by Harold King of Earl King, Inc., the firm's contractor, followed by a luncheon and tour for the company's 30 guests.

IH reports convertible planter

CHICAGO, IL. — International Harvester has announced availability of the industry's first planter designed to convert quickly from 30-in. (762 mm) corn rows to high yield 15-in. (381 mm) widths for narrow-row soybeans.

The International Early Riser Corn/Soybean Special has eight fixed planting units on 30-in. (762 mm) spacings, with five additional units which drop into place for 15-in. (381 mm) soybean rows. Two skip rows for 60-in. (1.5 m) tractor tire spacings allow for cultivation or spraying without disturbing planted rows.

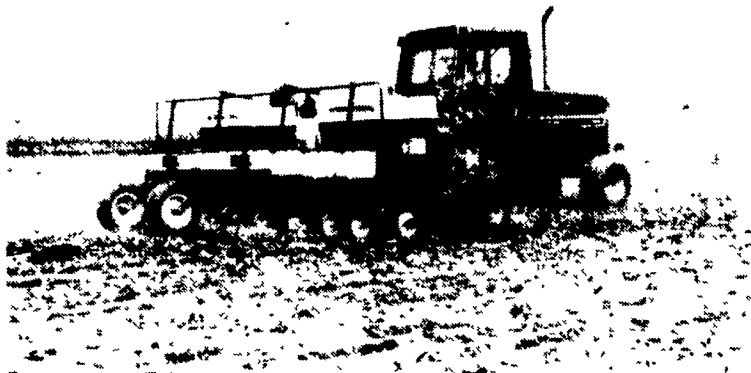

The 800 Series Early Riser planter is semi-mounted, with a rigid 7 x 7-in. (178 x 178 mm) steel frame toolbar equipped for Cat. II and III 3-point tractor hitches. An optional attachment allows for endwise transport.

IH says the switch from one configuration to another takes about 15 minutes. Drop-down planting units for soybeans are staggered for improved trash clearance in minimum- and no-till conditions. The five convertible units are raised and lowered with a movable hand winch, and lock in either the up or down position.

Stainless steel eight-row seed drums help make the conversion from corn to soybeans, and vice versa, fast and simple. Each drum delivers four rows when planting corn. For soybean planting, one drum delivers six rows, the other seven. Special 240-hole drums are available for precision planting of high population soybean varieties at speeds up to eight mph (12.8 km/h). Four seed drums, two for each crop, are standard.

The eight 30-in. (762 mm) corn row units are individually mounted, parallel linked. A special parallel linkage has been added for the five conversion rows. Seed openers are staggered 14-in. (356 mm) diameter double disks with precision bearings. The eight-in. (203 mm) covering disks are individually mounted. Press wheels are 6 5/8 x 12 in. (165 x 305 mm) standing rib, semi-pneumatic rubber tires.

Planting depth on the new IH planter is controlled by a gauge wheel system that equalizes row unit weight on both 4 5/8 x 16-in. (115 x 406 mm) grooved, semi-pneumatic rubber gauge wheel tires to minimize vertical movement of the row unit.

Folding row markers are raised and lowered hydraulically with an electronic automatic alternating system. Standard Seed Flow II monitor warns of low seed level in each of the 15-bushel (.53 M³) hoppers and tells the operator when seed flow has been disrupted at any of the row units.

Scarlett adds warehouse

BALTIMORE, MD. — Scarlett Company, the Baltimore-based international seed distribution firm, recently announced the purchase of its newest storage and delivery facility, a modern 12,000 sq. ft. warehouse located in Mifflinburg.

According to Scarlett Company General Manager, Eugene Hohl, this acquisition will allow the company to expand its presence throughout the central and western Pennsylvania region as well as open new markets for Scarlett's complete line of farm seed, bird seed, and lawn and garden products.

Built in 1982, the new Scarlett warehouse was previously owned by the Boyd Seed Center and will continue to be operated by three former employees. Raymond Galer, who has over 22 years of experience in the seed business, will be responsible for all warehouse and trucking operations. His wife, Doris, will serve as Office Manager at the Mifflinburg facility. Also joining Scarlett Company is their son, David, who has been appointed to the position of Regional Sales Representative.

Tips offered on using boar semen

ST. LOUIS, MO. — What do a styrofoam cooler and a 400-pound boar have in common? They both contain genetics that can be used by hog producers to improve the efficiency of their breeding stock.

Contained in the cooler is the latest genetic package offered by Kleen Leen, Inc., the swine breeding stock subsidiary of the Ralston Purina Co. David Cardin,

Kleen Leen president says, "For several years, we have advocated selective use of artificial insemination in the independently owned breeding herds that produce our crossbred gilts and boars. AI reduces the risk of disease when these herds are introducing new blood lines and genetics into their operations, and has proven so effective we decided to make the semen available to the entire industry," he explains.

Kleen Leen semen is available in four lines. Hampshire, Yorkshire, Duroc and Landrace. Although the company offers crossbred gilts and boars, it maintains purebred herds to guarantee and improve the quality of lines in these crosses. Commercial semen is taken from the top 5 percent of the purebred boars at the Kleen Leen AI facility in Williamsburg, Ind.

The selection criteria for choosing boars to produce semen is the same used to select boars produced by the breeder herds. "Boar quality is rated by an index created by Kleen Leen, called the Genetic Potential Rating Index. This measure evaluates breeding stock on characteristics with high heritability which affect the value of producing a hog, including backfat, rate of gain, and feed efficiency," says Cardin. Semen marketed by Kleen Leen is from 130 or higher GPR boars.

Performance tests on this semen show that for a group of 109 matings sows had an average conception rate of 83.2 percent with AI and average litter size of 9.37 pigs born alive. A larger group of 563 matings had a conception rate 6.4 percent below natural service rates and an average litter size of 9.32 pigs born alive.

According to Cardin, the slightly lower conception rates with AI are more than justified by the gain in disease prevention. "The use of AI to decrease the chance of introduction of disease is very important to the breeder herds. Should a hog producer producing stock for us fail to meet Kleen Leen's health standards, the producer is not allowed to sell animals through the company," he explains.

"The semen we ship is guaranteed to arrive within two days after collection to virtually any location within the hog belt," says Cardin. "Semen will be shipped in plastic containers packed in a styrofoam cooler to protect it against temperature extremes during transit. Delivery will be through either commercial courier or the post express mail services, and producers receiving semen that is more than two days old will not have to pay for the semen," Cardin states.

Until now problems with freshness have combined with producer inexperience in the actual administration of boar semen have retarded the acceptance of artificial insemination. AI is used in less than 5 percent of all hog operations in this country. For producers lacking experience with AI, Dr. Cardin recommends the following:

- Use semen as soon as possible, within one to three days after receiving a shipment.
- Know when sows and gilts come into standing heat.
- Know how long they stay in heat — sows usually remain in heat longer than gilts.
- Inseminate gilts immediately after the onset of heat and again after 12 hours.
- Breed sows based on the number of hours they have been in heat and the planned number of inseminations. Kleen Leen provides a chart to cover six different combinations of heat schedules and breeding frequencies.
- Inseminate sows in small pens that make control of the animals easier.
- Keep a boar nearby to help bring out the sow's gilt's breeding instincts.

part of the business meeting, but results will not be known until all meetings in each of the 16 districts are completed next week. Several districts, including District Four, hold more than one meeting.

Atlantic Director Clyde Martin, East Earl, discussed the financial challenges the cooperative faced in 1983, brought about in part because of the instability of the world economy and the strength of the U.S. dollar in comparison with other currencies.

Martin noted that more breeding units were sold in the member area in 1983 than in 1982. He added that breeding efficiency is up, and at an all time high, which is good for all dairymen. Martin said that with the Cooperative growing more of its own forages in the past year, feed costs for the bulls at the stud are more reasonable.

N. Alan Bair, director of member services for the Cooperative, gave a slide presentation of the 1984 sire program, stressing the new genetic base change which is in effect for the first time this year. Bair pointed out the importance of comparing bulls using only data with the PD 82 information for accurate comparisons.

He also discussed the Cooperative's Linear Mate program, through which 100,000 cows have now been evaluated and had sire recommendations made. In addition to one full time evaluator, there are 10 Linear Mate specialists who serve on a part time basis.

New sire proofs were also part of the presentation. Bair noted that the USDA data places Atlantic's sires well above the average in the AI industry, showing the genetic superiority of the sires available to members.

Milko-Scan speeds milk and dairy product analysis.

Milk analyzer introduced

AUBURN, IL. — DICKEY-john Corporation, Auburn, Il., has introduced the totally new high speed DICKEY-john/Foss Milko-Scan 605 multiconstituent analyzer system for milk and dairy products.

The third generation Milko-Scan 605 employs the unique and proven short-beam infrared transmission method of analysis. The instrument, with its patented B filter, measures fat, protein, lactose, and solids. Single fat analyses can be performed at a super fast rate of up to 600 samples per hour. All operations, including data treatment, are handled by the inboard micro computer.

The Milko-Scan 605 has auto-programming capacity for eight different programs and provided for automatic zero setting and flow-system rinsing. Temperature, sample flow, and sample feeding

The flexibility and stability of the Milko-Scan 605 make it the preferred choice for high throughput sample analysis on a wide variety of products under varying conditions. Simplified calibration and ease of operation makes it ideal even for low volume application.

Round bale silage requires management

NEW HOLLAND — Round bale silage can give you the best feed you've ever fed. If something goes wrong, it can also be a bummer.

The Penn State forage test report showing over 24% protein for a late 1983 sample is proof the system can give your cows excellent feed. Things have to go right for those results. A very small leak in the plastic bag can lead to a moldy bale of lower feed value, notes Dick Salisbury, who is product manager for round balers at New Holland.

Apparently, the problem is that bags tend to be limp and loose after the silage is cured. If the bags aren't protected, they may flutter with a bellows effect when the weather turns windy. Then, a small hole can pass oxygen carrying air into the bale. A hole too small to be considered important in a plastic cover over a pit silo can be enough to cause a moldy bale of haylage in a plastic bag. Round bale silage needs better management than chopped forage in a tower silo.

Round bale silage also has advantages over a tower silo, Salisbury adds. The system is instantly expandable and you don't have to make a 20 or 30-year investment as would be the case with a tower silo. And since the forage isn't under tons of pressure from the forage above it as is the case in a tower, you can store round bale silage at higher moisture content without runoff losses. In the case of alfalfa, baling at fairly high (but wilted) moisture content may even yield a superior forage at feeding time. The natural green color of the alfalfa is more likely to be maintained.

Harvesting is easy. If you have a chain-type baler you usually only need to adjust the baler for the size roll your loader will handle. If bales are bagged within a few hours of baling, you can expect very good feed because weather damage and leaf loss can be avoided. The critical management item is to avoid air leaks in the plastic bags during storage.

Advanced on-farm dairy computer is available from Bou-Matic Dealers.

Dairy computer improved

MADISON, WI. — A new, advanced on-farm computer for dairy herd management has been announced by Dairy Equipment Company, a division of DEC International, Inc.

The Agricom 2030 can be tied directly to another business computer on the farm and is designed to handle automatic cow identification. In addition, the system features enhanced software to make it easier and faster to enter data for larger herds, and it operates some 10 to 15 times faster than the previous model.

The Agricom 2030 also features a number of circuitry improvements to withstand the harsh farm environment.

The system provides 10 dairy management reports, reducing manual record keeping and providing daily herd and individual cow information on which to base management decisions.

For additional information, contact any Bou-Matic dealer of Dairy Equipment Company, division of DEC International, Inc., P.O. Box 8050, Madison, WI 53708.

Beef feeders told to know market & use technology

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

STOUCHSBURG — "Reduced meat supplies and a strong economy indicate a good year for beef," according to Lou Moore, Penn State extension economist.

Speaking on the effect of the new dairy bill, Moore added: "the culling rate from the dairy program will not make a drastic effect on the beef market."

Moore and Les Burdette, Penn State animal scientist, addressed dairymen raising slaughter animals, commercial beef producers, and part-time beef feeders last week. The annual beef feeders meeting for southeast Pennsylvania was held at Rissers Restaurant, Stouchsburg. Throughout the day the two specialists stressed knowing the market and using the latest technology.

Regarding the new dairy bill, Moore told farmers that "what really happens in agriculture depends more on the general economy." When there are many individuals making their own decisions, he continued, "alternating periods of feast or famine must be expected." Moore went on to cite several reasons for expecting 1984 to be a better year. They included changing consumer attitudes, the election year and an economic recovery.

Calling the new dairy bill a "short-run, stop-gap solution to buy some time for the CCC and Congress," Moore said, "the biggest thing that will help will be the continual drop in the support price which will cut prices to where people will start consuming more."

Summarizing its effects on the beef industry, Moore repeated that the beef prices will be "fairly good." Because of the past high feed prices, a reduced calf crop, and fewer cattle on feed, there are reduced meat supplies. To keep prices where a producer needs them, "produce less than the market wants," Moore told the farmers.

Burdette continually told beef feeders to "know your market." "Time is money," he stated, "slow gains add to overhead costs."

"How we feed a calf in its early stages does make a difference in its total performance to market," Burdette continued. High quality hay and an adequate calf starter should be used.

Burdette also suggested the following guidelines to use when buying calves to be fed for market.

1. Buy with a dry naval. This indicates that the calf received colostrum.
2. Buy in batches and isolate.
3. Give a therapeutic dose of antibiotics for protection.
4. Vaccinate against P13, IBR, also use a 4-way clostridial vaccine.

5. Use implants.

"If you're feeding cattle and not taking advantage of what's available, you're competing with somebody that is taking advantage of the latest technology," Burdette stated. Burdette stressed using implants. Implants have been proven to increase growth hormones reducing the finishing time.

With the new dairy bill, more Holsteins will be raised for slaughter. Burdette discussed raising of dairy beef. Stating that Holsteins are less efficient converters of feed to beef, Burdette advised marketing them by 15 months of age. Holsteins have a thinner hide and energy is lost quicker.

Burdette listed several items that producers feeding dairy beef should be aware of.

1. There are higher feed requirements. Holsteins are easier to feed in the summer than in the winter.
2. The price spread is greater.
3. There is usually a larger margin between feed cost and selling price.
4. Learn about the grades and market requirements.
5. Feed high grain rations for at least 100 days.
6. Market by 15 months of age.
7. Use all available technology.

He warned feeders, "feed efficiency and rate of gain drops as we get to these higher weights that are popular." "Every time you try to top the market, you fed your cattle too long," he stated.

"The average cattle feeder tends to overfeed roughage," Burdette continued. He discussed feeding management and alternative feeds. He also stated that moldy feeds are not avoided as much in feedlot cattle as they should be. Producers should be careful when using any off-quality feeds. Rations should be balanced considering nutrient balance versus least cost, according to Burdette.

"The combination of implants and feed additives in saving feed is really the way to go," he concluded.

Clyde Myers, Berks County extension agent, discussed live animal and carcass grades and also marketing freezer beef. Beef feeders were encouraged to budget and compute costs to make the correct market choice.

Dennis Manbeck, program director of the Berks County Cattlemans Association and Mike Firestine, secretary of the association encouraged beef producers to become involved in their organization. The association helped to sponsor this meeting and promotes beef throughout the year.

"The more we educate the people, the better off we are," Firestine told producers. Anyone interested in joining the association can send $15.00 (includes membership in both the Berks County Association and the Pennsylvania Association) to Donald Schaeffer, RD1, Box 94, Bernville, Pa. 19506. Make checks payable to the Berks County Cattlemans Association. Include your phone number and type of farm or business.

Commercial exhibits attract farmers attending beef feeders program.

Featured speakers who stressed knowing the market and using latest technology in beef production are Les Burdette, left, and Lou Moore, of Penn State.

Sheetz gets ag posts

HARRISBURG — Rep. Terry Sheetz of Lancaster County, has been named to two special statewide committees that will study ag issues.

The 99th District lawmaker has recently asked to serve on separate panels to study the avian flu epidemic and preservation of the Chesapeake Bay.

Sheetz was appointed by House Speaker K. Leroy Ivis to a 17-member bipartisan select committee to investigate the effects of avian influenza and make recommendations to revitalize the affected poultry industry.

"The select committee is expected to look into the immediate and long-range effects of the disease on the poultry industry and associated businesses," explained Sheetz. "The panel has also been directed to formulate a plan to aid the recovery of the industry and businesses and individuals that have been adversely affected by the epidemic."

Sheetz said the select committee was created by a House resolution (HR 169) which called for the panel to report its findings to the full House within three months.

Meanwhile, Sheetz was asked by the state Agriculture Department to serve in a working group designed to prevent nutrient runoff into the Chesapeake Bay's watershed. Specifically, the panel will develop financial assistance recommendations to help farmers to reduce such runoff.

"It takes time and money for farmers to reduce nutrient runoff into streams and rivers," said Sheetz. "This committee will have to find ways to make such resources available."

THE "HIP HUGGER"

New Revolutionary Design!!

1 The hip supporting bars are contoured and padded. They surround the hip joints evenly distributing the pressure making it more humane.

2 It is compact and easily positioned being much shorter than most hip clamps. This gives ample clearance anywhere inside the frame of the "COW BUOY". It also allows the operator access to "Downer" cows in hard to get places.

3 Very easy to adjust and secure, the linkage on adjustment mechanism reduces effort required to turn adjusting screw.

4 It has a detachable handle easily removed by pulling a snap pin. This prevents the adjusting screw from getting caught or bent.

Harvestore booklet available

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, IL. — The massive improvements that can occur on a farm or ranch when changes are made in the livestock feeding system is the theme of a new brochure published by A. O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc.

This booklet presents 20 detailed personal accounts from dairymen, beef feeders and pork producers explaining how the Harvestore System and Slurrystore System helped to make their enterprises more efficient and profitable by reducing input cost and labor. The brochure is titled, "Turning Point - A Brighter Tomorrow."

A copy of this brochure may be obtained by writing: Marketing Communications Dept., A. O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc., 550 W. Algonquin Road, Arlington Heights, IL 60005.

Beef recall ordered

DOVER, Del. — The Delaware Department of Agriculture has ordered a recall of all ground beef products produced by Summit Wholesale Meats of Linwood, Pa.

The recall order covers ground beef patties, bulk ground beef, beef patties, bulk patty mix and beef cubes identified by Federal Establishment number 4384.

"We have reason to believe the ground beef in question may have come from uninspected beef and it should not be consumed", said Delaware Agriculture Secretary Donald J. Lynch.

Lynch is requesting all Delaware wholesalers, distributors, restaurants and institutions to check their inventory of ground beef and ground beef products. Any item produced by Summit Wholesale Meats carrying the number 4384 should be set aside, and Agriculture Department inspectors should be notified immediately at 302-736-4811 or 800-282-8685.

Potato vote due in March

DENVER, Col. — More than 15,000 potato growers are eligible to vote during the month of March on whether to expand their promotion and advertising program.

The $2 million promotion program, enabled by the U.S. Congress in 1971, and created by a positive vote of the growers at that time, called for a checkoff of one cent per hundredweight and established The National Potato Promotion Board to set up and administer the program.

Under the referendum, the checkoff is proposed to be doubled.

Lowell Kenyon, a producer from Tulelake, Cal., and president of the Potato Board, says that the Board promotions have had considerable impact on what consumers think about potatoes, particularly about nutrition and calories.

Kenyon said that a good many growers have felt the power of both the retail merchandising and the publicity programs which the Potato Board sustained despite inflation, and they have therefore urged this referendum vote for an expanded checkoff in order to restore the advertising side of the program.

Kenyon also feels that added promotional funds will speed up the export of U.S. potatoes.

Ballots will be mailed to any grower producing five acres or more during the 1983 crop year. Completed ballots must be postmarked not later than March 31, 1984.

If the engine quits, two-way radio could pay for itself today.

Lose just one day during the planting season, and it could make all the difference between a good crop and a poor one. That's why you should be equipped with a Johnson FM two way radio.

With two way radio, if your engine quits, you can simply call for help. Chances are, a mechanic can get to you and get you going again while there's still some daylight left.

But without two way radio, you'd just have to start walking. There are a lot of other ways Johnson FM radio can save you time and money. Why not let us show you how you can lease or own a complete two way system for as little as 75¢ a day.

Del. to hold conservation session

DOVER, Del. — Public interest in conserving Delaware's natural resources is growing, according to Delaware Agriculture Secretary Donald J. Lynch.

Lynch and John E. Wilson III, Secretary of Natural Resources and Environmental Control, have joined Governor Pierre duPont in urging Delawareans to better conserve their natural resources. The Governor has proclaimed February as Natural Resources Conservation month.

Lynch contends soil and water conservation has traditionally been thought of as a farmers job. But, he says, that is changing.

"Fortunately many non-agricultural groups and private citizens are getting involved in protecting our rich resources. If we are to preserve them for future generations, it's going to take this cooperative effort by all Delawareans."

An example of this increased awareness of conservation issues is this month's Conservation Conference, according to Lynch. On February 27, leaders representing virtually all of Delaware's natural resources will gather in Dover to formulate an agenda for protecting Delaware's treasures for future generations.

"This conference will actually culminate months of work by various committees studying all aspects of Delaware's natural resource problems. At the same time, it represents a new beginning by the state's citizens to work together to solve those problems," said Lynch.

Not only do we in agriculture have a stake in this conference, but so does any Delawarean who hopes

The conference is scheduled for February 27 at the Dover Sheraton Hotel.

Studies confirm value of buffers in dairy ration

UNIVERSITY PARK — Dairy farmers are hearing a lot these days about improved milk yields from adding sodium bicarbonate to the rations. To verify individual experiments, scientists at four eastern universities made a joint study, the most comprehensive research to date on the use of rumen "buffers."

The results are affirmative. Cows fed 0.8 percent sodium bicarbonate in the ration averaged 3.6 pounds more milk per day than cows on standard feed.

Cows fed the 0.8 percent sodium bicarbonate reached their top milk production earlier and peaked higher than those fed no buffers, according to Larry D. Muller, dairy scientist at The Pennsylvania State University. He said the 3.6 pounds of increased milk per day returned 47 cents for each 7 cents of added feed cost during 16 weeks of lactation.

The experiments were applied to a total of 149 Holsteins in herds at Penn State, Cornell University, the University of Pennsylvania, and the University of Kentucky.

The rations were basically corn silage and ground shelled corn, supplemented with soybean meal and appropriate vitamins and minerals.

Cows fed 0.4 percent sodium bicarbonate in the total ration, half the recommended level, showed only a modest increase in milk. Moreover, doubling the recommended level to 1.6 percent of the total ration caused cows to eat less and produce less milk than those fed the recommended 0.8 percent buffer.

Cows normally secrete large amounts of saliva with lots of sodium bicarbonate, it was noted. Large quantities of hay or long forages produce enough saliva to keep the rumen pH fairly stable between 6.2 and 6.8. However, as grain feeding increases in high energy rations, less saliva is produced and rumen acidity goes up.

The Penn State dairy scientist said a combination of buffers to control acids along the entire digestive tract may be better than a single buffer. When feeding sodium bicarbonate alone, include one-quarter to one-half pound per cow daily. This should make up six-tenths to eight-tenths percent of the total ration dry matter.

Magnesium oxide should be added at about one-half to one-third the amount of the added sodium bicarbonate, feeding no more than two-tenths pound per cow daily.

Sodium bicarbonate and magnesium oxide appear to be of greatest benefit during early lactation. That's the time when large amounts of grain are fed, corn silage is often a major forage, fat tests are frequently low, and many "off-feed" problems are encountered. Off-feed cases in the experiments were fewest among cows fed buffers.

Bicarbonates such as baking soda are the only "true" rumen buffers, it was stated, since they help maintain the proper pH level and counteract acidity. Magnesium oxide likewise seems to have its greatest influence on fermentation in the rumen.

For rations mainly corn silage, magnesium may need to be supplemented with magnesium oxide, Muller suggested. Research at the University of Kentucky and Penn State suggest that magnesium levels may need to be above the normally recommended 0.2 percent in the total ration, perhaps 0.25 to 0.30 percent. However, don't feed more than 0.5 percent magnesium in the total ration dry matter, Dr. Muller advised.

Not all research on adding buffers to dairy cow rations has been positive. Alfalfa has more natural buffering capacity than corn silage. Thus, do not expect as much response to added buffers when alfalfa hay is the major forage.

Generally, greatest improvement in milk fat tests comes from feeding buffers when fat tests are severely low, Muller affirmed. On the other hand, adding buffers to rations when cows have "normal" fat levels will seldom improve the tests.

The combined research at the four universities showed a need, above all, to balance total rations for energy, protein, and minerals — including calcium, magnesium, sodium, and chlorine. Feed more fiber, if available. If not, using buffers may be helpful.
